EDWARD J. KELLY NEW MAYOR

ROOSEVELT ASKS MORTGAGE BILL TO SAVE HOMES

House Votes Similar Aid for Farmers.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's ambitious program for arresting deflation, relieving victims of the depression and reviving business moved forward today on a wide front. The outstanding developments were:

1. In a special message to congress the President submitted legislation with the double barreled purpose of saving small home owners under a 2 billion dollar loan plan from loss of their property by foreclosure and of promoting home building through government financing of home loan agencies. To carry out the home mortgage refinancing the federal treasury would be required to furnish up to 200 millions through the Reconstruction Finance corporation and to organize the agencies for loans on new homes the treasury would provide not to exceed 100 million more.

Bill Wins, 387 to 12.

2. The house by a vote of 387 to 12 passed the President's 2 billion dollar bill for the refinancing of farm mortgages in the form transmitted by the White House. This project calls for advances from the treasury up to 365 millions.

3. The President's farm commodities bill to manipulate upward the prices of basic farm products moved closer to passage, though the administration forces were routed when the bill was amended to include the Simpson price fixing plan under which farmers would be guaranteed returns equaling the cost of production. The treasury is to be reimbursed for the cost of the administration plan from taxes to be paid indirectly by consumers to an estimated extent of from 800 millions to 1¼ billions a year.

4. The President discussed with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and other labor leaders plans for putting more men back to work, which revolve chiefly around a vast public works construction program to be financed by bond issues aggregating from 1 to 6 billion dollars.

Pushes Other Projects.

While this progress was being recorded Mr. Roosevelt was pushing forward other projects for reviving industry, including the reorganization of the railroads and the lowering of protective tariff walls through reciprocal international agreements, the enabling legislation for which he expects to submit to congress within a week.

The bill the President sent to the capitol today provides for the refinancing of mortgages on homes not exceeding $10,000 in value, along the lines of the farm mortgage refinancing bill. The proposed legislation contemplates the scaling down of the principal, reduction of the interest and amortization of the unpaid balance over a period of fifteen years.

Under the administration of the federal home loan board a home owners' loan corporation would be created with a capital of not to exceed 200 million dollars subscribed by the government. The funds for such subscription would be furnished by the R. F. C., for which purpose its limit of obligations is increased 200 millions. Inasmuch as the federal treasury is the only subscriber for R. F. C. debentures, this fund would be furnished in reality by the government.

Two Billions in Bonds.

The home loan corporation would be authorized to issue tax exempt 4 per cent bonds up to 2 billions which would be exchanged for existing mortgages on homes on such terms as mortgagor and mortgagee agree upon. Payment of the interest, but not of the principal, would be guaranteed by the federal government.

As in the case of the farm mortgage refinancing these bonds are to be obligations not of the government but of a corporation set up by the government. Presumably the government would not be responsible for payment of the principal of the bonds, but in the event of default congress unquestionably would be urged to make good any deficit.

Bonds would be exchanged for mortgages on a basis of not more than 80 per cent of the value of the home. Any reduction in the face value of the debt by the mortgagee would be credited to the mortgagor, who would amortize his debt to the corporation at five per cent within 15 years. The board could grant a 3 year extension on payment of interest or principal.

SEEK REMOVAL OF HUEY LONG FROM SENATE

Home Citizens File Charge of Graft.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—In a formal petition received today by Vice President Garner a group of Louisiana citizens demanded the dismissal from the senate of Senator Huey P. Long, Louisiana radical.

JOHN M. PARKER.

Heading the list of signers and appending his name to an accompanying telegram even stronger in its charges was John M. Parker, former governor of Louisiana.

The petitioners demanded Long's dismissal from the senate on the ground that he was "personally dishonest, corrupt, and immoral, and his continuance in office is repulsive to the respectable and law abiding citizens of Louisiana and the nation."

To this charge was appended a bill of particulars asserting on eleven counts the Louisiana senator was unfit for office.

"I don't know anything about it," and won't discuss it," Senator Long said when asked about the ouster petition.

Under Federal Inquiry.

It was pointed out by Long's accusers that federal income tax agents had been in Louisiana for some time investigating "the conditions created by the said Huey P. Long" and persons associated with him.

To the charges contained in the petition the Parker telegram added that Long "is a dangerous paranoiac."

The petition and the telegram were handed down from the chair by the Vice President without a public reading, and were referred to the committee on privileges and elections, a special committee which has been investigating and will continue to investigate the operations of the Long machine in the 1932 Louisiana primaries. At that election John H. Overton, Long adherent and then a representative, defeated former Senator Edwin S. Broussard, foe of Long.

Offer to Appear with Proof.

The signers of the petition to the senate offered to come to Washington to prove their charges. They claimed that they could produce substantiating witnesses.

The charges declared that Senator Long had created and maintained in Louisiana a "system of corruption and debauchery unparalleled in the history of the state."

The assertion was made that Long had operated a racketeering system and levied tribute on businesses doing business with the state government, reaping "money tribute for himself personally for his political advantage and for enriching himself and certain of his associates."

Cites Income Tax Quiz.

"The bureau of internal revenue of the United States," the petition declared, "is publicly known to have conducted an extended investigation of the conditions created by the said Huey P. Long in Louisiana and his manipulations in said state, as well as persons associated or allied with him, and the bureau must have in its possession detailed and specific evidence of the violation of the federal income tax law and other laws, otherwise the investigators would not have kept on the case for such an extended period. No doubt this evidence can be made available to the senate."

It was charged that Long had corruptly gained control of the Louisiana legislature, members of which he could "control like a deck of cards" and buy like "a load of potatoes"; that he had escaped impeachment by bribery and other corrupt methods.

Charges Him With Grafting.

It was charged that he had openly boasted of controlling the state courts, including the Supreme court; that he controlled the present governor, O. A. Allen; that he had forced state employés to contribute to a huge "corruption fund" used to "debauch the electorate of the state and for other corrupt purposes," that he had made elections a farce by padding registration rolls, stuffing ballot boxes, tampering with election returns, and using bribes.

The petition alleged that Long was personally responsible for 10 million dollars in graft having been mulcted

Teachers Due to Get a Pay Day by Monday

New administration of west park system will give employes two weeks' pay today, the first they have received in many months. Details on page 6.

The first official act of Mayor Kelly after his election yesterday was to present to the council his proxy for the signature of tax warrants which will make possible the transfer to banks of the warrants to secure the pending $1,700,000 cash pay day for school employés. Teachers and other employés will get their pay checks Monday, it is expected.

In his inaugural statement Mayor Kelly announced his intention of going to Washington soon to ask President Roosevelt and leaders of congress for federal aid for all of Chicago's unpaid employés.

Banks to Buy Warrants.

Chicago banks, it is understood, have already given city and school officials assurance that they will buy the tax warrants to finance school pay rolls for the remainder of last June as soon as it is possible to give them warrants bearing the signature of a mayor whose legal authority cannot be questioned. The election of Mayor Kelly, of course, makes this possible.

City Controller Szymczak was hopeful yesterday that the banks would make the money available today, but since the schools are to be closed for the Good Friday holiday it is unlikely that payment will be made before next week. A plan may be worked out, however, to have the teachers go to the schools tomorrow for their checks.

Opposes School Closing.

On the eve of the school board meeting today to consider the resolution of Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell to close the schools at once because of the plight of unpaid employés, Orville J. Taylor, president of the board, voiced his opposition to a closing before May 1 at the earliest. That is the end of the spring vacation, which starts a week from today.

"We have been talking so long about the unfortunate situation of the teachers," said President Taylor, "that I think it is time that we gave a little consideration as well to the children. Thousands of children are being fed in the schools. Who will feed them if the schools close? Turning 500,000 children out on the streets is bound to increase casualties and deaths among them. Furthermore, we are too close to graduation time. We might as well finish the year now and give the children their credits."

This evening a conference called by Fred W. Sargent, chairman of the committee on public expenditures, will be held at the Union League club to discuss the problem of public employés' pay rolls. Leaders of business and civic clubs will be asked to join in an effort to revive and intensify the campaign to sell tax warrants for pay roll purposes.

Teachers Plan Demonstration.

Teacher leaders who have been active in holding demonstrations announced yesterday that they would hold one tomorrow morning at Congress street and Michigan avenue. At the samo time Superintendent of Schools Bogan received information, he announced, that a city-wide strike of high school pupils was being planned to take place Monday.

"I am informed that the organizers of this strike are members of the Young Communists' league and the Young Pioneers, another communist organization," said Supt. Bogan. "I doubt that the strike will amount to much, particularly when parents find that attempts are being made to enlist their children in communist disorders."

Bomb Hospital and Holy Week Service in Cuba

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, April 13.—After two weeks of warnings by telephone calls and anonymous letters advising social and public leaders not to visit churches during holy week as a nationwide protest against President Machado's administration, Oppositionists today swung into action. Twelve bombings occurred. Three persons were killed and scores were injured during a day of terror.

One powerful bomb was exploded beside the bedroom of Secretary of State Orestes Ferrara. The residence suffered considerable damage. The Ferrara family was not at home.

Clinic Is Bombed.

Ledon Uribe, one of the largest private clinics here, was bombed this morning. Two unidentified fruit vendors and one passerby were killed. Panic stricken women patients rushed to the street.

El Santo Angel Custodio church was bombed tonight while services were being held. The bomb practically wrecked a $500,000 altar. In the rush for safety a score of women were trampled and others suffered from the fumes.

Attack Other Churches.

Attempts were made to bomb Las Mercedes la Caridad and Belen churches during holy week services, but the bombs missed fire. The explosives were found inside confession booths and behind the main altars. Police also found bombs in two other churches.

A state department employé died today of injuries suffered Monday when a bomb wrecked a room in the state department building.

BABY BURNS TO DEATH IN CRIB AS MOTHER VISITS

Gerald Anderson, 5 months old, was burned to death last evening in his crib in room 514 of the St. George hotel, 1435 East 60th street.

The infant had been left alone by his mother, who had gone to dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Lindwood Adams, living across the hall from her. Another resident of the hotel, W. J. Crozer, saw smoke coming from the Anderson apartment and summoned help.

Firemen and police were seeking to learn how the crib caught fire. Mrs. Anderson said that she does not smoke and had not had any matches in the place. Neither, she said, had any one who smoked been in the room during the afternoon.

ELECTED BY CITY COUNCIL TO FILL OUT CERMAK TERM

WORKERS MUST BE PAID, KELLY'S INAUGURAL PLEA

Mayor Edward J. Kelly's inaugural statement, given out immediately after his election as chief executive of the city, follows:

"No man can accept the honor that you have just conferred upon me without feeling a profound sense of gratitude and of responsibility. To justify the confidence you have reposed in me, I promise you to devote to the tasks before us all the energy, force, and ability that the Almighty has endowed me with. Under any circumstances your selection would be a great honor, but it is much more so now that it means filling the place of one of the greatest mayors this city has ever had, whose memory will live in the hearts and minds of the people of this city and of this nation as long as memory itself will last, and by whose example his successor will be judged.

A Standard of Service.

"He has made the position of mayor greater than it was before he occupied it. He set a standard of public service in these trying times that few will be able to reach. My only comfort lies in the fact that he has prepared the way and that by following his example and adopting his policies we shall, in a measure at least, be able to carry on the great work that he has started.

"During the occupancy of the great office to which you have elected me, the policies of Anton J. Cermak will continually guide our course. It is not necessary at this time to make any statement of new policies. Whatever Mayor Cermak stood for I stand for!

One Important Problem.

"One overwhelming problem confronts us immediately, and that is the financial condition of the city. Public servants, policemen, firemen, school teachers, health officials, and others are unpaid. Their patriotism and loyalty to our community kept them working while many of them were in want, and I call upon you and upon the community to help bring a solution to that problem at the earliest possible moment.

"Whatever money can be raised through ordinary channels and through the patriotism of our own citizens we shall do everything humanly possible to obtain at once within a few days. I shall go to Washington and with all the force within me press upon the federal government the necessity of helping us without delay. Gov. Horner can be relied upon to do his utmost in the same direction. I am counting upon the members of this council for their whole-hearted support not only in the efforts to solve this trying problem but in everything that shall be necessary to be done on behalf of our great city.

Grateful to Party Leaders.

"I am, of course, deeply grateful to the leaders of the Democratic party for having indorsed your choice of me, and grateful for the support that we shall expect of that party in our endeavors to serve this community. It should be our aim to make of it an instrument of loyal and honest service to the people who have reposed so much confidence in us.

"Under the leadership of that splendid citizen whom you have first offered the high honor which you have now conferred upon me, Patrick A. Nash, the city of Chicago can well continue its full confidence in our party. His self-sacrificing refusal to accept the honor which comes only to one of millions should be conclusive proof not only of his splendid character and complete devotion to our city but of his determination that, in so far as it lies in his power, the Democratic party will be the servant of the city of Chicago.

"Again, gentlemen, let me thank you for this distinction and invite you all to work with me for the common good of our great municipality until all our major problems are satisfactorily met and solved.

"God willing, I may prove myself worthy of this trust."

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

He was elected by the city council yesterday to fill the unexpired term of the late Anton J. Cermak, which runs to April, 1935. His name was presented as the unanimous choice of the thirty-seven Democratic aldermen and of the party organization, and no dissenting votes were cast in the council. In the balloting forty-seven aldermen voted for him, and three were excused from voting.

Accept Corr's Resignation.

The resignation of Acting Mayor Frank J. Corr was accepted at the start of the meeting. Mr. Corr now goes back as alderman of the 17th ward.

Mr. Kelly was escorted into the chamber and within five minutes after his election he had been inducted into office. The oath was administered on the council rostrum at 4:15 o'clock by Peter J. Brady, city clerk.

The new mayor made a brief address and later issued an inaugural statement pledging himself to carry on the Cermak policies of economy, retrenchment, and service. He was an intimate friend and adviser of the late mayor and was at Cermak's bedside at the Miami hospital in the days when Mayor Cermak was making his battle for life.

"The policies of Anton J. Cermak will guide my course," his inaugural statement said. "Whatever Mayor Cermak stood for I stand for."

Will Go to Washington.

Mayor Kelly pointed to the financial situation and the overdue pay rolls of teachers, firemen, police, and other municipal employés as the great problem. He said that he would go to Washington and press upon the federal government the necessity of aid. Gov. Henry Horner, he said, would also do his utmost in the same direction.

As his first official act Mayor Kelly designated a proxy for the signature of $1,800,000 of school warrants for the immediate payment of salaries. The proxy extends to $40,000,000 of other municipal and school warrants for 1932.

Last night Mayor Kelly announced that he has retired from the position of chief engineer of the sanitary district. As to his position as head of the south park board, he said this would require some deliberation and that he has as yet reached no conclusion.

"There are some improvement projects I want to work out," he said.

Arvey Extols Kelly.

Mr. Kelly was extolled as "the man best qualified to pull Chicago out of the financial muddle" by Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th] in presenting to the council the nominating resolution signed by the thirty-seven Democratic aldermen.

As Chicago's Century of Progress mayor, the resolution pointed out, Mr. Kelly is eminently qualified. His career as one of the builders of modern Chicago was dwelt upon. As head of the south parks in the first two years of his presidency 30 million dollars was spent on public improvements.

Under Mr. Kelly Grant park has been improved and extended, Soldiers' field and the stadium have been completed, the Fine Arts building in Jackson park has been restored, while the outer drive and the parkway along the southern lake front are being completed.

Coöperation with Fair.

Chief of Mayor Kelly's tasks as head of the south parks was that of coöperating with the Century of Progress officials in the great exposition soon to open on south park land on the lake front.

His engineering career has been with the sanitary district. He started with the district more than 30 years ago. He has been a leader in the battle for sufficient diversion from Lake Michigan, and under him much of the engineering work of the district has been constructed, including the great disposal plants.

Mr. Kelly's selection as the unanimous choice of the Democratic organization came during the morning. Patrick A. Nash, Democratic leader, who had been offered the position on a silver platter by the aldermen and by most of the party chieftains, announced that he would not take it. At 70 he deemed the burden of the mayor's office during this time of financial stress required the services of a more youthful man.

Mr. Kelly is 57, physically hard as

Pronounced Dead, Man Is Revived Two Hours Later

Long Beach, Cal., April 13.—[Special.]—A. M. Ridgeway, 71, was found in a gas filled room when his landlord broke into the house this afternoon. Police, the coroner, and an undertaker were summoned and Ridgeway was pronounced dead. As the body was being placed on the undertaker's carriage one eyelid fluttered. "Let me have a look at those eyes," said the undertaker. Two hours' work by the inhalator squad from the fire department revived him and he was sent to the hospital.

nails, with a commanding presence and a wide acquaintance with the intricacies of practical politics in addition to his record of achievement in building public improvements in Chicago.

He is close to Gov. Horner, who took no part in the party councils which selected Mr. Kelly, but expressed his approval.

"I know," said Gov. Horner, "that Mr. Kelly will make a great mayor." Both the new mayor and the governor live in the same ward, the Fourth.

NASH GIVES ANSWER

When the party chieftains assembled at Morrison hotel headquarters yesterday morning most of them still had the impression that Mr. Nash would accept the position, despite his protests that he did not want the place and that at his time of life he was averse to loading himself down with the worries of the office. Mr. Nash, however, removed this impression in a few words.

"I am not going to take the job," he said. "If I were ten years younger I would think about it, but it would be too much of a burden on me now. A younger man is needed."

The chieftains went into conference. Five or six names were brought up for consideration, including those of Mr. Kelly, William H. Sexton, corporation counsel; Robert M. Sweitzer, county clerk; Clayton F. Smith, county recorder, and Ross Woodhull, sanitary district trustee.

After some discussion Mr. Kelly, with the backing of Mr. Nash and State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, became the favorite, and within an hour word was spread that Mr. Kelly was the unanimous choice of the committeemen and of the patronage officeholders.

At lunch time a caucus of Democratic aldermen and committeemen was called and in executive session they took up the question of picking a new mayor.

"This meeting," said Chairman Nash, "has been called to select a mayor. We had not intended that he should be elected until Monday at the regular session, but conditions in the city are such that we can no longer delay.

"Teachers Must Be Paid."

"The teachers must be paid. So must the police and fire departments. And the bankers are not satisfied with Acting Mayor Corr's signature on the tax warrants, although our own lawyers say it would be legal.

"Of the five or six men named for this position I would be satisfied to have any of them selected and I know any one of them will be satisfactory to the party and to the city. In refusing to accept the high office of mayor I am not unmindful of the honor bestowed on me by the majority of the aldermen.

"My action is prompted solely by the interests of our city, which has suffered the unfortunate tragedy of losing one of its greatest servants at a time when it needed him most. The city is confronted with tremendous problems and it will require a man of vigor, strength and courage to deal with them.

"The Democratic party has honored me by placing the responsibility of that party in my hands. In view of the fact that most of the public offices of this city and county are now filled by Democrats that responsibility is great, and it is my hope that I shall be able to so guide the affairs of my party as to make it a powerful instrument for good, by lending its full support to all those public officials, and especially to the new mayor, with a view to perpetuating the Democratic policies as exemplified by the action of Mayor Cermak.

"It is my profound belief that the man who will succeed him should be a younger man than I am, and one who should be able to give his all to the office. It is only because of this belief and because of my love for the city of Chicago that I step aside."

Committee Is Named.

A committee was next appointed to retire and choose a candidate. On it were City Controller Szymczak, Joseph L. Gill, clerk of the Municipal court; County Treasurer McDonough, Sanitary District Trustee James M. Whalen, Ald. Arvey [24th], James R. Quinn [50th], Walter J. Orlikoski [35th], Bryan Hartnett [12th], Thomas J. Terrell [29th], Harry E. Perry [18th], Thomas P. Keane [31st], and John Toman [23d], and Martin J. O'Brien, Frank Lyman, Richard Froelich, and Sanitary Trustee John J. Touhy.

After being out five minutes the committee filed back. Its chairman, Mr. Szymczak, reported:

"This committee nominates Edward J. Kelly to be next mayor of Chicago and moves its report be adopted."

Then came speeches laudatory of the nominee.

"There is no one better equipped to be mayor than Mr. Kelly," said County Clerk Sweitzer.

Smith Lauds Kelly.

Recorder Smith remarked: "During the 34 years I have been active in Democratic circles I never have been more satisfied to back any one than I am to support Ed Kelly."

Ald. James Bowler, who, with Mr. Kelly, was at Mayor Cermak's bedside at Miami, said:

"I was at the bedside of the dying Mayor Cermak and I know that no one would satisfy him more as his successor than Edward J. Kelly.

Ald. John S. Clark said: "During the next two years we are faced with some difficult problems. We are behind some $100,000,000 in pay rolls, another $100,000,000 in city contracts, and we are faced with the proper disposal of the traction, gas, and electric ordinances. No man is better fitted to cope with that task than Mr. Kelly.

A motion to adjourn was interrupted by Chairman Nash.

"Wait a minute," he said; "I have something to say.

Arrangement on Jobs.

"Before Mr. Kelly was definitely selected he promised that all jobs would be filled through the ward committeemen. We all want jobs. But I know that no ward committeeman wants a job at the expense of another ward committeeman or of the taxpayers. For that reason there will be no one chasing Mr. Kelly around. All applications will come through the ward committeemen.

"The job difficulties in Springfield will be ironed out and some of them brought to Chicago. That is all; the meeting is adjourned."

The Democrats at once walked over to the city hall. The special meeting of the council was rapped to order by Acting Mayor Corr at 2:45 o'clock. The newly elected aldermen were given the oath. There are 37 Democrats, 12 Republicans, and Ald. John F. Healy [6th], who is classed as of neither party.

Acting Mayor Corr's resignation was read:

"I hereby tender my resignation as the mayor of the city of Chicago, elected by the city council on March 14, 1933. This resignation is to take effect at once."

On motion of Ald. Quinn the resignation was accepted. Mr. Corr remained as presiding officer for the session, but went back to his rank of alderman.

Forthwith a resolution from Ald. Arvey declared that a vacancy existed in the mayor's chair. It proposed a signed ballot. This provoked a debate. Ald. Clark said while he was for Mr. Kelly, he was against a signed ballot.

"But parliamentary bodies say there can be no secret ballot," said Ald. Arvey. "This signed ballot is in accord with best parliamentary usage."

"It's wrong to hamstring the council for the future," objected Ald. Bowler. "I'm for Kelly, but I object to a signed ballot."

This same point was raised a month ago at the election of Acting Mayor Corr when the council voted against a secret ballot. It was finally adjusted so that each alderman's name was announced as his ballot was taken by the tellers.

An objection to the whole proceedings was made by Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th]. He held the emergency law passed at Springfield to enable the city council to elect a mayor to fill the vacancy from among its members or from outside was unconstitutional.

Ald. Nelson submitted an order directing the corporation counsel to give an opinion as to whether the new law is in conflict with section 24 of the constitution. Action on it was deferred.

"Before the bill was passed the opinion of the attorney general was had," said Ald. Arvey.

Toman Stops Debate.

A lengthy debate on this was checked by Ald. John Toman [23d]. "Let's proceed to a roll call," he said. "We don't want to stay here until Christmas." The Arvey resolution for an open ballot, the aldermanic names to be called off instead of signed, went through, 47 to 3, the negative votes being cast by Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], James C. Moreland [41st], and Ald. Nelson.

Immediately Ald. Arvey presented the resolution nominating Mr. Kelly for mayor. It was signed by the 37 Democratic aldermen, and it read:

"The undersigned aldermen of the city of Chicago have had under consideration the question of the election of a mayor of the city of Chicago. By reason of the fiscal condition of the city, the necessity for prompt payment of school teachers, policemen, firemen and other city employés, and the orderly financing of the city's various activities, it was deemed essential to arrive at a prompt decision of the question as to the person qualified to fill the office of mayor, and as well to have the election held at the earliest possible date.

"The names of several persons of ability and standing in the community were presented and given the fullest consideration. The undersigned aldermen recognize their responsibility to the people of Chicago, and have given the fullest consideration possible to the selection of mayor. We have come to a definite conclusion, and hereby recommend the election of Edward J. Kelly as such mayor. We were moved to that decision by his outstanding ability as an executive in municipal affairs in our community, as president of the south park board, and as the close and trusted adviser of our late lamented mayor, Anton J. Cermak.

Familiar with City's Problems.

"We know that he is fully cognizant of the policies of our late mayor and of the problems that confront the city of Chicago as well as other municipalities in the county of Cook. We feel also that by reason of his advancement in public life from humble station he deeply recognizes the problems of all the people of Chicago, and we present his name with full confidence that he will discharge the duties of mayor with signal ability and with the fullest promise of a successful administration which will reflect credit upon the citizens of the city of Chicago.

"His intimate knowledge of the activities of A Century of Progress by reason of his position as president of the south park board makes him especially qualified to be mayor during the holding of A Century of Progress.

"We hereby tender to him, if elected, our fullest coöperation in the advancement of the policies of our late lamented mayor, particularly in the economical administration of government with consequent benefits to the taxpayers."

"Our choice," said Ald. Arvey, "was sponsored by the party leaders. The Democratic organization unanimously sponsors Mr. Kelly. Our conviction is he will pull Chicago out of its financial muddle."

Republican Seconds Nomination.

Seconding speeches were made by Ald. B. A. Cronson, Republican, who comes from the Kelly and Horner ward, the Fourth, and by Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [35th] and Terrence F. Moran [16th].

"Although a Republican," said Ald. Cronson, "I am glad to second the nomination of Mr. Kelly. I think the Democrats have made a wise and prudent choice."

Ald. Bowler asked for information as to how to spell Kelly—"Has it got one or two 'e's?'"—and some chorister piped up with a bar from the old song, "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?"

On the balloting, Ald. Lindell, Moreland and Nelson asked to be excused from voting. All the other aldermen voted for Kelly.

"I declare Edward J. Kelly the duly elected mayor of Chicago," announced Chairman Corr. A committee composed of Ald. Arvey, Cronson, Terrell, Quinn, Doyle, Toman, Moran, and Bowler was appointed to usher Mr. Kelly into the chamber. He was waiting in an anteroom. The chamber rang with cheers as he entered.

At 4:15 he was administered the oath by Clerk Brady. The photographers' flashlights popped.

"With great pleasure and great relief I present the new mayor of Chicago," said Chairman Corr.

"I move to approve the mayor's $10,000 bond," said Ald. Arvey.

B. F. Hoist His Proxy.

His first official act was the immediate signing of a letter designating Benjamin F. Hoist as his proxy for the signing of tax anticipation warrants of the school board and the city.

Mayor Kelly signed small cardboard slips so that facsimile stamps of his signature might be made for use in the controller's office and at the school board.

In response to calls for a speech Mayor Kelly replied briefly, pledging himself to the Cermak policies. Next his formal statement was distributed, the Nelson resolution for an opinion on the law under which the new mayor was elected was passed, Ald. Corr was thanked for his services as acting mayor for the last month, and the council adjourned.

WARNS AGAINST LASTING RULE BY EMERGENCY ACTS

Ex-Justice Is Speaker at Jefferson Observance.

The emergency acts of the government to combat the depression must be accepted as temporary measures, Floyd E. Thompson, former justice of the Illinois Supreme court, warned yesterday in an address before the Iroquois club at the Morrison hotel. He spoke at a luncheon celebrating the birthday anniversary of Thomas Jefferson, which was observed yesterday in meetings and in public schools throughout the city.

"In emergencies such as we are now experiencing we are always endangering the liberties of the people, and frequently have advocated doctrines of government dangerous to the freedom of this country," former Justice Thompson said.

"Thus the alien and sedition law, opposed to American principles, was enacted, and later we were ashamed of it and repealed it, but during the world war we found ourselves putting the same thing back on our statutes.

Recalls Lincoln's Policies.

"Abraham Lincoln's ideas of liberty were identical with those of Jefferson in peace time. But during war time many measures were passed which were variance with his peace time ideas.

"And now we have problems so great, and affecting so many people, that they are comparable to war time problems. The American people have accepted the actions of the government, actions which in any other time could not be accepted as American in principle. But it is up to the people to accept them only as necessary expedients for the time being, never as permanent measures.

"This new measure of enlisting men and sending them to the forests to work for $1 a day—it isn't one that any one for a moment could support, except as temporary. But these young men are already on the rolls as publicly supported persons, and it is better for them to be out there in the forests, busy, than to be idle, when their families must be fed anyway.

Emergency Measures, He Says.

"So it is with the farm measures now pending. They are not to be tolerated by any one except as an emergency action. They are contrary to all fundamental laws of American government. But something must be done to raise the prices farmers get for their products."

Pointing out that "the hungry must be fed and the unclothed must be clothed," former Justice Thompson declared:

"That we have permitted such conditions to arise gives premise to the argument of the communist, and we must change the truth of the premise.

Blames Voters' Indifference.

"We cannot deny the premise until we change it. But we can deny the communist's argument that the fault is in the form of our government. The real cause is the carelessness of the American people. We get concerned only when an emergency presents itself. We have elected, through indifference, self-seeking, irresponsible public servants who have not taken their counsel from the people.

"If the freedom of the ballot is lost, it is because we have voluntarily surrendered it. We have seen men high in the public trust betray it to further their own interests.

"We are no worse than men of Jefferson's day. We are better. The business ethics, the moral standards of today are higher than those of the American people 150 years ago. There are men, too, who, like Jefferson, devote themselves to the public good. But we have been indifferent to the responsibilities of citizenship."

Compares Jefferson, Hamilton.

Comparing Thomas Jefferson with Alexander Hamilton, former Justice Thompson declared:

"Alexander Hamilton had no faith in the people. He believed only the strong should break through to the top. Jefferson did have faith in the intelligence of the people. Yet we can see that Hamilton was not altogether wrong, when we view the carelessness with which the American people have received the liberties they were guaranteed by Jefferson."

Describing conditions of the colonies during the days of Jefferson, when there were fewer white persons than there are now in Cook county, Mr. Thompson pointed out how the personality of a man impressed itself on the people more forcibly than now.

Cites Rise of Dictatorships.

"Now a man must make a show to appeal to the people," he said. "It is only through sensational means that he can impress his personality on them. Thus we see the rise of dictatorships—those of Russia, Italy and Germany. A dictatorship could not occur in the times of Jefferson, when a man could be measured and known by the constituents who put him in power.

"No individual has contributed more to the American system of government than Jefferson, even Washington. He fully appreciated the dangers of too much freedom. He knew people needed checks, but he also knew the government needed checks.

"Thus he insisted that the constitution contain clauses guaranteeing freedom of speech, of religion, freedom of the press and a free education for all men and women.

"On all sides Jefferson was attacked. He was running against the stream. He did not select popular causes. But he won.

Warns Against Tyranny.

"There never can be any suppression of one part of the people by another part without having tyranny. If we are to be followers of the principles of Thomas Jefferson we cannot support the theory that the power of the majority should suppress the voice of the minority.

"Any communist or advocate of what we consider anti-American principles has a right to stand upon the platform and express his views. I detest them, but I know that the moment any man is denied the right of free speech, free thought, and free expression, at that moment my own liberty is imperilled."

MRS. ROOSEVELT FALLS OFF HORSE INTO MUD PUDDLE

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—The bystanders, who were all excited, called it a spill.

The rider, who was not a bit dismayed, said it was only a slide.

Anyway, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt got off her horse right suddenly this morning in the middle of a mud puddle on the bridle path near the Lincoln memorial.

The story in back of the incident is this:

This morning at 7:30 Mrs. Roosevelt, as is her custom, went riding on Dot, the sorrel mare she brought down from Hyde Park. With her went Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr., wife of the governor of the Farm Credits corporation, and Miss Margaret LeHand, secretary to the President.

Dot, it seems, was a little skittish. And when she came bang up against a mud puddle she shied. Mrs. Roosevelt, so she explained later, thought it would be more pleasant to slide off than to be catapulted over the horse's head. So she slid down, right into the mud puddle. Mrs. Morgenthau and Miss LeHand, riding in back, were frightened lest Dot trample Mrs. Roosevelt.

But before they could get near, Dot had stepped over her mistress and her mistress, spattered thickly with mud, had scrambled back on the horse.

Mrs. Roosevelt insisted on finishing the ride.

OBSERVE 190TH ANNIVERSARY OF JEFFERSON BIRTH

Charlottesville, Va., April 13.—(AP)—The 190th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson was commemorated today with exercises at Monticello, his home, and at the University of Virginia, which he founded.

The celebration was opened with the founder's day program at the university this morning. This afternoon the visitors made a pilgrimage to Monticello. The observance was brought to a close late today with the placing of floral tributes on the tomb of the author of the Declaration.

One of the wreaths was placed by Capt. Walter Vernon of the United States navy, personal aid to President Roosevelt.

Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie institution of Washington, who was the founder's day speaker, chose for the occasion a discussion of how the university might make a continuing contribution to truth and progress.

Court Upholds Prison Term for "Million Dollar" Fence

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday upheld the 10 year prison sentence imposed on John Sovetsky, known as the "million dollar fence," who was convicted of possessing merchandise stolen from interstate shipments. Sovetsky was convicted several times in state courts of receiving stolen property, but each time obtained a reversal on technical grounds and it was not until the government took cognizance of his business that a jury's verdict against him was upheld.

For more than ten years police had been arresting Sovetsky and finding stolen property in his store. He and his wife, Martha, operated the Highway Clothing company at 6234 South Western avenue, with a partner, Sam Ginsberg.

Five years ago a search of Sovetsky's store resulted in the finding of the loot of several burglaries in Green Bay, Wis. Five men later captured and sent to Green Bay for trial confessed that they were employed by Sovetsky, who sent them out at night with moving vans to take the entire contents of many small clothing stores.

The burglars went to prison, but Sovetsky could not be taken to Wisconsin for trial because former Gov. Len Small refused to sign extradition papers. Three convictions followed in Chicago, but he evaded prison on each of them, although a constant fight was waged against him by the Chicago crime commission.

Finally Detectives James Kerr and Harvey Guynn captured a gang of thieves who had stolen $10,000 worth of clothing from the Pennsylvania and Great Western railroads. Some confessed and involved Sovetsky as the man who bought the stolen property from them. Sovetsky's partner, Ginsberg, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

A federal jury found Sovetsky guilty and on June 30, 1932, Federal Judge John P. Barnes imposed sentence. Yesterday Judges Evan A. Evans, Will M. Sparks, and Robert C. Baltzell approved the sentence without the formality of a written opinion. Sovetsky has been in custody since his conviction, bail having been denied.

Mrs. J. A. Patten Rewards Captor of Extortionist

Lieut. Carl Ekman, head of the Evanston detective bureau, yesterday was awarded the $100 presented monthly by Mrs. James A. Patten to the Evanston policeman doing the most meritorious work. The accomplishment for which the reward was given was the arrest of Axel Peterson, 1212 Elmwood avenue, Evanston, after he had written extortion letters to Mrs. Patten.

Woman Paralysis Victim Returned to Respirator

Mrs. Caroline LaPlante, 37 years old, 1826 South Cuyler avenue, Berwyn, who was released a few days ago after spending ten days in the respirator at the Frences E. Willard hospital, was returned to the respirator yesterday when her breathing became labored. Mrs. LaPlante has been suffering from paralysis of the respiratory muscles, complicated by an inflamation of the brain.

Mrs. Kelly Accepts Role of Official Hostess Reluctantly

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

It's grand to have a capable man in the mayor's office—if he's somebody else's husband—thinks Mrs. Edward J. Kelly. In a civic sense she is delighted that her husband is mayor; she believes the city couldn't have picked a better official. But, privately, she is dismayed almost beyond words.

That is why, when Mayor Kelly phoned the news to his wife yesterday, he added, "I'm going to toss my hat in first when I come home tonight," and knew, when he heard her forgiving laugh, that he wouldn't have it fired back at him. For a group of newspaper men and women in the adjoining room already had brought the news to the big brick house at 4821 Ellis avenue and the first surprise was over. Anyway, Mrs. Kelly isn't given to temperamental outbursts.

Red Cross Nurse in France.

Years younger than any of her predecessors as official hostess of Chicago—and feminine enough to refuse to be specific about her years—Mrs. Kelly may, quite conceivably, become the most popular mayor's wife in the city's history despite her aversion to the rôle.

She is as intensively domestic as her husband is community minded. She is tall and svelte, with rippling dark hair and merry Celtic blue eyes. Her manner is easy, innately gracious, and her talent for the part of life she loves the most is demonstrated in every incident connected with the large establishment on Ellis avenue, where the domestic wheels slip smoothly through the daily routine.

Once upon a time she was a nurse in France, a volunteer who served with the American Red Cross, not sufficiently trained to handle intricate medical cases, but turning a hand to cooking and serving the A. E. F. troops. Before that she was Nona Margaret Noll, a schoolgirl at the Sacred Heart academy in Kansas City, Mo., her home town, obscure but happy.

Married Here in 1922.

After the death of his first wife Edward J. Kelly happened to be in Denver at the same time the Kansas City girl was visiting there. They met at a dinner party given by a mutual friend, she related yesterday. Some time thereafter, in 1922, they were married in Chicago and took up a residence on the south side, where all four brothers and all four sisters of Mayor Kelly have always had their homes. His mother, Mrs. Stephen Kelly, still lives at 3115 South Morgan street.

In the restful, spacious study on the second floor of the house the wife of the mayor received callers. In a hostess gown of bois de rose crêpe with a girdle of a deeper hue she was recuperating from a visit to a physician's office for treatment for a head infection. Her manner remained as warm, in spite of her indisposition and the news she candidly regretted hearing, as though this had been an enjoyable occasion.

Likes Athletics and Racing.

"There's little to tell about me," she protested to queries about herself. "I used to play golf, but not any more. Home and children are my only interests—what I love most. I'm terribly fond of watching athletics of all kinds, though—football, baseball, polo, boxing, wrestling, and, most of all, horse racing. I adore that."

Into the room sidled Stephen, the infant of the family group, a friendly little tot of two years, still struggling with his vocabulary. He and Joseph and Patricia, the 6 year old twins, are adopted children who have been told from infancy that they are chosen children, especially selected by their parents, and correspondingly proud of the fact. Their unassuming good manners and the records of the twins as among the best students at the Faulkner school, near their home, are sufficient indorsement of their foster mother's genius for handling youngsters.

Too Busy for Club Life.

Without apology and with another laugh Mrs. Kelly retorted "I'm not sure" to a question as to whether she is a member of the Democratic women's organization of the city. She has never been active in any organization, she said, not caring for club life and because the children demand so much of her attention. For A Century of Progress, however, she has a reserve fund of special interest.

"That's one thing I am really interested in and excited about," she said. "I'm confident it's going to be a huge success."

"What do you think about your daddy, Stephen? Is he the best man in Chicago?" teased the photographer with whom the littlest Kelly had struck up a friendship.

"Tsoor!" exploded Stephen, interpreted as "Sure!"

Delay Brunker Slander Suit; Report Settlement

Oshkosh, Wis., April 13.—[Special.]—Attorneys refused today to comment on a report that a settlement may be made out of court in the $150,000 damage suit of Albert R. Brunker against the parents of his former wife, Mrs. Margaret Rupple of Pasadena. The defendants, Mr. and Mrs. George Gaylord, charged with alienation of affections and with slander, are in California. Judge Fred Beglinger of the Circuit court had ordered them to be in court today or be declared in contempt, but both sides agreed to delay the trial 24 hours.

HAT shapes change—but the preference for this particular style of hat does not waver an inch with men who have worn them. Theirs is the firm conviction that a Borsalino is the only hat they'd ever think of owning.

There's something about this loyalty of men who cling to the wearing of these hats tenaciously which is easy to understand once you possess one. The finest of felt, the most exacting of workmanship, the strictest attention to detail—that's what turns out these hats that have never departed from their original standard of perfection and for that reason they have defied successfully the advances of time, weather, and vacillating style.

BRITON CHARGES G. P. U. FORCED HIM TO 'CONFESS'

Denies Statement at Trial in Moscow.

MOSCOW, April 13.—(AP)—For five hours tonight L. C. Thornton, one of six British engineers on trial for sabotage and espionage, sat in the witness stand of a packed courtroom and denied, item by item, a confession which he said had been wrung from him by the G. P. U., Russian secret police.

Roginsky, the assistant prosecutor, a domineering cross-examiner, deluged him with questions and accusations. He read a deposition Thornton made the day after he was arrested stating that all the 27 employés of the British Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical company in Russia acted as spies for the British secret service.

Denies Entire Deposition.

"I deny the whole thing," Thornton said, speaking with his lips close to an amplifying microphone so that none of the courtroom crowd could miss what he said.

"They asked me to confess and I confessed. I signed that deposition under the pressure of so many questions. Yes, I wrote it, and now I deny it. When I wrote it it meant nothing to me when I wrote. I lied against myself and against the others."

The statement related in detail how the company's employés, directed by a British official of the company named C. E. Richards, engaged in spying operations. Richards was identified as chief of the Metro-Vickers export department. The deposition also identified him as a member of the British secret service.

What Statement Said.

Fifteen of the 27 employés, Thornton's statement said, engaged in collecting political and military information. The others collected economic information, and all of it was sent to Richards in London.

"None of it is true," said Thornton. "The men who work for me gave me information about the operation of machinery installed by my firm, and about general conditions at the Zlatoust electric station in the Urals. This information was necessary to the firm. I never received any military information."

When he signed the statement he was frightened, Thornton said, but he thought he would have a chance later to correct it. That was his story and he stuck to it despite the scornful laughter of the audience, the prosecutor, and the judge.

"What were you afraid of?" presiding Judge Ulrich demanded.

The spectators leaned forward in their chairs, for they thought Thornton would tell what he knows about the G. P. U. But the witness ignored the question.

"Anything I said during the preliminary inquiry does not count," Thornton said. "It cannot be used against me because it is not true."

When Courage Returned.

"Why?" asked the prosecutor.

"Because I was nervous," Thornton replied. "This is a shocking charge. I lost my courage."

"When did your courage return?" asked the judge.

Thornton gasped, then braced both his hands on the front of the prisoners' dock, and said firmly, "April 4 at six p. m.," the hour when he was released from the G. P. U. prison. This time no one failed to understand what Thornton meant.

"What did you sign the confession for?" Roginsky then asked the witness.

"Because my answers were suggested by your questions," Thornton replied.

"Were you hypnotized?" said Roginsky sarcastically and the audience tittered.

Before he was called to the stand William H. MacDonald, another of the accused, was confronted with a similar confession. He produced a sensation when he said it had been drawn from him by the methods the police used.

Admits Guilt on Stand.

It looked for a moment as if he were going to repudiate the confession, but later he acknowledged his guilt of all the charges against him.

"They showed me a statement by Thornton," MacDonald said, "in which he testified he had used me to collect information. I considered it useless to deny it."

MacDonald, a tall pale man with a goatee, lame since boyhood, stood while the prosecutor questioned him. Every time MacDonald gave an answer the prosecutor turned to Thornton, sitting in the prisoner's dock.

"Do you admit that?" he would ask. Each time Thornton's answer was "No."

This was the second time in two days that MacDonald confessed his guilt.

Admits Paying Expense Account.

He did admit, however, that he had paid the equivalent of $1,500 for "current expenses" to a Russian named Dolgov, who was identified as an agent provocateur.

"There are no spies in our company and we do no spy's work," said Thornton.

But MacDonald said: "I systematically collected information and I supposed other engineers did the same."

As he was led through the examination Thornton admitted that he had received information concerning the political ideas of workmen at the Zlatoust power plant.

"My firm gives soviet Russia credits to buy machinery," he said. "That is why we are interested in general conditions."

"So," said Roginsky, "you investigated the stability of soviet power through your agents."

Defendant Cut Short.

Thornton said he had. Then he turned to Judge Ulrich.

"Comrade judge," he began, but Roginsky cut him short.

"Citizen judge to you," he said. Thornton did not finish what he had started to say.

Roginsky took up the deposition again.

"Here," he said, "you say that you and Monkhouse [Thornton's chief, who also is a defendant] collected spy information."

"I object to that term spy," Thornton retorted. "We got information only of interest to our firm."

Roginsky told Allan Monkhouse to stand up. It was the first time he had been asked to speak since the trial began yesterday. Requested to confirm or deny Thornton's testimony, he upheld the witness in every particular.

P. E. Olyenik, one of the Russian employés of Metropolitan-Vickers who are also accused of sabotage and espionage, was questioned regarding his part in the company's operations. He said he had given Thornton information concerning railroad transport and conditions at the Zlatoust plant.

"I deny that," Thornton cried. "My company is not interested in such things."

Woman Accuses Englishmen.

Anna Kutuzova, a Metropolitan-Vickers employé upon whose testimony the present charges are based, also was questioned.

She said Thornton and Monkhouse had discussed plans for sabotage in her presence. Both the Englishmen denied it. The woman said she was on unusually friendly terms with both men because she had no other friends. Her own countrymen shunned her because she worked for foreigners.

It was after 10 o'clock when the session finally adjourned until morning. Thornton, a youngish man whose brown hair is turning gray, was still on the stand, but he seemed to be as fresh at the end as he was when the questioning began.

FARLEY URGES 2C LETTER RATE ON LOCAL MAIL

Test May Restore It Throughout U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—Reduction of postage on local letters to 2 cents an ounce is to be made shortly under legislation authorizing the President to lower or increase all postage rates until July 1, 1934, Postmaster General Farley so announced today. If the local reduction produces more revenue, the present 3 cent letter rate will be revised to restore the former 2 cents an ounce. Changes in parcel post and other rates also are contemplated.

Confers with Harrison.

"This decision," Mr. Farley said was reached after conference with Senator Harrison of the senate appropriations committee and also with Representative Doughton of the ways and means committee and with Senator McKellar and Representative Mead, chairmen of the postoffice and post roads committee of the senate and house.

"The first step to be taken under this program will be to recommend to the President the restoration of the 2 cent rate on all local first class matter, that is to say, upon first class mail which is delivered within the limits of the postoffice in which it originates. It is my hope that this experimental recognition of the widespread public demand for a lower postage rate will result in an increased amount of business for the department. All users of the mail will recognize the fact that if this reduction should actually result in increased revenue for the postoffice department, the President will then have ample ground upon which to direct the restoration of the 2 cent postage rate for all first class mail.

For Increased Volume.

"The investigations of the department indicate that local mail can be carried without loss to the government for 2 cents. A restoration of the old volume of local mail at the 2 cent rate would be a stimulus to all phases of the postoffice business and necessarily to the general business of the country."

RUMANIA PROBES QUEER POISONING OF 23 HUSBANDS

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, April 13.—Husband poisoning on the same grand scale as that which occurred in Hungary two years ago is being investigated in the Vilagos district near Arad.

Twenty-three men whose wives had grown tired of them are alleged to have fallen victims to an old woman named Duma Fluroca. She has already confessed carrying on the grim business, supplying poison or administering it for the last ten years. She said she cannot remember the total number of her victims.

Mrs. Fluroca's husband testified that he knew the nature of her activities, but feared her so much that he was not only afraid to reveal them but would not eat food himself until she tasted it first. As a result of Mrs. Fluroca's confession a number of widows have been arrested and interrogated by a commission which is preparing the case.

GETS PRISON TERM

BRITISH OFFICER SENTENCED TO PRISON AS SPY

Gets Five Years; Thrown Out of Army.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 13.—Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart, "the officer in London tower" who was tried before a court martial recently on charges of selling information to a foreign power, today was sentenced to five years' penal servitude and dishonorably discharged from the army. The king himself confirmed the sentence.

The lieutenant, a member of a distinguished military family, was convicted on seven of ten charges. The prison sentence will be served in a civil prison. The officer will not, however, be "drummed out" of the army, as that custom of degradation is no longer practiced.

Accused of Selling Information.

Lieut. Baillie-Stewart, who was an officer in the aristocratic Seaforth Highlanders of which the prince of Wales is colonel-in-chief, was accused of selling information during and following a trip to Berlin to a man known as Otto Waldemar Obst. Obst was alleged to have been the agent of a foreign power. The defendant denied the charge.

It was alleged that their go-between was a girl known as "Marie Louise" of Berlin. Lieut. Baillie-Stewart's defense was that he had a love affair with her in Berlin and that she had sent him $450 in consideration of relations into which he had entered with her.

67 Days in Tower.

The lieutenant spent 67 days in the Tower of London before the court martial and has been confined there since the hearings, pending a review of the findings by high military authorities.

The fact that a Seaforth Highlanders officer had been arrested on violation of the official secrets act was announced by the government before the court martial sessions. His identity was not made known for some time after his arrest.

ALDERMEN SEEK NEW POWERS TO HOLD INQUIRIES

Two members of the city council committee on committees, which is drafting rules for the new council, yesterday explained their purpose in recommending that the general assembly give the council the power to subpœna witnesses and put them under oath during investigations.

The two aldermen, J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the steering committee, and B. A. Cronson [4th], the committee's only Republican member, said that they proposed also to provide against an indiscriminate use of the requested authority. They stated that their intention is to have the subpœna and oath giving power exercised only when either two-thirds or three-fourths of the aldermen consent.

"The council is the judge of its own membership," said Ald. Arvey, "and in aldermanic election contests it is powerless to get at the true facts. If witnesses in these contests make preposterous statements the council, having no power to put them under oath, has no power to punish them.

"Our power to put witnesses under oath should not be restricted to election contests. Some of the aldermen believe that there is evidence of collusive bidding on city cement contracts, and we should have the power to get at the facts."

SPAIN MOVES FOR A QUIET GOOD FRIDAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, April 13.—Both the Spanish republic and the Roman Catholic church today took steps to avoid unpleasantness on Good Friday, which this year is the anniversary of former King Alfonso's flight from Spain and the proclamation of the new régime.

The government reiterated its stern orders against street celebrations on its second birthday which will be observed officially Saturday.

The church, in response to this bid for good will, announced the nomination of Bishop Boma of Tarragona to the archbishopric of Toledo. He is said to be acceptable to the Republican elements.

3 BOY BURGLARS HELD; FAMILIES ON RELIEF ROLLS

Three youths whose families are drawing public relief funds were arrested yesterday by Hyde Park police and confessed a number of burglaries.

They are Leroy Smith, 22 years old, 6015 South Halsted street; Charles Schuman, 18, of 823 East 46th street, and Thomas Lynch, 16, of 8816 Aberdeen street. They are taken into custody by Sergeants James Battle and Joseph McCabe.

One of the victims was Mrs. Margaret Curtis, 4155 Drexel boulevard. Bonds valued at $1,500 taken from her home were recovered. The youths also had raided the home of Marcus [Studdy] Looney, a union business agent, at 4001 Ellis avenue, and the flat of S. U. Sugarman, 825 East 46th street.

ENDS HIS LIFE WITH GUN.

George G. Bassham, 26 years old, of Matewan, W. Va., who had been attending a trade school in Chicago, killed himself with a revolver yesterday in his room at 1453 West Monroe street after writing a note saying he was "tired of living."

MAURICE L ROTHSCHILD

MINNEAPOLIS — State at Jackson CHICAGO — ST. PAUL

OLSON FOLLOWS THREAT BY NEW PLEA FOR RELIEF

Minnesota Governor Asks Legislative Action.

St. Paul, Minn., April 13.—[Special.] Following up his threat to declare martial law in Minnesota and confiscate wealth to prevent "human misery," Gov. Floyd B. Olson today made a new plea to the legislature to permit use of the state's cash and credit to "take care of its own."

The Reconstruction Finance corporation, he said, positively will not loan any more money for relief purposes in this state unless the state itself agrees to use some of its own resources for the same purpose.

The governor made his threat yesterday in a speech on the capitol steps before a crowd of demonstrators. Continued delay in passing necessary legislation, he said, can have but one result, a declaration of martial law and confiscation of necessities to feed, clothe and shelter the needy.

One Measure Remaining.

The one measure hanging fire in the governor's relief program is a proposed amendment to the "calamity law" to make the law include cases of extreme economic distress. "This or its equivalent is imperative," the governor said. "I don't care how it is done, but it must be done.

"I virtually had to take a pauper's oath that the state cannot take care of its own in order to get money from the R. F. C.," said the governor. "Now the R. F. C. asks, 'What is Minnesota going to do? Is your rich state broke or simply unwilling to do anything by itself?'

"If nothing is done and we can't get any money either from the state or the federal government, the only thing to do is declare martial law and take the things needed."

Clash in Senate.

The governor's message caused a clash late today between Senator A. J. Rockne, finance committee chairman, and the presiding officer of the state senate, Lieut. Gov. K. K. Solberg.

The message just before the noon recess was referred to Senator Rockne's committee. When the session was resumed, the Goodhue county senator rose to a point of personal privilege.

"The governor's message," he said, "was referred to the finance committee in a contumacious manner, as it is in this committee that the trouble lies. I have been attacked before, through some scurrilous newspaper publicity, but I resent the imputation in referring this message immediately to this committee.

Other Measures Out.

"The only relief measure now before the finance committee is one which would increase from $500,000 to $1,000,000 the amount of certificates of indebtedness which might be issued by the state relief board. All other relief measures have been reported out of this committee speedily and properly. I think this conduct is nothing but political propaganda."

The lieutenant governor said he could take Senator's Rockne's rebuke with good grace.

"I did this on the spur of the moment," Mr. Solberg said, "with no intention of casting any reflections on the finance committee."

Senator Rockne said Mr. Solberg's explanation was satisfactory and then explained that if there are communities in Minnesota which are unable to finance their relief requirements he has yet to see any bill introduced to provide the necessary state appropriations.

As this interchange was occurring in the state capital more than 500 demonstrators paraded through Minneapolis streets with signs demanding "Tax the rich to feed the poor."

TECHNOCRACY CHIEF LOSES FIGHT TO WIN OVER TECHNOLOGISTS

Howard Scott, who became nationally conspicuous several months ago as the originator and chief exponent of a new and startling economic theory which he labeled technocracy, came to Chicago from New York two days ago.

His purpose was to win to the standard of technocracy the recently organized All-America Technological society, a group of engineers of which Brig. Gen. William I. Westervelt, technical director of Sears, Roebuck & Co., is the head. Mr. Scott returned to New York last night.

Shortly before he left a reporter who had tried for two days to see him, found him at the Morrison hotel. Mr. Scott was angry. He admitted conferring for two days with the directors of the technological society, but refused to discuss the outcome.

E. J. Costello, secretary of the society, supplied this information and the reason for Mr. Scott's anger.

"He came out here with the idea that he would go back to New York with the All America Technological society in his pocket," said Mr. Costello. "Our directors listened with patience and courtesy to his arguments for two days. Then they informed him plainly and emphatically that the society would under no circumstance have anything to do with technocracy."

Gen. Westervelt, who is in New York, has agreed to meet Scott there, although he already has expressed complete agreement with the directors' attitude, according to Costello.

FIRST PAY DAY IN MONTHS FOR W. PARKS TODAY

New Board Busy Clearing Up Financial Tangle.

President Harry Joseph of the west park board announced yesterday that the park employés would get two weeks' pay today. They have a year and eight months' pay due them, and in the last 20 months have received only two weeks' pay in cash.

President Joseph and his colleagues on the west park board have been in control of the park system only since their appointment by Gov. Horner after his inauguration last January. In the last three months they have been making strenuous efforts to clear up the financial wreckage left in the park system by the preceding board headed by W. R. James.

Pay Rolls Cut 45%.

Already, President Joseph pointed out yesterday, the new board has cut pay rolls 45 per cent below the levels of the James régime. The pay day today is for the period from March 1 to 16, the first two weeks of the board's present fiscal year, and aggregates $61,000. This monthly pay roll of $122,000 may be compared to that of last July, under the James board, which was $221,062.

About 85 per cent of the present board employés are civil service workers, who were also employed during the long payless periods of the James régime. One reason for choosing a recent pay period for payment, President Joseph pointed out, was that the board will investigate fully the pay claims piled up under the previous administration.

Plans to Withhold Pay.

"If I have my way," said President Joseph, "those political payrollers who never came to work will never get a dime from this board. The old board had no timekeepers. We have installed a time keeping system and any one who is on our pay roll has to put in a full day's work.

"We hope by the adoption of additional economies and a thorough reorganization of the park system along strict business lines, and in accordance with the civil service law, to restore the west parks to the high standard of excellence and beauty which, years ago, made them one of the great assets of Chicago."

Today's pay day for the west parks is to come out of some 1928 tax collections which were not affected by the subsequent orgy of tax warrant issues by the preceding board, and out of miscellaneous revenues of the parks. Bankers have given the present board hope that when it straightens out the financial tangle which it found awaiting it further pay days may be financed by tax warrant sales.

County Employés Paid.

County employés, who have waited longer for their pay checks than any other group of public employés except those of the school and west park systems, were paid yesterday for the first half of September. Funds for the pay roll and mothers' pension payments, aggregating $425,000, were collected by County Treasurer McDonough as fees in collection of 1931 taxes.

Screams of Women Rout Church League Robbers

Mrs. Agnes Sapkewitz, 3000 South Kostner avenue, secretary, was receiving dues last night from women members of the St. Agnes Benevolent league of St. Anne's church, in the society's rooms on the second floor at 1814 South Leavitt street, when two young men armed with revolvers entered. The women screamed in unison and the robbers fled.

FEDERAL BARGE LINE TO SEND VESSELS HERE

Secretary Dern O. K.'s Plan for Service July 1.

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—Extension to Chicago of the federal barge line service on the newly completed lakes to gulf waterway was approved today by Secretary of War George H. Dern. He acted on the unanimous recommendation of the chairman and advisory council of the Inland Waterways corporation.

The new service which will extend from Peoria, the present limit of barge operation, to Chicago is expected to begin July 1. The extension was made practicable, waterway officials said, with the completion of the channel between Peoria and Chicago, and the development of a new type towboat which will be able to clear bridge obstructions in the sanitary district canal.

Will Change Lineup.

Due to the 16½ foot bridge clearance on the waterway above Peoria the large "tows" normally using the waterway will be broken up at Brandon Road pool in Peoria, inland waterway officials stated, and will be taken into Chicago by the new type towboat recently developed to provide the necessary bridge clearance. The larger towboats operating below Peoria, it was explained, are not able to clear the bridges in the sanitary district canal.

While officials of the Inland Waterways corporation are intending to put a number of the smaller type towboats in use on the waterway as soon as they are available, it is understood a similar vessel now being constructed at Memphis is to be leased to start the service. This boat will operate on a shuttle service between Peoria and Chicago until more of the smaller type vessels can be obtained.

Terminal facilities in Chicago are expected to be located at the foot of Damen avenue, where the state now owns a terminal, formerly owned by the Santa Fe and Illinois Railroad company.

Seeks More Funds.

A bill is now pending in the state legislature, it is understood, authorizing the use of $200,000 owed to the state by the Santa Fe and Illinois in the modernization of this terminal, which now includes a million bushel elevator and railroad tracks. The $200,000 would be used in the construction of a freight warehouse and in other minor improvements at the terminal.

The Chicago regional port authority, it is said, recommended the use of the $200,000 in the development of the Damen avenue facilities for the barge line terminal. The terminal itself was transferred to the state by the Santa Fe and Illinois in return for a similar parcel of land previously taken by the state in return for a debt from the railroad. The $200,000 was paid by the railroad in addition as a part of the transaction and is still uncollected by the state. Legislation to authorize its use in development of the terminal for the barge line is necessary.

J. C. Collier, 63 year old farmer, has been hiccoughing for 93 hours. He was seized by the strange malady following an operation. Jacob Hammonds has been hiccoughing for two weeks and Fred Tillman, farmer, died a few days ago following a nine day siege.

H. H. ROGERS SILENT ON REPORT WIFE IS TO SEEK DIVORCE

MRS. HENRY H. ROGERS.
[Acme Photo.]

New York, April 13.—[Special.]—Henry Huddleston Rogers, the Standard Oil multimillionaire, refused today to comment upon a report that his wife, the former Mrs. Basil Miles, is in Reno, Nev., seeking a divorce.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers sailed for Europe on Jan. 14. Mr. Rogers returned to his Southampton home six weeks ago, but it is reported that his wife did not return with him.

Mrs. Rogers, a Viennese, has been married three times. Her first husband was Samuel Savell, a New York engineer, whom she divorced in Paris. Her second husband, Basil Miles, attaché of the American embassy in Paris, died in 1928.

In the following year Mr. Rogers and his first wife, Mary Benjamin Rogers, were divorced in Utrecht, Holland, and in July, 1929, Mrs. Miles and Mr. Rogers were married in Paris.

Mr. Rogers' daughter, Millicent, eloped with Count Ludwig Salm in 1924. They were divorced and she married Arturo Ramos, an Argentinian.

CUSTOMS AGENT FOR U. S. SEIZED IN HAITI FOR FRAUD

Washington, D. C., April 13.—(AP)—David P. Johnson, an American customs collector, whom the state department said had confessed to taking bribes and defrauding the Haitian government of customs revenue, surrendered today to the authorities in Haiti to face trial.

In surrendering to the native police in Port au Prince, Johnson refused to discuss the matter.

A statement from the state department said his immunity to arrest was withdrawn after a long investigation which the department asserted was instituted by the American receiver and financial adviser to Haiti, as a result of conversations between high officials here and Norman Armour, the American minister to Haiti, during a recent visit.

"The fraud consisted in underweighing the bales of merchandise consigned to the importers [Zirke Bros. of Port au Prince], duties being payable on the weight of each package," the department's statement said.

It added that Johnson had confessed to accepting bribes from Zirke Bros.

Under a treaty between Haiti and the United States, Johnson was not subject to trial by the Haitian courts without specific action of the American government.

Johnson served in collecting Haitian customs under an arrangement made for meeting the native government's obligations to American interests.

ASK REMOVAL OF HUEY LONG FROM U.S. SENATE

Home Folks Charge He Is Dishonest.

from the 150 millions of bonds issued during Long's administration as Louisiana governor. As governor and senator, it was charged, Long had used the power of the state banking department and the tax commission for selfish purposes.

"Because of the corruption of the systems of justice there is no assurance in endeavoring to obtain relief by action of the state," the petition concluded. "The only hope for relief is through the senate of the United States and federal agencies.

"Therefore we appeal to you, as president of the senate, to cause the proper investigation to be instituted and conducted that the specific facts and instances in support of the above charges may be presented. Evidence is available by the use of the proper processes of the senate to substantiate all charges."

The petition was signed by John M. Parker, Joseph Cohan, D. I. Norwood, F. A. Percy, E. M. Percy, R. B. Lewis, W. L. Thompson, F. C. Spohn, John A. Ard, W. L. Mahoney, H. J. Campbell, H. M. Stewart, C. E. Thibodaux, L. G. Winston, G. T. Barrow, J. B. Norwood, Elmer Robb, J. Hamilton, Charles M. Butler, F. B. Laurason, R. E. Thompson, and E. H. Mahoney.

Text of Parker Telegram.

The telegram from former Gov. Parker to Vice President Garner said:

"At this critical period in world affairs it is to the lasting credit of the overwhelming majority of the United States senate that regardless of party they loyally supported our President in his earnest effort to restore prosperity and happiness, and no demagogue should be permitted to interfere with his work. Senator Huey P. Long knows neither truth, honesty nor decency. His black record in our state is nationally known."

In a letter sent with the petitions by Mr. Parker he asserted that "if the records of the United States government as shown by the income tax department and by the secret service are examined, it will convince you of the utter unfitness of this creature to be worthy of a seat in the highest body of the United States."

Ex-Gov. Parker then makes the charge that Long is "a dangerous paranoiac" and that he should be confined, and ends his letter to the Vice President with these words:

"I would apreciate your having this read to the members of the senate, as prompt action should be taken as today he is the greatest menace to American decency and civilization."

AILING BABY'S PARENTS BLOCK POLICE, DOCTOR

Fight Eye Operation on Infant.

New York, April 13.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. John Vasko barricaded themselves in their house in Hastings-on-Hudson this morning and threatened to pour boiling water on a physician and a policeman who attempted to get in to give aid to the Vaskos' two year old twin daughters, Helen and Anna.

Helen, according to an eye specialist, is suffering from a malignant tumor of the left eye which will kill her unless her eye and part of her optic nerve are removed. The other baby fell ill last night.

Vasko and his wife, recent immigrants from Czechoslovakia, do not trust doctors and they refused to permit an operation upon Helen, even after Judge George W. Smyth in White Plains ordered it. The order was appealed and the Vaskos locked themselves in their home.

Last night Anna began to run a temperature. Relustantly Mr. and Mrs. Vasko called the police, who summoned Dr. Michael Bender.

Already terrified by the order for an operation on Helen, the parents refused to admit the doctor. The doors and windows were all locked and braced with furniture. When the policeman rapped on the door, Vasko called out there was a pot of boiling water on the stove and he would pour it on the first person forcing an entrance.

Francis R. Fay of Yonkers, attorney for the Vasko family and the child's guardian ad litem, said he was preparing to submit to the Appellate division in Brooklyn a brief opposing Judge Smyth's order for an operation on Helen.

IOWA PASSES 3.2 BEER LAW, 31-19, BY SENATE VOTE

Local Option Clause Is First Eliminated.

Des Moines, Ia., April 13.—[Special.]—The Iowa senate this afternoon passed the bill authorizing sale of 3.2 per cent beer. The vote was 31 to 19. Earlier the senate had defeated a local option amendment to the beer bill.

It would have made optional, instead of mandatory, the issuance of permits for retailing beer. A similar amendment lost in the house.

A compromise on Senator George Patterson's effort to divide beer retail license fees between cities and counties was accepted late today with little opposition. The compromise provides that the fees be divided equally between cities and all counties which do not have a city of 10,000 inhabitants.

It will be necessary for the house to concur in amendments before the bill can be signed by Gov. Herring.

An amendment proposed by Senator Chris Reese [Dem., Marshalltown], to permit beer sale in country clubs located outside cities and towns was adopted. An amendment to permit purchases of four bottles by individuals during the Sunday closing period was defeated.

Gov. Herring has decided on a special election June 20 for delegates to a state convention to determine the state's attitude on the repeal of the 18th amendment to the national constitution.

North Carolina Acts.

Raleigh, N. C., April 13.—(AP)—The senate today suspended its rules and passed a bill to allow immediate shipments of beer into North Carolina for sale after midnight of April 30. Sale of beverages of not more than 3.2 per cent alcoholic content beginning May 1 was authorized by the legislature ten days ago.

Signs West Virginia Bill.

Charleston, W. Va., April 13.—(AP)—Gov. H. G. Kump today signed the 3.2 beer bill. It permits sale of beer as soon as licenses are issued.

COMSTOCK SAYS BEER LAW MUST BE "SENSIBLE"

Lansing, Mich., April 13.—[Special.]—An enthusiastic welcome which presaged early action to provide Michigan with legal 3.2 beer was accorded the administration liquor control bill when it was received today by the house after its passage by the senate last night. The much amended bill, containing, in addition to elaborate machinery for manufacturing and vending beer, a section repealing outright the present prohibition law, was referred to the liquor traffic committee.

The bill was transmitted, however, with a verbal warning from Gov. William A. Comstock that the prohibition law repeal section must be stricken from the measure or he would veto it.

It is the governor's position, he explained, that Michigan must maintain a sensible leadership in handling the liquor problem.

"I can veto the beer bill if passed in this form," said the governor, "and I am not afraid to do it. The people do not want to see Michigan held up as a horrible example of a state reverting to debauchery, perhaps irreparably injuring the cause of prohibition repeal."

POLL ON REPEAL FOR MINNESOTA IS SET SEPT. 12

St. Paul, Minn., April 13.—(AP)—Minnesotans will vote next Sept. 12 on whether the 18th amendment to the federal constitution should be repealed.

Twenty-one delegates elected that day will meet here Oct. 10 to cast a formal vote, under a legislative measure made law today by the signature of Gov. Floyd B. Olson.

Vermont Election Called.

Montpelier, Vt., April 13.—(AP)—Gov. Stanley C. Wilson today issued a proclamation calling for a special election Sept. 5 to elect delegates to a convention to consider ratification or rejection of an amendment to the federal constitution which would repeal the 18th amendment. The governor set Sept. 18 as the date of the convention.

Missouri Bill Signed.

Jefferson City, Mo., April 13.—(AP)—Gov. Guy B. Park today signed a bill to set up machinery to obtain Missouri's "yes" or "no" on repeal of the 18th amendment to the federal constitution.

The measure leaves it to the governor to fix the date for a state referendum and a convention.

CUMMINGS FOR MERGING DRY, ALKY BUREAUS

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—Merging of the bureau of prohibition and the bureau of industrial alcohol as part of the administration's program to promote government efficiency and economy has been approved by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings.

"It would save a great deal of money—real money," the attorney general declared. President Roosevelt and Director of the Budget Douglas must approve the plan before it is carried out, he said.

MINISTER URGES WOMEN TO ADOPT BUY DRY SLOGAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—The Rev. William S. Abernethy, Washington Baptist minister, seeking a slogan that should rouse his fellow drys to battle against beer, awoke one night and heard resounding in his ears the words "Buy dry." He was pretty sure he had found the magic phrase.

Today, speaking before the tenth annual convention of the women's national committee for law enforcement, he was sure of it. For when he told the story of the slogan that came in his sleep 500 women drys clapped and cheered their approval. The slogan, it was decided, would be excellent on a poster, in large type. Beneath in small type would be the legend, "Patronize the dry merchant."

Dr. Abernethy hastened to add that he had no intention of starting a boycott of the merchant who sells beer. Nothing of the kind. Merely go to the corner grocery, he advised, and make a few inquiries. If the grocer sells beer than decline to purchase potatoes and bread of him.

HORNER DEPLORES BEER BILL DELAY; REVENUE IS LOST

Springfield, Ill., April 13.—[Special.]—Discussing the delay of the beer regulation bill until next Wednesday, Gov. Horner today expressed regret that final action had not been taken some time ago.

"The leaders assure me that it will pass next Wednesday," he said, "but why not last Wednesday or the Wednesday before that? It is to be regretted that Illinois has gone a whole week now without any regulations over beer on its books."

He also said the state had lost considerable possible revenue because the bill had not been enacted into law.

NEW ORLEANS CROWDS CHEER BEER'S RETURN

New Orleans, La., April 13.—(AP)—An estimated half million gallons of beer flowed out from New Orleans breweries into nearly 1,000 beer gardens and restaurants here a few minutes after noon today as the state's prohibition enforcement law repealer went into effect.

Factory, automobile, and steamship whistles signalled the departure of the laden brew trucks from the local breweries to the various oases.

Mounted motorcycle policemen escorted the fast brewery trucks to the retail establishments, clearing crowded traffic in the downtown area as thousands in the street cheered.

On the New Orleans Cotton exchange, where prices were advancing sharply, traders held impromptu parades to echo the cheering on the streets, and the exchange directors arranged for a beer luncheon to be served on the floor immediately after the close of the market.

LIFTS PADLOCK BAN ON PLACES THAT SOLD BEER

New York, April 13.—[Special.]—Padlocks previously placed on beer selling establishments whose product does not contain more than 3.2 per cent alcohol may have the padlocks lifted without fear of opposition from the federal authorities here, United States Attorney George Z. Medalie announced today.

This means, in effect, the lifting of the ban on many once raided premises and leaves such places free to resume operations under the new beer law.

Acting on direct authority from Attorney General Homer S. Cummings in Washington, Mr. Medalie said that he would not oppose applications for vacating orders against places which sold beer of not more than 3.2 per cent alcohol before the law legalizing such beer was effective.

URGE MOBILIZING INDUSTRY UNDER U.S. GOVERNMENT

Roosevelt Aids Hope He Will Adopt Paln.

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—A plan to mobilize private industry under the government for expansion in the production of articles and materials in normal demand—this expansion to be coeval with the administration's public works activities—is being developed by the President's closest advisers, and they hope to persuade him to attempt it.

Certain types of industry, under the plan, would be assembled and regulated by a government agency reminiscent of the war industries board. Competition would be regulated; hours of work and minimum rates of pay would be fixed, and some of the proponents of the idea also would have the government guarantee manufacturers against loss in resuming or increasing the manufacture of prescribed articles and materials.

Absorb New Buying Power.

The thought behind the plan is that a public works program standing by itself, even if five billions is expended upon it, will not sufficiently reduce unemployment or make use of the new purchasing power. It is contended that private industry must, at the same time, be put in a position to absorb the new purchasing power, composed of the billions which the government will be putting in the hands of citizens.

To do this it must resume manufacture and that will restore many to private employment in the factories themselves and in the retail establishments which will dispose of the products of these factories. This will, in turn, give purchasing power to those privately as well as those governmentally employed. A part of the billions then will flow back to the treasury in various forms of taxation.

Among the administration advisers giving thought to the plan is Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley who is represented as being sold on the general idea. With others in the administration who have been trying to evolve a coördinated program, Mr. Moley has not been content with what is known here as "holding the line." That reference is to emergency legislation, temporary measures to avert an economic debacle. The real objective of the administration is to restore business conditions with people at work and domestic and foreign trade fluid once again.

Cut Down 7 Billions.

The argument which seems to have been most effective in bringing the administration to support the public works appropriations is that the deflationary policy has cut down the purchasing ability of the country by 7 billions. Of this, 5 billions is in the closed banks, one billion in the budget savings and another billion in reductions made by the several state governments. The vast public works program having been definitely agreed upon, with the probability that it may involve an expenditure of as much as 5 billions, it appeared to the architects of administration policy that this plan needed a companion.

During the last period of "armed strife" industry moved as an army under a common discipline enforced by the war industries board and submitted to an allotment of product, fixed prices, strict competitive regulation, and other details in a paternalistic regiment. The new government agency would have similar powers, modeled to suit the new economic circumstances. If the plan is adopted it will be incorporated in a measure submitted along with those which will compose the public works expenditures legislation.

SUSPECT IS HELD AFTER OFFER TO SELL MAIL LOOT

Byron P. Carey, 34 years old, 4142 North Keystone avenue, who is alleged to have tried to dispose of part of the loot in a $200,000 mail robbery, was arrested yesterday by Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's office. He was questioned and kept in custody by postal inspectors.

Two others, friends of Carey, also were arrested, but were released after being quizzed. They are Jeff Kemp, 8112 Ellis avenue, and Paul James, 1414 Pratt boulevard.

Carey on Wednesday introduced a man known as Louis Anderson in the offices of Hertz & Co., investment bankers at 105 West Adams street. At one time Carey was employed there as a bond salesman. Anderson offered for sale bonds that had been taken in the robbery of a mail carrier in the loop on Dec. 6, and a deal for their purchase at $1,300 was made. The deal fell through, however, when the Hertz company discovered the bonds had been stolen.

The state's attorney was notified and Carey was arrested. He said Anderson had been introduced to him by Kemp and James. Later he changed his story and named another friend.

ROOSEVELT ASKS MORTGAGE BILL TO SAVE HOMES

House Approves Bill for Similar Farm Aid.

homes there would be set up a system of federal savings and loan associations to afford the services of building and loan associations in such localities as lack of these institutions, which would be in approximately one-third of the counties in the country. The bill authorizes the government to subscribe 100 millions of the capital required "to provide mutual thrift associations in which people may place their savings and invest their funds and in order to provide for the financing of homes."

These associations would be authorized to loan on homes secured by mortgages and to invest their funds in government securities and home loan bank bonds.

"As a further and urgently necessary step in the program to promote economic recovery," said the President in his message, "I ask congress for legislation to protect small home owners from foreclosure and to relieve them of a portion of the burden of excessive interest and principal payments incurred during the period of higher values and higher earning power.

Urges Special Safeguards.

"Implicit in the legislation which I am suggesting to you, is a declaration of national policy. This policy is that the broad interests of the nation require that special safeguards should be thrown around home ownership as a guaranty of social and economic stability, and that to protect home owners from inequitable enforced liquidation in a time of general distress, is a proper concern of the government.

"The legislation I propose follows the general lines of the farm mortgage refinancing bill. The terms are such as to impose the least possible charge upon the national treasury consistent with the objects, sought. It provides machinery through which existing mortgage debts on small homes may be adjusted to a sound basis of values without injustice to investors, at substantially lower interest rates and with provision for postponing both interest and principal payments in cases of extreme need.

"The resources to be made available through a bond issue to be guaranteed as to interest only by the treasury will, it is thought, be sufficient to meet the needs of those to whom other methods of financing are not available. At the same time the plan of settlement will provide a standard which should put an end to present uncertain and chaotic conditions that create fear and despair among both home owners and investors.

"Legislation of this character is a subject that demands our most earnest, thoughtful, and prompt consideration."

27 Democrats Desert.

The desertion of the administration by 27 Democratic senators on the farm bill roll call brought about the first legislative defeat which President Roosevelt has received at the hands of congress since taking office. By a vote of 46 to 42 the senate wrote into the bill with its allotment leasing plan provisions the so-called Simpson scheme for outright price fixing by the secretary of agriculture.

It was, however, a defeat with compensations. For the Simpson scheme is merely supplemental to the administration program and may be used or ignored as the secretary sees fit. This amendment, moreover, must still receive the approval of a house of representatives that again today proved its fealty by passing the farm mortgage refinancing bill according to orders.

The senate defeat was balanced by a victory in the house over radical members who sought to substitute for the administration mortgage bill the Frazier inflation bill authorizing the issuance of 2½ billions of new currency to be used in buying up farm mortgages and refinancing them at lower rates of interest.

Jolt for Party Machine.

The senate vote, nevertheless, administered a distinct jolt to the administration machine that has ground its way forward so smoothly and surely ever since March 4.

It was a jolt to Democratic Leader Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, who took the floor with a final appeal to party loyalty and with a last hit at the price fixing plan as one bound to mislead the farmer.

The Arkansan explained that a cost of production basis would give the farmer only 60 cents a bushel for the portion of his wheat required for domestic consumption, and 8 cents a pound for his cotton as again a probable 92 cents and 13 cents, respectively, under the administration's program.

The unprecedented success was a signal for Republican conservatives to launch a vigorous attack upon the whole administration farm policy, with Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] leading the way to be followed later by Senator Daniel O. Hastings [Rep., Del.].

"This bill," said Senator Reed, "offers the most serious threat to the welfare of the working man that has been presented in decades. And in the guise of relief it will impose on the farmers an intolerable slavery."

Terms It Unconstitutional.

The Pennsylvania senator declared the bill flagrantly unconstitutional. It sought to fix prices, he said, and it sought to tax one class to benefit another. It sought, in fact, he asserted, to tax the urban worker who had suffered by the curtailment of both pay and production in order to help the more fortunate farmer who had suffered from a shrinkage in prices but not from a shrinkage in output.

"The President announces that instead of being practical and workable it is an experiment," he said. "What a poor fulfillment of a promise that gave high hope to needy Americans. He told us not long ago that he was horrified at our proposal to balance the budget by a 2 per cent sales tax on all articles of commerce other than food and clothing. He was horrified at that and yet that tax was for the general purposes of government. It was not to be given to a particular class. It carefully exempted the essential necessities of life. This bill at which he is not horrified will put a sales tax of more than 100 per cent upon the essentials of living of the poorest people in America."

DEATH IS HELD ACCIDENT.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death at the inquest into the death Wednesday of P. H. Burrell, 67 years old, 2005 77th avenue, Elmwod Park, who died from the effects of drinking ammonia.

FARM MORTGAGE BOARD SELECTED BY GOV. HORNER

Aims to Settle Disputes, Halt Foreclosures.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 13.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner today announced the membership of a committee of nine created to coöperate with the state department of agriculture in making possible the arbitration of differences between creditors and debtors in settling farm mortgage problems without resorting to foreclosures or expensive court action.

The first meeting of the state "conciliation committee" will be held tomorrow noon when its organization will be perfected and steps be taken to form county committees to handle local cases. Neither members of the state or county committees will receive compensation for their services.

Names of Members.

Members of the state committee are C. E. Hopkins, Pontiac, federal land bank director; Hudson Burr, Bloomington, agent for the Aetna Life Insurance company; John M. Crebs, Carmi, farmer and banker; Z. L. Linton, Springfield, farmer and state farm bureau representative; George F. Tullock, Rockford, farmer and state grange representative; G. A. Kramer, Kankakee, farmer and state farmers' union representative; H. C. M. Case, head of the farm organization and management department, University of Illinois; former Lieut. Gov. John G. Oglesby, Elkhart, and C. V. Gregory, editor of Prairie Farmer, Chicago.

The new plan of mortgage conciliation developed as an outgrowth of a meeting of Gov. Horner, W. W. McLaughlin, state director of agriculture, and heads of farm organizations and representatives of insurance companies and other credit agencies with large holdings of Illinois farm paper. It is designed to make more effective the recent appeal of Gov. Horner for forebearance on the part of mortgage holders in treating cases of delinquency on farm and small home mortgages.

U. S. May Copy Plan.

The plan was given added significance today with the announcement of Director McLaughlin that the federal administration in Washington is considering legislation which would be based on the Illinois setup on a nation-wide scale.

McLaughlin declared that the committee would not "disturb in the slightest the credit structure of agriculture." Rather, he said, it would attempt to negotiate agreements between mortgage holders and hard pressed farmers who display willingness to meet obligations but cannot do so under present farm price levels. By averting "five and ten" cent sales and the large scale sales of farms on the present market, it is expected that the farm credit structure will be strengthened.

Janitor Employed Eight Years Holds Up Employer

Fred Hoyer, 65 years old, 538 North Wells street, who has been a janitor in the offices of the Columbia Window Cleaning company, 510 Van Buren street, for eight years, nodded a greeting on the arrival yesterday of his employer, A. E. Taylor. Then he laid aside his broom, drew a rusty revolver and ordered Taylor to "stick 'em up." Hoyer took $26 from Taylor and fled. Taylor told Des Plaines street police that he believes the janitor has become insane.

LENS GENIUS OF ST. CHARLES IS FREE ON PAROLE

John E. Mellish of St. Charles, regarded by many as the foremost astronomical lens maker in America, was paroled yesterday by Circuit Judge John K. Newhall in Geneva, before whom Mellish appeared on statutory charges made by his wife and 15 year old daughter.

Mellish, who is 46 years old, was given his freedom at the request of a friend in southern California, who offered to take the lens maker to the coast. Mellish has been in the Kane county jail at Geneva most of the time since Sept. 8, 1931.

The decision to allow him to go to California was agreed to by State's Attorney George Carbary and County Judge Olney C. Allen of Kane county, who had original jurisdiction in the case and who was in court yesterday at the request of Judge Newhall.

The latter, in announcing the decision to the defendant, said, "You are permitted to continue your work in freedom, but remember that you carry the keys of the penitentiary in your own pocket. Violation of your parole will mean prosecution."

Thus closed an official chapter of one of the most unusual cases which have come within the jurisdiction of a court in Illinois. Following the arrest of Mellish the authorities of Kane county were besieged with requests from scientists in all parts of the country to allow Mellish to continue his work.

The scientists argued that to keep Mellish in jail would be a blow to scientific progress. As a result, for nine months Mellish was allowed to go to his workshop in St. Charles each day and was returned to his cell at night. The arrangement was ended, however, when the lens maker left his workshop last June and was found wandering on the streets in Aurora.

At the insistence of state's attorney Carbary he was examined by a group of alienists, whose unanimous verdict classed Mellish as a genius.

Mellish is the father of eight children. An action for divorce, filed by Mrs. Mellish at the time of his arrest, is pending. The name of the Californian to whom the lens maker has been paroled was not made public by Judge Newhall.

Parade Tonight

Four circus bands, an old fashioned steam calliope, open cages of wild animals, stars of the circus world, and elephants, camels, and other animals will be seen in the illuminated parade to be staged in the loop tonight by the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus as an inaugural to the 16 day Chicago engagement of the circus, which opens tomorrow afternoon at the Coliseum.

The parade will leave the Coliseum at 7:30 o'clock. It will move north in Wabash avenue to 9th street, west to State street, north in State to Adams street, west in Adams to La Salle street, north in La Salle to Wacker drive, east in Wacker drive to State street, south to 9th street, from which point it returns to Wabash avenue and back to the Coliseum.

It will be the first night circus parade since 1899, when Ringling Brothers made their first appearance at the Coliseum, Charley Rooney, who is now boss of the baggage horses with Hagenbeck-Wallace, drove an eight-horse band wagon in the 1899 parade.

ASSEMBLY GETS CONGRESSIONAL REMAPPING BILLS

One Plan Gives Chicago 13 Seats, Other 14.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., April 13.—[Special.]—Almost two-thirds through their fifty-eighth general assembly, the legislature turned today—after the smoke of the beer battle—to the subject of congressional reapportionment. Since virtually no effort to effect congressional reapportionment has been made, this problem stood as one of the most important unsettled.

Two plans to effect a redistricting of the state in the matter of its congressional representation were laid before the assembly today—one Democratic, one Republican. Neither has received any official sanction by its party's members, but they are the first definite proposals to evolve this session and were given close attention for that reason.

Most Important Question.

One carried more weight than the other, for it was drawn by Representative Frank W. McClure [Dem., Abingdon], chairman of the joint senate and house committee on congressional reapportionment. The other plan came from Representative Richard J. Lyons [Rep., Mundelein], chairman during Republican times of the house committee entrusted with solution of this problem in representation.

Most important of the questions raised by the McClure plan, however, which was drawn, he said, with the aid of Representatives Thomas A. Bolger [Dem., McHenry] and W. C. Chynoweth [Rep., Decatur], was the question of fair representation for Cook county and Chicago. The most populous districts of the state would be given thirteen "and a fraction" representatives—"half" the Illinois' delegation by McClure's reasoning, but less than half by the calculations of Chicago members.

There now are ten districts in Cook and fifteen downstate. Two additional congressmen, both at present from downstate, are elected from the state at large. The McClure plan would eliminate these congressmen at large, give downstate thirteen districts, Chicago thirteen, and split the twenty-seventh into a "metropolitan" district, composed both of downstate and Cook territory.

In an Unpopulous Region.

Lyons' plan goes McClures' one better in that respect for it would give Cook 14 districts outright and downstate 13 districts.

McClure proposes that the 27th district—actually the 17th in numerical order—be composed of the counties of Du Page, Kane, Kendall, and Will and a section of the southern end of Cook, probably including Chicago Heights, which would be well without the borders of the city and therfore in an unpopulous region. He calls it giving Cook "one-half" a district; Chicagoans studying the map today said that the fraction was far less fair.

Another change in the metropolitan region, which appears the same on both the McClure and Lyons maps, would lift Lake county from the present 10th, or north shore district, and place it with Winnebago, Boone, and McHenry counties, in the new 15th district. The Lake county district is at present represented in the lower house by Congressman James Simpson Jr.

Rainey District Unchanged.

McClure's plan would abolish the old 17th, or Bloomington, district, and divide it between the Kankakee, Decatur, and Peoria districts. The new Decatur district would thus be composed of Grundy, Ford, Livingston, Woodford, McLean, Dewitt, Piatt, Moultrie, and Macon counties.

In deference to Speaker Henry T. Rainey of Carrollton, Illinois' most prominent congressman, his district, the present 20th, would not be changed by the McClure plan, but would receive a new number, becoming the 21st.

McClure and his colleagues have not attempted to reapportion according to the ratio of equal population, he said today, "which was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court. Justice Norman L. Jones wrote the opinion and held that because there was not equal population, the plan was not legal.

Not Necessary to Reapportion.

"Since his decision, the United States Supreme court held, in a Mississippi case, that it was not necessary to reapportion on the basis of equal population."

So it seems likely that, whether the McClure or Lyons plans are accepted, the legislature will probably apportion the congressional districts about as Cook and downstate want them, the bone of contention resting with fair representation for Cook.

Here Are Downstate Districts.

FIFTEENTH—Winnebago, Boone, McHenry, and Lake.

SEVENTEENTH—Kane, Du Page, Kendall, Will, and a portion of Cook.

NINETEENTH — Henry, Knox, Fulton, Schuyler, and Adams.

TWENTY-FIRST—Mason, Menard, Cass, Brown, Morgan, Scott, Pike, Calhoun, Jersey, and Greene.

TWENTY-THIRD — Grundy, Livingston, Woodford, McLean, Ford, Dewitt, Piatt, Moultrie, and Macon.

Tells of Growing Boundaries.

A probable mistake in numbering left Madison and St. Clair counties without a designation. They probably would become district 14 in the McClure plan, or district 27, if the numbering was moved up to make them the last numerically.

In defense of the other plan, Mr. Lyons declared that the boundaries of its districts were "drawn as scientifically as possible without regard for party majorities.

"The principal consideration, given in forming the districts was that of equality of population, "he said, "and an effort was made to keep the population of each district as near the ratio of 282,000 as possible."

GERMAN GUARDS KILL THREE REDS AT PRISON CAMP

Shot Down in Attempt to Escape.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, April 13.—Three communists were killed and one seriously wounded today when they attempted to escape from a concentration camp in the moors of Dachau, near Munich. They were shot by guards.

In north Germany, the jail at Sonnenberg, which was closed last year because it lacked prisoners, was reopened today to accommodate political prisoners.

In Dortmund, Duesseldorf, and Berlin political leaders were placed under protective arrest pending investigation of their books. Two men committed suicide as a result of the Nazi repression campaign. One was Herr Plagemann of Berlin, director of the Iron Trade company. The other was Ald. Beyer of Krefeld. Nazi leaders continued to shock the public with reports of misappropriations of funds by leaders of the "former system."

16 Professors Ousted.

The Prussian minister of culture, Bernhard Rust, sent sixteen professors on compulsory leaves of absence. Most of them were Jews. He announced that many more will follow. Prof. Mortiz Julius Bonn, rector of Berlin's University of Commerce, was one of the ousted professors.

(Prof. Bonn has spoken in Chicago several times. He was visiting professor at the Universities of Wisconsin, California, and Cornell. He was adviser to the German government on reparations questions in 1919-'21. Prof. Bonn also was a member of the Carnegie endowment committee for international peace.)

Meanwhile, the German Press association unanimously agreed to dismiss its Jewish and Marxist members.

The Hitlerite newspaper Der Angriff today asserted that the Socialist party is on the verge of collapse. Its members are breaking away because they are "shocked by the scandals revealed by the anti-corruptionists and by the flight of Socialist leaders to neighboring countries," the newspaper said.

The Socialists have countered by saying that the scandals with which they are charged are exaggerated. Deprived of their newspapers and freedom of speech they are unable to defend themselves. Many Socialist bodies have dissolved because of lack of funds.

Unify Eastern Frontier.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, April 13.—Unification and coördination of all German organizations along the German-Polish frontier has been ordered by Alfred Rosenberg, chief of the newly created foreign affairs section in National Socialist headquarters. These organizations will be placed under the jurisdiction of Dr. Franz Luedtke, who has been instructed to confer with Prussian and reich authorities over measures to be adopted for the consolidation of German activities along the eastern frontier.

Admit Jews to Palestine.

LONDON, April 13.—(AP)—Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, told parliament today that the British high commissioner for Palestine has authorized the issuance of 1,000 immigration certificates for German Jews of the laboring class.

Other facilities have been provided for immigration of German Jews with capital and skilled craftsmen who desire to go to Palestine.

Sir Simon made the announcement after other members of the house had denounced the treatment of Jews in Germany.

GERMANY URGES ITALY TO PRESS TREATY REVISION

Takes Stand for Duce's Peace Plan as Is.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 13.—Premier Mussolini's four power peace pact project has been shelved, for the moment at least, Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen and Hermann Wilhelm Goering, right hand man of Chancellor Hitler, indicated today. The two German leaders called in the press for the first time since their arrival here a week ago.

Both statesmen clearly conveyed the idea that their visit is largely to persuade il duce to hold out against any modification of his original project, especially the part calling for revision of the peace treaties.

Speak for Original Pact.

"I hope that when negotiations between the powers interested are resumed, all will return to the original ideas of Mussolini," said Von Papen.

Goering, who is minister without portfolio, as well as premier of Prussia, added:

"We accepted the pact from the start and hope it will not be modified. It is the only thing that can give Europe ten years of peace."

"This represents our ideas exactly."

Then the vice chancellor stepped back and the militant Goering took the floor. He said that his visit here is officially to reorganize air traffic between Italy and Germany and that he hoped soon to have seven hour service between Berlin and Rome.

Goering had a lot to say about the similarity between German and Italian Fascism.

"The affinity of thought and sentiment between the German and Italian movements is great," he asserted. "Both Hitler and I want to cement a closer Italo-German union. The German revolution could not have taken place without the Italian example which showed the world how a victorious struggle against communism could be waged.

"The brown shirts are the only force in Germany now which acts and counts. We are ready to receive others in our ranks if they are willing to collaborate, but there must be loyal collaboration."

Goering ended with a declaration that Germany means to get the same security and justice as other peoples. Neither he nor Von Papen referred to the negotiations with the Vatican and no questions were raised about the war on the Jews.

Retribution

Philip Keller, 28 years old, 5827 Addison street, for whom an order of commitment to Joliet penitentiary has been waiting since 1929, was arrested yesterday in a garage at 1037 Chicago avenue by Sergeants Fred Joyner and Edward White of the detective bureau. He was immediately turned over to the sheriff to be taken to prison.

Keller was found guilty on May 17, 1929, of stealing accessories from the automobile of G. F. Slaughter of Evanston. Because of the numerous continuances obtained for the prisoner, the Chicago crime commission took an interest in pushing the prosecution. As the jury walked into the courtroom with its verdict, Keller walked out.

He was arrested a few weeks later and sentenced to one to ten years' imprisonment by Judge Robert E. Gentzel, but obtained his freedom on bail and disappeared. Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlain, director of the crime commission, recently obtained information that he was working in the garage on Chicago avenue and informed the police.

Admits Woman's Murder Husband Is in Prison For

Atlanta, Ga., April 13.—(AP)—A Negro convict today confessed the four-year-old murder of Mrs. Robert E. Coleman for which her young husband is serving a life sentence on a chain gang. James Starks, Negro burglar and convict camp inmate, told officers today he crushed Mrs. Coleman's head with a poker on the night of March 14, 1929, and that Robert Coleman, the husband, is not guilty of the crime. Legal steps to have Coleman's sentence lifted will be taken immediately, officers said.

HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE.

Edward Wilson of Lansing was held to the federal grand jury yesterday by United States Commissioner Walker on charges of violation of the prohibition law. His bond was set at $2,000.

OPEN HEARINGS ON FORECLOSURE LAW HERE TODAY

Assemblymen Will Hear Investors' Side.

A committee of the Illinois house of representatives, appointed to recommend legislation looking toward reform in the handling of foreclosures and receiverships, will hold its first meeting this morning in room 1121 of the county building.

Among those who are to be present are Newton C. Farr of the Wollenberger & Co. bond committee, Avery Brundage of the H. O. Stone & Co. committee, Dayton Keith of the American Bond and Mortgage company committee, and Holman D. Pettibone of the Foreman-State, the Lackner, Butz & Co., and Equitable Bond and Mortgage company committees.

Committees Offer Aid.

Representative Thomas P. Sinnett will be chairman of the investigating committee. Aiding him and his fellow committee members in gathering data on which to base new legislation will be Assistant Attorneys General James G. Skinner, George S. Lavin, and John W. Brabner-Smith.

According to Mr. Skinner, the officials representing bondholders' committees have offered to coöperate with the legislators. They have been instructed to bring in all pertinent records bearing on the costs of receiverships and foreclosures as well as on the methods followed in formation of bondholders' committees.

Others asked to attend the hearing are Abel Davis and Chester R. Davis, officials of the Chicago Title and Trust company; Morris E. Feiwell, S. J. K. Straus, and Melvin L. Straus of the American National Bank and Trust company.

The legislative committee intends to get a general history of bond foreclosures in Cook county in the last four years.

Loses His $54,000 Savings.

One of the first witnesses to be called is Joseph Greenwald, 71 years old, 5432 North Parkside avenue. Last January Greenwald appeared in the office of Attorney General Kerner and told of losing $54,000 in mortgage bonds. The amount, he said, represented his savings of thirty-seven years and the losses had rendered him destitute.

Now that new laws to handle mortgage affairs are in contemplation, the attorney general's staff felt that his testimony would give a working basis from which to get at the investors' angle of the whole question.

The hearing before the committee, which was appointed by Speaker of the House Arthur G. Roe, will continue tomorrow.

ENDS LIFE IN EVANSTON.

Cyril De Maeyer, 30 years old, 724 Washington street Evanston, committed suicide yesterday by inhaling motor fumes in the garage behind his home. A note said De Maeyer was despondent over his recent separation from his wife.

NEWLYWEDS (86-76) DEFENDED BY JUDGE AGAINST "IN-LAWS"

New York, April 13.—[Special.]—Newlyweds have a right to live their own lives without interference from each other's relatives even if the latter happen to include great-grandchildren, Magistrate Aurelio ruled in Essex Market court today in reconciling Joseph Lessner, 86, and his bride of four weeks, Anna, 76.

"We could not agree after the second or third day," she related.

"The trouble was all caused by in-laws," Mr. Lessner remonstrated.

Half a dozen relatives on each side of the family were in court. The magistrate called them forward. He rebuked them and admonished them to let the newlmeds alone in the future. They agreed; the spouses looked at each other with happy surprise and the magistrate, smiling broadly, dismissed the case.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

SHALL THE SCHOOLS BE CLOSED?

Teachers' pay is eight months in arrears. Almost an entire school year's work in the classrooms is unpaid. This is on the teacher's mind and it would not be astonishing if nothing else were. A sense of injury pervades the schools. In its train naturally there is a breakdown of self-control, discipline, and the pedagogic faculty. School authorities make no secret of the fact that the schools are nothing like what they are intended to be. The influence has extended to the pupils and probably through them to the homes. The school system is in a ferment of dissatisfaction and rebellion.

School teachers parade the loop, break up public meetings of no concern to them, badger the city officials, storm at the banks, and hoot at the members of the school board. The pupils took a suggestion from the teachers and went to parading on their own hook. The teachers believe that their only way of obtaining justice and of keeping from being forgotten is to make a noise, raise hell, and demonstrate regardless of time and place. They needn't be indicted for that. Some of the other public servants are in a better fix and some of them are in worse, but the teachers have been long organized to act together for common purposes and this is the most pressing need they have ever met.

They are bitter. They think nearly every one is unfriendly to them and that few citizens have a sympathetic understanding of the hardships to which they have been exposed and the injustice with which they have been treated. Many of them have lost their life insurance and equities in property which they were unable to hold. They are in debt. Their physical needs such as medical and dental treatment are uncared for. Their credit is exhausted and their patience is at an end. They resent criticism. They do not believe in promises and advice would make them only more angry.

They are particularly infuriated, and therefore it may be useless now to inject the reminder, by the suggestion that their organizations too often unwisely supported the very elements in local government which were making it certain that such a financial breakdown as the present should be almost without hope. Chicago has particular reasons for being in its present fix, but a loud mouthed bunch of political rascals worked for years to make the wreck complete and unescapable when it came. Justice requires this reference to old sins, but a study of that record will not give any immediate relief in the present situation.

Chicago is tax paralyzed. The new assessing method has worked itself into a jam. The tax strikers, having seemingly exhausted every legal dodge available, are seeking other methods of obstruction. Half the taxes put in collection are delinquent. The collectors take from the conscientious citizen and indulge the tax dodger. Many property owners are so poor they cannot pay and others have nearly ruined themselves in paying.

Federal taxes take $80,000,000 a year out of Cook county. The higher rates have added to the prostration. Local governments base their expectations upon unrealizable returns. The school board fought all during the hard times to keep from bringing its expenses within any limit of its probable revenue. Hope that there might be an improvement, first, in the demands of the tax levying bodies and then in the ability and willingness of the citizens to pay has been constantly defeated. Where the expectation has been that the future would make it possible to meet the bills, the reality has been increased debt. Deficits and not revenue grow. Optimism has been frustrated at every point and all these facts now insist upon recognition.

It may be inadvisable to close the schools, but the situation becomes inexorable and blindness to it will not change it. The teachers' pay is falling further in arrears and the obligation increases while the schools are open. A desperate ill may require a desperate remedy. The educational purposes apparently are not being served by a system in the condition in which the Chicago schools find themselves. The loss in closing, such as that of credits, would require careful consideration, but the question grows whether Chicago can continue its educational activities when it has not put itself in a solvent position. Solvency makes many demands which officialdom in Chicago is as yet unwilling to meet. Temporizing and evasion only defeat themselves. It may be found that things undesirable in themselves must be done to avoid other things not only more undesirable but intolerable.

THIRTY HOURS' WORK A WEEK.

Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, says the full approval of the President is behind the 30 hour week labor bill and that in consequence it will be an act shortly. Other report is that Mr. Roosevelt has thrown cold water on it. The senate has passed it. The bill is for an emergency period of two years and with a few exceptions applies to commodities and interstate trade.

None of the emergency acts can be viewed with greater apprehension than this one limiting the hours of work. The advocates of it need not be reminded that the source of wages is profits. They need not be reminded that the disappearance of profit is the cause of idleness. In times of great prosperity an increase in leisure can be regarded as desirable. Many kinds of modern industry lack the virtues of a compensating craftsmanship and are largely burdens upon the endurance and tolerance of the worker. This modifies somewhat the truth that work itself requiring aptitude and employing skill is one of the greatest benevolences human beings are granted.

With the extraordinary number of attractions, good and beneficial in themselves, which modern life offers, leisure to enjoy them has become more important. Most social trend is toward the release of the worker from hours of application which drain his physical resources and deprive him of opportunities for more complete enjoyment of life.

These considerations, valid in themselves, cannot apply with imperative force either in an emergency which confronts industry with diminishing returns or to any legislation which attempts to force a readjustment upon private enterprise, regardless of how the enterprise is to sustain the compulsion. It does not need any imagination to perceive that industries now operating at a loss cannot increase their perils and survive. There can be no confidence that the average workman will willingly take a substantial pay cut in order that the number of workmen may be increased. Such an increase would have innumerable economic and social advantages, but the producer as he observes the startling regulations that government is undertaking to impose on him must wonder how he is expected to survive.

Nothing proposed in Washington is more calculated at this time to produce alarm than such a paternalistic limitation of the right of contract and on the initiative of the manufacturer seeking to operate with a prospect of profits which will permit him to pay the wages he knows are essential to the redistribution of money and the recovery of purchasing power. If comment upon this adventure of sovietism in the American democracy is reserved, it is only because criticism is in a mood of restraint. That in itself may be one of the dangers the country is facing. The facile acceptance of the most revolutionary ideas which can be entertained in politics may be jeopardizing the whole country.

How industry will manage to escape from the regulations if it finds them unendurable cannot be clearly perceived, but something very close to panic must be apprehended if producers now struggling with annual losses receive a mandate from the government that 30 hours' work is the maximum they may expect from any employé if they are to ship their goods beyond the limits of a state. The well meaning doctrinaires who seem to have no checks upon their enthusiasms should be implored not to add terror to the psychology of the nation. It is to be hoped the President has cold water for the bill.

MR. SHAW ABROAD.

Just at the time when Mr. G. B. Shaw should have found sanctuary in a rural garden, there to dodder about contemplating and imitating his cabbages in the respectable mental infirmities of senility, he was introduced to the radio mike and he took to traveling. The consequences have been pitiful. The old boy, with his mind, but not his voice, lost in his whiskers, has fancied that he had a public and that he knew what it wanted. The circus does it better.

Mr. Shaw postponed his fling too long. His audacity is merely bad taste, his ripost only bad manners. His talent in finding the foolishness of the human race is now only a genius in revealing it in himself. Once esteemed a wit, he is discovered as a clown. His substitute for brilliance is ill breeding. The art of being disagreeable requires more than Mr. Shaw is now able to bring to it. It needs a keener perception of facts back of the lampoon. Mr. Shaw does not know what he is talking about and consequently he is only aimlessly malicious.

He strains but accomplishes only stupidities. There is an effort to remember that in his better days he amused people, but that ability has gone with the years. He should have been protected against exposure. If he runs his hand over his head he is in danger of finding his fingers full of splinters.

Editorial of the Day

THE LOWER TOWN TAX.

[Aurora Beacon-News.]

There is cheer for the hard pressed taxpayer in the lower levies adopted at the various town meetings.

In Aurora especial satisfaction can be taken not only because of saving of $85,000 in unemployment relief but in cuts in general township costs. Even the sum levied for the care of the poor, $65,000, may not have to be collected in full. Beginning in May enough will be collected from the state's sales tax, it is expected, to meet the relief bill in full.

Aurora's share of the sales tax will run from $300,000 to $350,000, it is expected: The relief bill will not exceed this sum, if conditions do not get worse than now, and a slight upward trend has been noted over the country in the last two weeks, largely as a result of the improvement in farm prices.

Another thoughtful move made at the Aurora meeting was the adoption of a resolution calling for the creation of an appeals committee of five in poor relief cases. This committee will act in cases where there are disputes as to the relief sought. It also provides for assistance for the supervisor in investigations. Such assistance is imperative in times like these when there are thousands of families to be cared for.

The appeals committee is to be composed of worthy representatives: the supervisor, the president of the Family Service association, and representatives of the American Legion, the town board, and the Associated Relief.

All members of the committee will have a vital interest in seeing that everybody in need is given proper aid and that the public funds are conserved.

UP TO BAT.

"Is Mrs. Gadder much of a talker?"

"Not brilliant, but tireless. She's what I call a 'first and third person talker.'"

"What do you mean by that?"

"Her talk is mostly made up of 'I said' and 'she said.'"—Pathfinder.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE WILDERNESS.

By Terry.

A VOICE:

The tale must finish, the scroll end
And only silences remain of Ye,—
Mighty Jehovah's sole Begotten,
And all Ye wert and art shall be forgotten
As are the cities of the plain . . .

JESUS:

One had hoped meed of loving. Yet
To be remembered when all things pass
Must content even God, alas!

A VOICE:

I shall remember, lest men forget.
Yet know, milord, without loving Remembrance can be a sword
One would be shut of.

JESUS:

As I of thee. I know thee now of old.
Is there no solace e'en in loneliness,
That Shaitan roameth in the wilderness?

SATAN:

I was but ling'ring in a lane of stars.
As Ye passed by,
Wafting a sainted scent of sweet attars
Athwart the sky . . .

JESUS:

Point not thy tongue with flattery.
What is thy business with Me?

SATAN:

Why have Ye fled the world?

JESUS:

Is it not written, O Accursed,
That the Shepherd shall be smitten,
His flock dispersed?

SATAN:

And Ye have fled them all,—aye,
Even the bosom friend and mother,
To crave what felons fly,—a Tree!
Have Ye no heart? Hagar of old
Was not so lorn within this wilderness,
For Ishmael was honey to her bitterness.

JESUS:

I was Mary's for Earth's moment,
She is Mine for now and ever,
And her son shall be beside her,
Locked as mankind to her bosom.
Such is My gauntlet and My legacy—
The enmity I fix 'twixt thee and she.

SATAN:

I would live dangerously.
Let us not quarrel. It is not her province
To know how and wherefore great spirits
Embark upon adventure. Dost remember
When to the nine great archangels
Over the nine planets Ye gave dominion?

JESUS:

And thine was Earth, nor satisfied
Thou wert until disputing
Michael of Mars, coveting
The corridor of the Sun, battled ye wide
And star on star did fall.

SATAN:

Was it not grand, milord, the turbulence
And lightnings large in space. Enough!
They say the earthlings crave a King,
And I am wearied with my governing.
Come with me to yonder temple pinnacle
That looks o'er Kedron's vale.
Is it not lovely? From Moab and Hermon
Unto the farthest isles all Earth to Ye!
That noble brow was never shaped for slaughter—
One knows Ye wombed from David's daughter!

JESUS:

I have heard thee say
That every man hath his price.
What is thy price unto the Son of God?

SATAN:

A bagatelle, milord, with Ye before me.
'T is only that Ye shall adore me.

JESUS:

O thou Deluder, who would bargain,
Knowing security there is none;
Who bringest all to such a sorry pass,—
Know then why thy dominion lacks stability:
The Lord thy God thou failest to adore.
Behold how increase rottens and with hate
All nations round about are hedged;
All kings unto thy fealty are pledged,
And as the slinking leopard
Even thy great men are spotted with deceit.
My kingdom is not of this world—
Yet though it were a God becomes
A King not easily. No choice of thee
Or thine persuadeth Me. No tyranny
Is Mine, but where men weep
And fathers by barren boards
Twist up hands anguished to the sky,—
There, there am I. Beggar'd and lone
I give them bread who ask a stone—
And so,—depart from Me!

FOOD FOR THE SICK.

EVEN though a person has an incurable, chronic, organic disease he can generally count on several years of useful life if he knows how to live and has the character required to follow rules and the means to afford the added expense. There are exceptions, but this is the rule.

It holds true of such severe infections as consumption, of such diseases not due to infection as high blood pressure, diabetes, pernicious anemia, pellagra, and Bright's disease.

The rules of living for many of these diseases, the rules which enable a person to live long and usefully, have some relationship to diets. This is true of obesity—and that is often a disease; of undernourishment, likewise often a disease: of the anemias, Bright's disease, diabetes, and many cases of heart disease.

Diet is of importance in the treatment of consumption, and it is the only cure we have of pellagra, as well as being our best preventive of both first attacks and of relapses.

In some instances special diets are less expensive than a regular diet based on food values uninfluenced by extravagances and perverted appetites. In most cases food for the organically crippled is more expensive than that of the average run of properly fed people, and the ability to carry this additional load belongs with character and intelligence as essentials of success.

Misses Smith and Anderson are responsible for some basic diets suitable for those who are organically crippled, and also for a comparison of the daily costs for these diets as compared with those for diets for people who are not sick.

A well balanced diet for a normal person needing about 2,500 calories a day will cost about 56 cents daily. This is the cost of the food, with nothing added for preparation and serving. It is distributed into: 17 cents for breakfast, 23 cents for lunch, and 16 cents for the evening meal. The menu is a good one and far from cheap. The authors give the range of cost as 45 cents to 68 cents.

An obese person should live on slightly more than a thousand calories, costing 37 cents to 64 cents, averaging 49 cents; a case of heart disease with poor compensation, one containing about 2,000 calories and costing 40 cents to 65 cents, averaging 48 cents.

An average diabetic should get about 1,500 calories, costing 49 cents to 65 cents; a person with chronic Bright's disease, with slight tendency to pitting of the legs, about 2,500 calories, costing 58 cents to $1.13; one of undernutrition, about 3,500 calories, costing 67 cents to 93 cents.

A case of secondary anemia should get about 2,000 calories, costing 48 cents to 92 cents; one of pernicious anemia, about 2,500 calories, costing 84 cents to $1.18.

Of the foods eaten for calories the carbohydrate foods are far the cheapest and the protein foods the most expensive. The foods eaten for bulk are cheap. Those eaten may be inexpensive, though some are not. As a rule we pay well for foods eaten with vitamins. Most expensive of all are those that are used as medicines as well as food, such as liver in pernicious anemia.

AVOID CAUSE.

O. B. writes: What is the cause of the white secretions in the corner of the eyes? Does it indicate an eye disease?

REPLY.

This is a slight accumulation of epithelium, pus cells, bacteria, and detritus. It may mean that there is some eye strain, mild inflammation of the conjunctiva, or it may mean overexposure of the eyeball to dust, smoke, and glare. It is not serious nor very important, but it is better to try to find the cause and to avoid or remove it.

FROST BITE.

B. O. writes: I still want to know the proper thing to do for frost bite. "Shackelton's Last Voyage," by Dr. A. N. Macklin, says: "Treatment on the spot consists not in rubbing the part with snow [men have been killed for less], but in applying dry, gentle warmth."

Stefansson's "My Life with the Eskimos" says: "One of the superstitions is that when the face or any other part of the body begins to freeze they must be thawed out with applications of snow. Few things could be more absurd."

Wallace's "The Long Labrador Trail" says: "By the way, if you ever get your nose frozen do not rub snow on it. Rasp it instead in your bare hands. That is the Eskimo's way, and he knows."

REPLY.

I agree with them, and so said in the clipping you sent.

JOINT TENANCY PROPERTY.

Marshalltown, Ia., April 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. My husband and myself have all our property in joint account or joint tenancy. Will you please advise if it is necessary for us to make a will? 2. If one dies will everything just naturally belong to the other? There are four children married and self-supporting. J. F. Y.

1. If you are both satisfied to have the assets go to the survivor and if you are right in your statement that all of the assets are in joint tenancy then no will would be necessary, but it seems probable that you may be mistaken as to whether sufficient steps have been taken to provide for survivorship.

2. Not unless the proper steps have been taken. We advise you to go over your affairs in a personal interview with an attorney. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SALES TAX.

Chicago, April 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Please tell us how we are affected by the sales tax. We are bookbinders, binding books, for the most part, for public libraries of various cities in these neighboring states. We do not manufacture a new product, but rebind old books that are sent to us by the libraries. We give a wholesale price to the libraries, although we deal directly with them. 1. Will the sales tax apply in this case? 2. Do we have to charge a tax to [3] these public institutions? Also does the tax apply to books which we rebind for private individuals—also old books in this case? E. H.

1. The tax should be paid by the person who furnishes the materials to you. Article 6 of the regulations issued by the department of finance on March 18 reads as follows: "Where a person in rendering a service uses or consumes tangible personal property as an incident thereto and receives compensation primarily for the service rendered the person receiving such compensation shall be deemed to be a 'consumer for use' of such tangible personal property, and the person selling such tangible personal property to such person shall include as part of his gross receipts, upon which the tax is to be paid, the receipts from such sales."

2. The act does not compel retail sellers to charge the tax to their customers. It merely prohibits them from advertising that they do not so charge.

3. There is no express exemption. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 14, 1917.

WASHINGTON.—National service for every American is the principle upon which the administration began yesterday to found its plan for the conduct of the war with Germany. Every American citizen will be called upon to do "his bit" toward the achievement of victory. President Wilson and his cabinet, in a two hour session, mapped out the national service program. This program calls for millions of soldiers for the economic as well as the martial legions that will be arrayed against Germany. Here are the principal forces to be enlisted: An army of 2,000,000 fighting men to be raised and trained within the next two years; a navy of 200,000 men to be raised and trained within the next year; an army of 2,000,000 men to be recruited at once to supply labor needs in increasing crop production; an army of 200,000 skilled artisans to build 1,000 wooden freight vessels a year for the transport of food and war munitions to the forces fighting Germany; an army of 5,000,000 or more skilled and unskilled laborers to produce war munitions and materials; a multitude of new commissions to organize the national efficiency to be created.

LONDON.—The great British offensive north and south of Arras and the French drive in the vicinity of St. Quentin gained renewed momentum and the Germans now are in retirement to the Drocourt-Queant line, five miles to the rear. The most solid success scored by the allies since the first dash on April 9 appears to have been achieved, and yet, according to military experts who estimate that the fighting forces in this sector number 4,000,000 men—2,000,000 Germans, 1,000,000 British, and 1,000,000 French—the battle has just begun. The British tore through the German defenses on a twelve mile front from the north bank of the River Scarpe to the trench systems just south of Loos—in some places to a distance of five miles—and captured six villages—Angres, Givenchy, Vimy, Petit-Vimy, Willerval, and Bailleul—in addition to much loot. South of Arras the British straightened out the German salient which projected into their lines between Monchy and the Cojeul river. Backed by a terrific artillery fire, Field Marshal Haig's troops stormed Wancourt tower on a spot east of the village of Wancourt and straddled the famous Hindenburg line as far as a point seven miles southeast of Arras.

LA PAZ.—The German minister and his staff have been handed their passports by the Bolivian government with a note declaring that diplomatic relations between Bolivia and Germany have been severed.

LONDON.—The food crisis is growing more severe, especially with regard to the dearth of wheat. In view of the decreased yield and the continued activity of the enemy's submarines, the Times says the question of bread economy is one of daily increasing urgency.

NEW YORK.—James B. [Diamond Jim] Brady, best known to the "Great White Way" because of his bejeweled appearance and fondness for theatrical first nights, died at the Hotel Shelburne, Atlantic City, following an illness which began last October. He was 62 years old. Only a small percentage of those who read tales of his Broadway appearances knew that he was one of the shrewdest business men in the country, director in a dozen big corporations and banks, the possessor of a fortune estimated at about $5,000,000.

MOUTHS AND CHINS.

Chicago, April 11.—In all fairness to our friends below the Mason and Dixon line who were termed ". . . bigots whose mouths are slits in their faces, whose eyes pop at you like a frog's, whose chins drip tobacco juice, bewhiskered and filthy," let a little be said in their favor by one who has remarked that same hard expression and those same bewhiskered chins. That is, probably not those same chins, but similar ones, in that district.

First, as to mouths, Mr. Leibowitz might pore over any history of America and study the faces of outstanding men pictured therein. What kind of mouths he will see might startle him. He would not surely call the men who carved this Union out of the wilderness for many immigrants with strange names to enter without check "bigots." Of course not. But the men he spoke of as such were descendants of those men. Their names probably were Adams, Jackson, Lee, Morgan, Butler, etc., and as stern as their forbears, which might account for the characters etched so startlingly, to a stranger, of course, on their faces.

Also, if their eyes popped, I can only attribute it to the fact that Mr. Leibowitz was a strange specimen indeed for them to look at. If it was not that, then his speech must have been peculiar in some way, or his actions sufficient to make eyes pop in any man's head, because the men of that section preponderantly have eyes that squint from looking long hours along furrows at spring plowing, or into the glare of the summer sun on the fields when winged despoilers must be discouraged by means of firearms and a steady trigger finger, or in the fall—but you get the idea.

Now, about the dripping tobacco juice. Surely here is injustice! Those men are all expert tobacco mangiers from the crib to the grave, and never yet have I seen one have to wipe his chin. There must certainly have been something about the defense attorney bordering on the astounding, nay, supernatural, for this to happen. I cannot understand it unless there is a hint contained in a remark made to me by one Alabaman of that neighborhood who gave me a ride one day as I was walking along a road and not looking or asking for lifts. After chatting for some time, when the subject happened to be Capone and his gang, he asked me what kind of people made up most of Chicago's population. After I answered him, he studied my honest(?) British face for a few moments, then said, "Well, lad, I don't know what you are and I don't care, but damme if some of them furriners haven't got more letters in their names than there is in the alphabet. I don't know what we'd ever do if they got down in this country. The mail man was complaining just the other day 'cause a fella by the name of Higginbotham bought a farm on his route."

Well, maybe it's worth being carried on the shoulders of a mob and paraded along Broadway. The question is, how big is a bigot? J. C.

THE NEW STREET LIGHTS.

Chicago, April 7.—The article this morning pertaining to the new type of fixture now being installed by the department of gas and electricity on all underground posts of the municipal street lighting system necessitates my attention because of the erroneous idea that may be created in the minds of some people by false and ill considered statements such as this. The use of any illuminometer or standard foot candlemeter will prove the truth of the statement that 30 per cent more illumination is placed on the streets by the new fixture as compared to the old. This is a matter of easy proof, and I will further state that the 30 per cent figure is very low and is also used in comparing the fixture to a brand new globe which loses its efficiency very rapidly after weathering a few nights in service.

I would further suggest that Mr. Waldemar H. Dover, your correspondent, should feel at liberty to visit my office in order that he may be convinced by a demonstration of the truth of these statements. W. A. JACKSON,
Commissioner of Gas and Electricity.

LINCOLN PARK'S LANDSCAPING.

Chicago, April 10.—In answer to the inquiry of E. Anders, which appeared in your column April 9, asking about the early history of Lincoln park, I wish to advise that my father, Olof Benson, was superintendent and landscape gardener from 1865 to 1882, a period of seventeen years.

Some of the earliest plans of the park, bearing his name, were presented by our family to the Chicago Historical society a number of years ago.

OLOF A. BENSON.

NO.

Chicago, April 10. — May I be permitted to inform the editorial writer of THE TRIBUNE as well as its readers that France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy and even imperialistic Japan have for some time recognized Russia?

Does not recognition of Russia by these nations prove that THE TRIBUNE is grossly unjustified in strenuously opposing recognition of Russia by this nation?

J. MITCHELL BRUCE.

THEY WON'T.

Chicago, April 11.—During the last few days the public, and presumably traders on the Board of Trade, have been speculating actively in wheat. The price has been steadily advancing, greatly to the benefit of the farmer.

I hope that all of those persons who are habitually under the delusion that operations on the Board of Trade are always detrimental to the farmer will please note. HOWARD VAN S. TRACY.

ASK BOTH PARTIES TO PUT UP FULL BENCH TICKETS

Bar Opposes Nominations by Coalition Accord.

Nomination of full party tickets by the Democrats and Republicans for the judicial elections on June 5 was urged last night by the board of managers of the Chicago Bar association. Coalition was assailed by the board, which said it would deprive the voters of the right to choose judges and place an appointive power in the hands of the politicians.

The attack upon coalition proposals was made in a letter to the judicial conventions of both parties, which are to be held tomorrow. Conferences between the Republican and Democratic subcommittees on the question of coalition are to be held today. The bar association holds that bench elections draw a small vote but a discriminating one, that judges of good records are usually elected regardless of party, and that straight party tickets afford a choice.

Opposes Bi-Party Agreement.

"The constitution provides for the election of judges by the people—not their selection through bi-partisan agreement of party leaders," says the bar association's communication. "Citizens should be given the opportunity of choosing their own judges.

"The sole interest of the bar association is that honest, able, fearless, and independent judges be elected, regardless of party."

Results of the bar primaries, in which 12 Circuit judges were indorsed and six were refused indorsement, were cited in the letter.

"In 1921," it said, "when the political party in power sought to exclude sitting judges who by their record deserved reelection, and elect candidates who were not acceptable to the bar, the Chicago Bar association supported a so-called 'coalition ticket.' Since that time there have been a number of so-called 'coalition tickets.'

"Choice Taken from People."

"The choice of judges has been taken from the people, and political leaders in reality have exercised appointive power. While some excellent judges have been elected, there have been others who have been absolutely rejected as unqualified in primaries of their fellow lawyers.

"The Chicago Bar association is against such 'coalition tickets.' It believes that they inevitably lead to deals between the political leaders by which judicial offices are handed to henchmen in return for political services. It believes that this in turn results in a weak and subservient bench, unable to cope with such difficulties as have met the courts in the last two or three years.

Demand Worthy Candidates.

"Nominations of judges by party convention must be filed on or before April 21. The conventions of the two major political parties are now in session. It is reported that a coalition ticket is under consideration. The Chicago Bar association is opposed to the inclusion on any ticket, whether coalition or otherwise, of any candidate who has been rejected as unfit by the lawyers who know him at the bar and on the bench and are best acquainted with his qualities.

"We urge the party conventions to refuse renomination to judges who have been found wanting in the high qualities which should mark the able and upright judge. We appeal to the conventions to renominate judges affiliated with their party who have demonstrated their fitness for judicial service, and to fill their respective tickets with candidates who will be recognized as worthy of the office."

CHARITIES OPEN MAIL CAMPAIGN TO RAISE FUNDS

United Group Forced to Ask County's Aid.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The United Charities of Chicago opened a mail campaign yesterday, appealing for funds to finance more than 3,000 families dependent upon charity because of illness, desertion, and other handicaps.

This is the second major agency to conduct a private campaign since the Emergency Welfare fund failed recently in its effort to raise $7,500,000 for the five large private charity agencies and more than 100 small ones. The welfare fund is approximately $3,000,000 short of its goal.

The agency is the Jewish Charities of Chicago, which is seeking $1,605,000 to support 21 Jewish institutions. This campaign, principally among the Jewish people, was opened last Monday with Alfred K. Stern as chairman.

Call on County for Aid.

Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of the United Charities, revealed that nearly half the organization's cases have been shifted to the field service division of the county bureau of public welfare because the United Charities' quota of the welfare fund was cut $1,000,000. The United Charities was to have received $2,617,000 if the $7,500,000 goal of the Emergency Welfare fund was reached.

"We could hardly hope to raise $1,000,000 ourselves, so we had to turn over 2,756 families to the county bureau," Mr. Hunter explained. "We will have to turn over about 500 more families, after which we hope to be able to continue caring for the remaining 2,500 families at the rate of about $100,000 a month. To do this we are asking our old friends through a mail appeal to help us again."

Regrets Need of Transfers.

Mr. Hunter expressed regret at being compelled to turn over United Charities family cases to the county. Although the county bureau is doing excellent work, he said, he believes the United Charities is better fitted to handle the cases than the public agency, which is already overloaded. In February the county bureau, which is dispensing relief to the idle with funds from the Illinois relief commission, was handling 26,514 families, he said. None of the newly transferred cases are idleness cases, Mr. Hunter explained. In all cases the situations involve desertion, acute illness, and various other handicaps.

"Even with our reduced roll of families the total will be five times more than in normally prosperous times," Mr. Hunter said. "Ordinarily we used to have about 500 cases."

CHILDREN'S SHOW RAISES $2 FOR HUNGRY PUPILS

The others taking part were Jerome Holland and Jack Goldberg, assistant magicians, Harold Mautner and Thelma and Wesley Holland, ushers, and Ralph Mautner, who collected tickets.

The day's contributions to the Hungry School Children's fund totaled $23.25, bringing the grand total to $23,381.85. The new donations were as follows:

$5.25—The Bookhouse for Children.
$5—I. Kedzie, Mrs. Silberman.
$3—Mrs. M. Pearse.
$1—A sympathizer; 3-S-A.

Total	$ 23.25
Previously acknowledged	23,358.60
Grand total	23,381.85

COUNTY SCHOOLS TO HAVE OUTING AT FAIR MAY 19

The grounds of A Century of Progress will be open to Cook county public school children on May 19, which is to be celebrated by them as Achievement Century of Progress day. This was announced yesterday by Otto F. Aken, county superintendent of schools.

Among the events to be held will be the seventh annual declamation contest of the county schools. Contestants from the six divisions of the county will compete for the honor of being declared the declamation champion. Among the judges will be Rufus C. Dawes, president of A Century of Progress, Gov. Henry Horner, and Francis H. Blair, state superintendent of schools.

An operetta will be presented by the Morton Grove school called "A Flight of Achievement." This is written around the national prominence of the achievement education plan worked out by the late Edward J. Tobin, county superintendent for many years.

JAPAN HINTS SHE MAY QUIT WORLD COURT

TOKIO, April 14 [Friday].—(AP)—The possibility of Japan's withdrawal from the permanent court of international justice at The Hague following upon its secession from the league of nations, was indicated by the foreign office today in connection with present negotiations at The Hague for an arbitration treaty between Japan and Holland.

The negotiations are nearing agreement, with the principal difference centering about a proviso that issues would be submitted to the world court.

Japan declines to be committed to this procedure because of the possibility that she may withdraw from the court as an organ of the league.

FIRST CHICAGO 'FOREST TROOPS' BEGIN TRAINING

The first contingent of recruits from Chicago for President Roosevelt's reforestation army began their two weeks' "hardening" program at Fort Sheridan yesterday, preparatory to departing for the timber camps in the west. A group of 189 men who arrived at the fort late Wednesday was augmented by 290 men early yesterday.

The food served in their tent city pleased the idle men. As they filed out of the mess tent after breakfast composed of apples and oranges, cereal, scrambled eggs, fried potatoes, toast, milk and coffee, they had broad smiles on their faces and declared they were ready for the "hardening" process.

Their first work was the placing of additional tents, in which later contingents of the reforestation army from Chicago will live during the training program. Three barbers were kept busy all day cutting the hair of the recruits to a regulation two inches. This morning the men are to be put through three and one-half hours of calisthenics. Organized athletics will be held in the afternoon.

WOMAN GETS 8 MONTHS' PRISON TERM FOR FRAUD

Mrs. Jean Brown, 29 years old, of Detroit was sentenced to eight months in the women's penitentiary at Dwight yesterday by Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court for obtaining money under false pretenses. Her accomplice, Joseph Lestina, 39 years old, was sentenced to 1 to 10 years at Joliet for operating a confidence game. Judge Prystalski heard the case without a jury. The state charged that Lestina forged blank checks stolen in a burglary of the Dorfman & Rosen company, wholesale grocers at 933 Randolph street. Mrs. Brown passed $500 worth of the checks before she and Lestina were arrested, the prosecution charged.

BRITAIN INSISTS SHE IS SETTING NO TRAP FOR U. S.

MacDonald Reveals Aims of Washington Trip.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 13.—Prime Minister MacDonald, who sails for the United States on Saturday, will not try to reach an definite agreement with Washington. He also will not endeavor to entrap America into an alliance with Europe.

These two declarations were outstanding features of a debate on foreign affairs in the house of commons today before adjournment for the Easter holidays.

"This visit is only going to be a long week-end," MacDonald said. "I propose to come to no agreement. We must sit down together with the Americans and understand each other. If the whole field of problems can be explored in four days good will be done.

No European Entanglement.

"America's historical position has always been that she will not enter into any European entanglement. I certainly would not go to America nor would I ever try to persuade America to do otherwise than carry out that historic policy. The only possible exception would be in the event of a world agreement quite clearly defined regarding an aggressor, America having previously been a party to that agreement.

"There will be an exchange of world views and the whole purpose will be to get the nations of the world closer together, not in alliances, but in spirit, and to secure a coöperative effort for a solution of economic and political problems. If I can further the spirit of coöperation among nations at Washington, then I will think my mission successful.

Earlier in his speech the prime minister criticized Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard, which a few days ago announced that President Roosevelt had agreed to a moratorium on war debts.

"I regret seeing in a certain newspaper a statement which can only be an impediment in the way of agreement," he said, "a statement that we had already reached some sort of agreement. There is not a word of truth in that statement and no shadow of foundations for it."

Speaks of Debt Problem.

Regarding the debt question, MacDonald said:

"I expect Mr. Roosevelt to talk with the most friendly candor of his own difficulties and I certainly shall talk to Mr. Roosevelt with the most friendly candor of the difficulties that would have to be faced in this country if certain proposals are put to the commons. Then I think the cabinet will be in a position to make up its mind how it is proposed to handle the June 15 payment."

Japan's Cabinet O. K.'s Staff.

TOKIO, April 14.—[Friday.]—(AP)—The cabinet today approved the appointment of Viscount Kikujiro Ishii to represent Japan in President Roosevelt's economic discussions in Washington and also as the nation's chief delegate to the world economic conference in London.

The ministers selected Eigo Fukai, vice governor of the Bank of Japan, to accompany Ishii to Washington as financial adviser. The viscount, Tsuneo Matsudaira, ambassador at London, and Fukai will be the delegates to the London parley.

The foreign office said Viscount Ishii and Fukai, with ten or twelve secretaries, were sailing from Yokohama May 4, arriving in San Francisco May 17 and reaching Washington May 21.

Increase in Estate Tax Costs Charity $900,000

New York, April 13.—(AP)—Passage of legislation increasing the estate tax together with "the present shrinkage of the value of assets" led the late Herbert Nathan Straus to revoke philanthropic bequests totaling $900,000 on June 1 of last year, his will disclosed when it was filed for probate today. Straus, who was vice president of R. H. Macy & Co., New York department store, and president of L. Bamberger & Co. of Newark, divided his estate among his widow and three sons. The value of the estate was not appraised.

ARMS EMBARGO MEASURE STARTS BATTLE IN HOUSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—An arms embargo resolution, described by its proponents as a long step toward peace and by its opponents as a long step toward war, today began a stormy legislative journey through the house of representatives.

Sponsored originally by former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, but adopted and backed by the present state department régime, the resolution was called up by Democratic leaders and shrouded with the protection of an iron clad rule governing its consideration.

It would authorize the President, in coöperation with whatever foreign governments he deems necessary, to prohibit the shipment of munitions from this country to nations engaged or about to be engaged in war.

Once Backed by G. O. P.

In the house today, the measure provoked a major party battle, with Republicans denouncing it as a back door entrance to the league of nations and an invitation to war with Japan, and Democrats defending it as a major step toward the preservation of international peace. Nor did the Democrats hesitate to remind their minority colleagues that only last session the Republican party agitated for the passage of the resolution.

Representative Hamilton Fish [Rep., N. Y.], who with all Republican members of the foreign affairs committee signed a vehement minority report opposing the embargo measure, began a bitter fight on the floor today to prevent its enactment. Mr. Fish, it was recalled, succeeded in so amending the embargo resolution brought out last session that its proponents lost interest.

Fish Warns of Danger.

Mr. Fish asserted on the floor of the house that the resolution represented an effort to put teeth in the state department's interference in the Manchurian crisis. In that it authorizes the President to secure the "cooperation" of other foreign nations in invoking the embargo, the New Yorker declared, it represented a virtual participation not only in the league of nations "but in that part of it most objectionable to the American people, namely, the enforcement of the war sanctions articles."

"This resolution," Mr. Fish declared, "repudiates the policy of neutrality established by George Washington and adhered to by every President and every secretary of state up to and including Woodrow Wilson."

IRA MORRIS, CHICAGO, WILL GO TO TURKEY AS U. S. AMBASSADOR

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—Ira Nelson Morris, millionaire member of the Chicago packing plant family, is to be appointed ambassador to Turkey, it was learned tonight.

Mr. Morris was appointed minister to Sweden by President Wilson in 1914 and, though a Democrat, was retained in that post by President Harding. He resigned in 1923 after Mr. Coolidge became President.

George Earle of Haverford, Pa., is to be minister to Austria and Alvin M. Owsley, former national commander of the American Legion, will be appointed minister to Rumania.

CHICAGO WOMAN SCORES IN INDIA IN BOAR HUNTING

New York, April 13.—[Special.]—Miss Elizabeth Chase, well known sportswoman of Chicago, accompanied by Mrs. Joseph W. Brooks and her sister, Miss Josephine Patterson, has been in India since January, participating in the most dangerous of all hunting, pig-sticking, or boar hunting.

A famous sport among English army officers in the India service and maharajahs, pig-sticking consists of an exciting chase of the fierce animals on fleet horses. As the hunter approaches his quarry he leans in the saddle with lance extended, and must only draw blood on his spearhead to be credited with a victory.

Often the hunter kills the boar, but in the Kadir cup tournament, the annual classic to determine the champion, it is only necessary to draw blood on the spear point to be victorious.

Miss Chase, according to a cable dispatch from Jodhpur, accomplished this feat a few days ago. It is believed she is the first American woman ever to do so. In fact, so far as records show, she is the only woman successfully to ride down a wild boar in India.

Also in the cable report it was stated that Miss Patterson shot a tiger which measured nine feet three inches in length. This seems like a big tiger. If it were a sailfish or a marlin we could determine from its length just how big it was. However, it seems to us quite a husky brute.

Again and again women have learned the folly of entrusting their complexions to beauty aids of unknown content—and have hurriedly returned to the ever-faithful guardian of tender skins—gentle olive oil.

It is the olive oil that gives Palmolive Soap its natural shade of green—no artificial color or masking scent in this famous complexion soap. And now that Palmolive's price is just a little more than half of what it used to be, you may enjoy it not merely as your facial soap, but for your bath—for the entire family!

Now it costs less to keep that Schoolgirl Complexion

CALLS ELEVATED HIGHWAYS THE ROAD TO SAFETY

Massen Tells Need for Grade Separation.

BY HAL FOUST.

Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the city council traffic committee, told 200 safety experts last night of the lives, limbs, and property that will be conserved through the construction of elevated highways in Chicago. He was a speaker at the annual dinner of the Chicago Safety council in the Stevens hotel.

"We are progressing toward the construction of such improved traffic facilities," said Ald. Massen.

"This year or next, Illinois will have finished its state bond issue system of highways, a magnificent rural system with a glaring defect of inadequate municipal connections. We can travel with high speed and with safety in the country, but there are delays and hazards of congestion upon entering the city.

"The only way we can get speed and the only way we can get safety in city motor travel is to build facilities with continuous grade separation. These eliminate beyond physical possibility many common types of accidents such as vehicle-pedestrian collisions and cross-traffic crashes.

"One mile of such urban highway would save $20,553 a year by removing from traffic's toll the accidents impossible with continuous grade separation. This money figure is reached by using insurance companies' evaluations of $4,000 as the economic cost of a human death and $250 as the loss from the average nonfatal personal injury."

Study Metropolitan Needs.

Gov. Horner has directed Robert Kingery, acting director of the state department of public works, to ascertain the future program for state highway construction in the metropolitan area desired by this community. Under the auspices of the council traffic committee, Dr. Miller McClintock of the Harvard university traffic research bureau is finishing a comprehensive survey of Chicago's motor transportation problems with a conclusion that roadways with continuous grade separation are a necessity economically as well as from a safety standpoint.

Judge Thomas A. Green of the traffic court, another speaker at the dinner, told of favorable results in his campaign to eliminate "fixing tickets." He also told of the effort he is making to get the police to release motorists on their own recognizance in arrests for minor traffic violations when the drivers are able to identify themselves, but cannot immediately post cash bail.

Summons Police Officials.

Judge Green has summoned Police Commissioner Allman and six district captains to appear before him this morning and explain why motorists arrested on minor charges have been held in jail while awaiting bail.

Robert Anderson, 617 South Sacramento avenue, told the court yesterday that he was held all night by the police. He was arrested for not having a 1933 license on a car he had borrowed to get a crib for his five months' old baby. Matthew Kwasmik, 1365 North Hoyne avenue, said he was held eight hours before he could post $50 bail in a license case. Paul Schultz, 7322 Peoria street, said he was held six hours, and Chris Emerson, 3624 West 60th place, said he was held three hours.

The police captains called by the judge are John Egan of Chicago Lawn station, Joseph Johnson of Pekin, Thomas Kilroy of New City, Luke Garrick of North Damen avenue, Patrick Collins of Des Plaines and Christopher Hughes of Maxwell street.

ROOSEVELT O. K.'S STAMP DESIGNS FOR CHICAGO FAIR

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—As an enthusiastic and discriminating philatelist, President Roosevelt today examined the designs for the commemorative postage stamps for Chicago's Century of Progress exposition and pronounced them good.

The designs were submitted to him by M. L. Eidsness, superintendent of the division of stamps of the postoffice department, and C. B. Eihlenberger, third assistant postmaster general. After examining the designs the President discussed the hobby of stamp collecting with his visitors. He has obtained the first sheet of the Chicago stamps for his collection.

The Chicago stamps are of two denominations, one cent and three cent. The one cent stamp bears an engraving of Fort Dearborn blockhouse and on the three cent stamp there is a picture of the new Chicago postoffice. Distribution of the stamps is to begin the middle of May.

PEIPING, China, April 13.—(AP)—The United States legation was informed today that Chinese bandits, who kidnaped Dr. Niels Nielsen, American medical missionary, south of Mukden, Manchuria, yesterday, are holding him for 500,000 Mexican dollars (about $100,000) ransom.

The legation made representations to the Japanese authorities here and to United States Consul General Myers in Mukden to effect negotiations for Nielsen's release.

GIRL, 5, IS KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE; FIVE OTHERS DIE

Antoinette Klocek, 5 years old, 2502 Clybourn avenue, was killed last night in front of her home by an automobile driven by John Janson, 28 years old, 618 Fullerton parkway, who took her to the Alexian Brothers' hospital. Janson said the girl ran in front of his car and that the accident was unavoidable.

The death of the Klocek child and five others yesterday increased the motor toll in Cook county since Jan. 1 to 237. The other victims:

Genevieve Jerz, 5 years old, 1958 Cullerton street. Died in the county hospital. She was struck by an automobile in front of her home Wednesday.

Lester Parnell, 13 years old, 249 West 95th street, a Negro. Killed by a motor truck at State and 95th streets.

Jacob Detterback, 68 years old, 2038 Irving Park boulevard. Fatally injured by an automobile driven by Dr. Jacob Meyer, 1257 South Lawndale avenue.

Patrick Dunne, 54 years old, 3921 Arthington street. Died in county hospital of injuries suffered April 1.

Mrs. Mary Jane Ford, 28 years old, 550 Surf street, was killed last night when an automobile in which she was riding overturned at Skokie and Hibbard roads, in the west end of Wilmette. Her husband, Edward W. Ford, an attorney, who was driving the car, suffered only slight injuries.

Solly Schuman, 21 years old, 3753 Ogden avenue, who, the South State street police say, is a professional fighter in the flyweight division, was severely cut and bruised and Abraham Grodner, 55 years old, 1340 South Newberry avenue, a merchant, suffered fractured of several ribs when the automobile in which they were riding, driven by Schuman, collided with an interstate motor bus at 11th street and Michigan avenue early today. Herbert Show of Flint, Mich., the bus driver, was not held.

DECLINE IN AUTO ACCIDENTS LAST YEAR REPORTED

New York, April 13.—[Special.]—There was a decided depression last year in automobile accidents, according to statistics given out today by Owen B. Augspurger, president of the Automobile club of New York.

There were 29,000 motor deaths in the country in 1932 and 905,000 persons were injured; the deaths in 1931 were 33,500 and 1,120,000 persons were injured.

The number of accidents, Augspurger said, was considerably less, but there was an increase of 1.3 per cent in deaths per accident and an increase of 2.2 per cent in injuries per accident.

One Missing, 11 Firemen Overcome in New York Fire

New York, April 14 (Friday).—[Special.]—A watchman was missing, 11 firemen were overcome or injured, and the interior of a two story packing plant was destroyed by fire early this morning in the Bronx. The building was the Bronx and Westchester plant of Morris & Co., one of a line of such buildings in which the week-end supplies of Morris & Co., Swift & Co., and Armour & Co. are stored.

SALTIS, ACCUSED BY BONDSMAN, IS FREED IN COURT

Joe Saltis, once a leading beer racketeer on the southwest side, was freed from a charge of operating a confidence game yesterday. Judge Matthew D. Hartigan told the complainant, Karol D. Stahulek, 4554 Gross avenue, the matter should be taken into the civil courts.

The case grew out of a $5,000 bond forfeiture in the federal court in 1928. Stahulek scheduled a farm in Orland so that Saltis might be at liberty while awaiting trial on a liquor charge. When the liquor case came up in federal court Saltis was in the midst of his 208 day evasion of the police, who were seeking him to make him serve a 60 day sentence for carrying a concealed weapon. The liquor case bond was forfeited and federal authorities refused to set aside the forfeiture when Saltis surrendered until Stahulek had paid $2,700 in court costs.

"We were friends for 26 years," Stahulek told the court. "He was home all the time and I used to plead with him to go to court. Finally, a year later, when he decided to go see what they wanted with him, the bond had been forfeited. He refused to pay me my $2,700." Saltis claimed that Stahulek owed him $2,900 and said that he had canceled $2,700 of the debt.

POLICE EXPLAIN TOWING CHARGES ON STOLEN AUTOS

Three Garages Given All the Business.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 83; recovered, 85; stripped, 13 [from police records for the twenty-four hours ending at midnight Wednesday].

Court cases: Joseph Jay, sentenced to 1 year in House of Correction; Thomas Maher, John Doyle, William Bailey, and John Turner, put on probation for auto larceny by Judge Joseph Graber.

Stanley Olson, George Theil and Walter Chrafila, sentenced to 1 year in House of Correction by Judge John Gutknecht for auto larceny.

Mitchell Manchinsky, sentenced to six months in House of Correction by Judge Joseph McGarry for receiving stolen property.

"Why is there a towing charge of at least $7.50 on every stolen automobile recovered by the police?" Lieut. Philip Parodi, head of the automobile detail of the detective bureau, was asked yesterday.

"Unless the owner can call for his car within an hour or so after it is found we must send it to one of the designated garages," Lieut. Parodi answered. "We can't keep it in front of a police station or where it is found; it might be stolen again unless a policeman is detailed especially to guard it.

"Policemen or the city would be responsible for any accident occurring while driving a recovered car. The garage employé or owner would be responsible for any accident while driving to the garage, so it is towed instead of being driven."

Three Garages Get the Business.

Three garages get the towing business from the police department. The Fair Oaks garage, 925 Fair Oaks avenue, is one of the designated places. Another is the Nash Motors garage at 2360 Prairie avenue, and the third is the Stadium garage at 11th and State streets, adjacent to police headquarters.

The Nash garage obtained this business on Dec. 15, 1932, and since then police have turned over 1,180 cars to it. Since the beginning of the Cermak administration the Fair Oaks garage has been given custody of 4,087 autos; 4,765 autos went to the Stadium garage in the same time. All charge $7.50 and up for each car, police said, and $1 a day storage. If the cars are insured the insurance companies pay this charge.

Garages Sign Receipts.

Questioned about automobiles that have been stolen and stripped by the thieves Lieut. Parodi said that the police list everything missing from a recovered car and require a garage representative to sign a receipt giving full details of the car taken in tow. Thieves can strip a car on the street in five minutes or so, even taking off the four wheels, police said. The majority of the stripped cars found are reported from the West Chicago avenue, Maxwell street and Marquette districts. A majority are stolen in the loop and near north side, records showed.

A north side resident complained that an automobile for which he paid $2,000 four years ago was stolen and recovered a few days ago badly damaged. The Fair Oaks garage had a bill of $14 against the car, and a junk company paid $20 for the car, which was not insured, leaving the owner $6 net for his car.

LOSS OF AKRON LAID TO COURSE AT NAVAL QUIZ

Westerly Route Safe, Witness Avers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lakehurst, N. J., April 13.—[Special.]—Four courses of procedure which might have prevented the distrous crash of the United States navy dirigible Akron were outlined here today by witnesses before a navy board of inquiry.

Capt. Anton Heinen, whose experience with dirigibles extends back twenty-two years, said the ship's commander might have got his bearings by lowering the great craft gradually to an altitude of about fifty feet or by ascending to a much greater height.

Might Have Avoided Storm.

Lieut. Charles J. Maguire, expert aerologist, stated the ship could have avoided the storm center in which it found itself.

The greatest air disaster in history, in which seventy-three officers and men lost their lives, might have been averted, this witness said, if the ship had continued on a westerly course after it encountered a storm center over Washington or if it had followed an easterly course earlier in the evening.

The officers of the Akron were warned of thundershowers by the ship's aerologist before the craft was taken from its hangar here on April 3 to begin its last fatal flight. That was testified by an earlier witness.

Expert Expected Showers.

Lieut. F. A. Dartsch, an assistant aerologist, revealed that he and Lieut. M. Herbert Wescoat, aerologist aboard the Akron, conferred in the afternoon and that the latter forecast thundershowers. Lieut. Dartsch said he agreed with Lieut. Wescoat, that there would probably be showers. The weather forecast for this area was "cloudy with probable showers," the wind was estimated at 25 knots aloft.

Lieut. Dartsch said he and Wescoat agreed on the forecast off the New England coast, where the Akron was to have calibrated radio compass stations. The forecast there was for easterly winds and rain.

Under questioning by Lieutenant Commander Pennoyer, judge advocate, the witness said he felt that flying conditions were favorable for the Akron on the evening of April 3 but not for the J-3, a much smaller craft. The latter ship was not taken out until the next day, when it was felt that conditions were favorable.

Lieut. Maguire said that he heard Lieut. Wescoat predict thundershowers, but said he did not believe that Lieut. Wescoat considered them dangerous, although he felt "the situation one of dubiousness."

"I recall that Lieut. Wescoat remarked to Lieut. Dartsch as he passed through the observatory that they might encounter showers," he said, "and Wescoat felt that if showers occurred they would porbably be thundershowers. But he did not think such a probability high enough to warrant a forecast of thundershowers."

Wiley Asks Questions.

Under cross-examination by Lieut. Commander Herbert B. Wiley, the sole surviving officer of the Akron, Lieut. Maguire said he believes that if the Akron had headed eastward at 8 or 9 o'clock it would have avoided the storm conditions it encountered. Commander Wiley is a technical defendant under navy regulations, and as such has the privilege of cross-examination.

"Did you have any reason to doubt the advisability of the ship's going out?" Rear Admiral Butler asked.

"No, sir," the witness said.

Commander Pennoyer announced that the court will move to Washington next week. There further hearings will be held.

BODY OF ADMIRAL MOFFETT RESTS IN ARLINGTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, late chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, lay tonight in Arlington cemetery in such a grave as the nation reserves for its heroes of land and sea and air.

In another newly made grave on a nearby knoll lay the body of Commander Frank C. McCord.

Brooding over these two who died when the airship Akron plunged into the sea stood the white marble mass of the national amphitheater with its proud inscription. "Dulce Et Decorum Est Pro Patria Mori."

Commander McCord, who commanded the Akron when it fell, was buried shortly before noon today.

"Missing Flyer Formation."

Two hours later to the melancholy pomp of Chopin's Funeral March played by the navy band the procession escorting Admiral Moffett's body started through the cemetery gates from Fort Myer.

Behind the band in slow time marched a detachment of marines guarding the colors borne by bluejackets.

Bay horses, coats and harness shining, ridden by army artillerymen, drew the caisson bearing the flag covered casket. Beside the caisson as honorary pallbearers marched the great of the navy.

Widow Dressed in Black.

As the procession approached down the long aisle between the thousand or more who had gathered at the graveside came a marching group of blue uniforms. These were the men that had served with the admiral—officers and petty officers, and seamen with their white caps still perched doggedly over one eye. Overhead rode two flights of planes. They flew in a wide V, but to the left and behind each leading plane there was a gap. It was the "missing flyer" formation.

The slow march reached the head of the long aisle. Through the ranks of the respectful and the curious the casket was borne. On the bright flag lay the admiral's sword and cap. In front paced Capt. Sydney K. Evans, chief of the navy's corps of chaplains.

The band played "Lead Kindly Light." Capt. Evans read the brief services. The bark of a marine officer broke into the stillness, leather slings slapped against the polished forearms of the Springfields as the rifles of the firing squad pointed into the sky. Three times the rifles volleyed. Then came the slumbrous notes of "Taps" carrying across the sunlit hollow to the amphitheater and the tomb where the unknown soldier sleeps.

And after "Taps" again the boom of the field piece at Fort Meyer, firing 13 guns for a rear admiral who was home not only from the sea but from the vague, unexplored reaches and dangers of the sky.

MACON'S FIRST TEST FLIGHT POSTPONED FOR SECOND TIME

Akron, O., April 14 (Friday).—(AP)—Shifting winds today caused a second postponement of the maiden flight of the navy's newest dreadnaught of the air, the U. S. S. Macon, twin of the late Akron.

Mud—ordinarily associated with army tanks instead of navy airships—forced cancellation of the original plan to test the 785 foot airship yesterday. The Macon wouldn't have minded the puddles but the 130 ton mobile mooring mast that will lead her from her airdock might have had plenty of trouble on soft footing.

Capt. Alger H. Dresel, the Macon's skipper, called off the delayed flight, scheduled for 5:30 a. m. [eastern standard time] today, when the navy weather bureau staff detected signs of adverse weather conditions on its map. Capt. Dresel said he would study a later map at noon and decide at that time when the flight might be attempted.

LANG GIVES UP ON CHARGE OF SHOOTING NITTI

Furnishes $15,000 Bail Pending Trial.

Harry Lang, suspended from the police department after his arrest in connection with his shooting of Frank Nitti, business manager of the old Capone syndicate, surrendered yesterday before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court and furnished bail of $15,000 on indictments charging him with perjury and assault to kill.

Nitti, whose rôle was changed from that of defendant on a charge of having tried to kill Policeman Lang to that of prosecuting witness in the proceedings against Lang for having shot him, did not have to leave his automobile when he appeared at the Criminal court building in the morning. He had been subpoenaed to appear yesterday, but inasmuch as the trial is not to be held until April 20, Deputy Sheriff Jack Rellihan went to his automobile and served him with a new writ calling for his appearance in court at that date.

Nitti was said to be still an invalid as the result of his three wounds and to have suffered a relapse recently.

Fails to Identify Nitti.

The change in the positions of Lang and Nitti was due to Lang's failure to identify Nitti at the hearing in which Nitti was the defendant. Lang had testified before the grand jury that he shot Nitti after the latter wounded him in the arm during a raid on Nitti's loop office made by Lang and his partner, Detective Harry Miller.

Lang's failure to support his previous identification of Nitti resulted in an investigation by Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty. Miller testified that he had heard a rumor to the effect Lang had been paid $15,000 by Ted Newberry, a gangster who has since been slain, to kill Nitti.

Policeman a Witness.

The testimony of Sergt. Chris Callahan, who was present at the time of the raid, was to the effect that Nitti was unarmed when shot by Lang. Extra compensation voted to Lang and Miller for "meritorious service" was revoked, and Lang was indicted on the two charges, the perjury indictment resulting from his original grand jury testimony.

Yesterday Lang repudiated a statement by one of his attorneys that "we'll blow the Democratic party apart if this prosecution is not stopped." He said he had not authorized any such statement and had no revelations to make.

SNOW IN EAST TWO FEET DEEP; CROPS DAMAGED

Boston, Mass., April 13.—[Special.]—Snow, lying in some places 28 inches deep, gave New England states prospects of a white Easter today. The snowfall, born on a heavy easterly storm, carried down many miles of telephone and telegraph lines, did other damage, and delayed railroad and other transportation.

Crop damage of a serious nature was feared by farmers whose spring planting had begun to sprout, and damage to orchards was also looked for.

The blinding snow resulted in one death, in an auto crash, and four men were injured in a collision between an automobile and street car near Northampton, Mass.

Unusually high tides and surf damaged seacoast villages and endangered small vessels, keeping coast guard men busy. The yacht Simea was reported aground and breaking up on the north shore of Long Island sound. A coast guard boat was standing by.

BANK SUES ITS EX-PRESIDENT TO RECOVER FUNDS

Charges of Fraud Made in Oak Park Case.

Suit for an accounting and the recovery of funds allegedly taken from the Prairie State bank, Oak Park, by Harvey R. Dow, former president, was filed in the Circuit court yesterday by Attorney Delbert A. Clithero, representing the bank. The bill in equity makes no estimate of the amount Dow is charged with taking, but a report of Touche, Niven & Co., auditors, on which the suit was based, fixes the total at approximately $73,000.

Letters received by stockholders of the bank yesterday, relative to a 50 per cent stock assessment made with the reopening of the bank after the moratorium, explained that the necessity of the assessment was not due to the present management and that provision had been made to charge off all assets classed as doubtful. A total of $50,000 was put up by directors to cover the stock assessment and the present cash position of the bank is said to be unusually strong—about 70 per cent of the deposits.

Dow Accused of Deception.

Among other allegations, Dow is accused in the suit of deceiving and misleading three directors of the bank, constituting the discount committee, by representing repurchases of mortgage loans by the bank as renewals, and obtaining in that manner their approval of the transactions. The suit charges that such loans in most instances were purchased by Dow, from the bank, and later sold back to the bank when there were defaults on the mortgages.

The suit charges that Dow deceived one of the directors to the extent of obtaining his signature and approval of loans made prior to his becoming a director, in some instances the loans having antedated his election as a director by approximately six months.

The bill does not name this director.

Details of Charges.

The suit charges that, in purchasing the mortgage loans from the bank for his own investment, Dow paid the par value thereof, but in no instance paid the accrued and unpaid interest. It is further charged that when the interest payments on the notes were defaulted Dow substituted the notes for the bank's cash in amounts including not only the face value but the accrued interest as well.

One of the mortgage loan transactions in which Dow is alleged to have defrauded the bank, the suit charges, concerned a loan made to Nicola Guardalabene by Dow as president of the bank, in the amount of $3,100. In July, 1930, the bill declares, Dow purchased this mortgage from the bank and "while it was in default, Guardalabene being unable or unwilling to pay the interest thereon, on the 3d day of June, 1932, Harvey R. Dow, without any authority, put said mortgage back into the assets of the bank and abstracted the sum of $3,133.58."

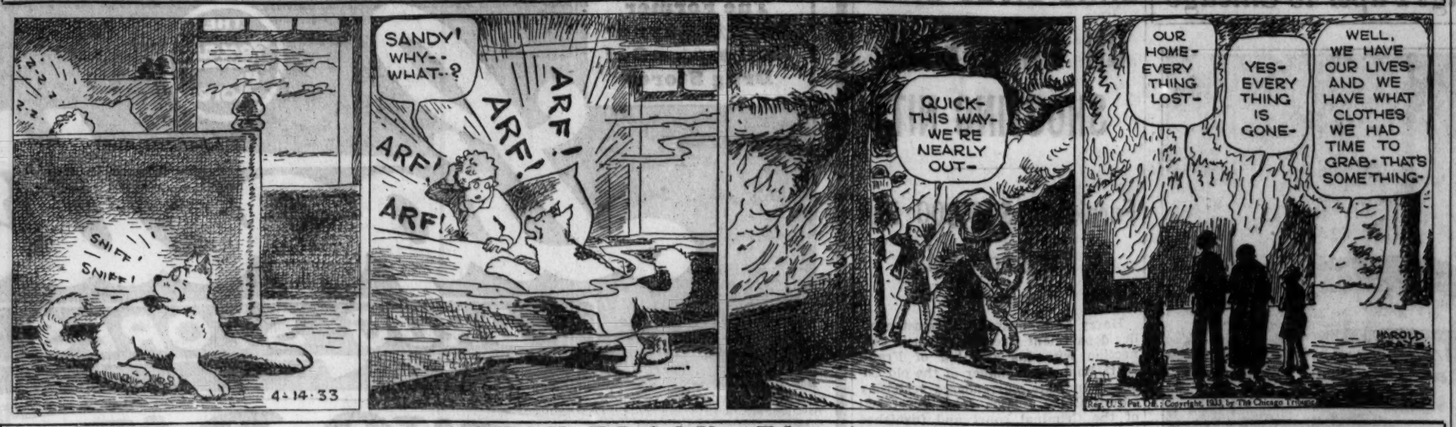
The bill charges Dow with removing ledger, teller's and cash register sheets and other records from the bank and with making false entries, altering dates and substituting records.

Dow Ousted from Bank.

Dow was ousted from the bank early in November and the auditing concern was engaged to make an examination of the books. A claim was made upon the Continental Casualty company, maker of Dow's bond, but the claim was rejected. Dow is said to have put up $50,000 worth of securities in escrow to cover any losses to the bank that may be traced to him.

Dow is receiver of the Madison Square State bank, an appointee of former State Auditor Oscar Nelson. An examination of the books of the Madison Square bank showed them to be in good condition, it was said by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett's assistants.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Disaster



DICK TRACY—The Arrival

PROTEST ADDED TIME FOR CHICAGO RADIO STATION

Hurts Existing Field of Service Here.

Washington, D. C., April 13.—[Special.]—Chicago's many broadcasting stations face increased danger of loss or reduction of their facilities as a result of the federal radio commission's decision granting station WBBM full time operation during evening hours, it was contended today by station W-G-N of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, in an appeal filed in the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

The appeal was accompanied by a petition for a stay order to enjoin the commission from making its ruling effective.

Filed by Louis G. Caldwell of Washington, former general counsel of the commission, the petition recited that the commission granted WBBM authority to engage in so-called "synchronous night time operation" with station KFAB of Lincoln, Neb., on March 24, without proper hearing.

Aids Commercial Use.

The effect of the action, he contended, "is to authorize full time operation for WBBM in Chicago for commercial purposes under the guise of an 'experimental' grant."

W-G-N, along with other Chicago stations, "faces an increased hazard in protecting its and their present facilities," the appeal alleged, "due to the claim constantly made by the commission that Illinois, and particularly the Chicago area, now has more than its equitable share of broadcasting facilities."

Moreover, Mr. Caldwell stated, W-G-N is an applicant for an increase in power from 25,000 watts to the maximum of 50,000 watts. Granting of additional hours to WBBM, he said, materially increases the total facilities in the Chicago area, and to that extent prejudices W-G-N's pending application.

Violate Own Regulations.

The appeal alleges that the WBBM grant was improper because it violates the radio law and the commission's own regulations. From a technical standpoint, W-G-N contends that the simultaneous operation of the two stations will immediately deprive a large rural area around Lincoln of any clear channel service from station KFAB and will "irreparably destroy reception of such service in that area."

INSULL HEARING LAWYER RETURNS FROM GREECE

New York, April 13.—[Special.]—Andrew J. Vlachos, who represented the state of Illinois in the proceedings before the Court of Appeals at Athens, which denied that Samuel Insull was guilty of an extraditable crime, returned today on the Italian liner Saturnia.

Mr. Vlachos expressed the opinion that the Court of Appeals of Greece was all wrong.

He said its decision was in violation of the extradition treaty between Greece and the United States, which was ratified after Insull fled from Chicago but before his trial. The court, said Mr. Vlachos, also went beyond its jurisdiction in examining the substance of the case and in holding the indictment of the Cook county, Ill., grand jury invalid.

But, said Mr. Vlachos, who was educated in Greece, but lived most of his life in Chicago, nothing can be done about it. He said he believes Insull will remain in Greece, where he is living "like a king."

INDICT MITCHELL ON NEW U. S. TAX EVASION CHARGE

New York, April 13.—[Special.]—A second indictment against Charles E. Mitchell, resigned chairman of the National City bank, was handed up today in federal court.

It added the payment of $156,791.09 in income taxes for the year 1930 by a fraudulent sale of $759,000 worth of stock which he repurchased five months later for substantially the same sum.

The indictment was handed up to Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman. It is understood to have been obtained on information Thomas E. Dewey, chief assistant United States attorney, and Murray Gurfein, another assistant, obtained while they were looking into Mitchell's nonpayment of income tax for 1929. He is already under indictment for that account.

WED 50 YEARS APRIL 15.

Kewanee, Ill., April 13.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Rodgers, Kewanee, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Saturday, April 15. Eva Ferguson and Oscar Rodgers were married in Dayton, Mich., and came to Kewanee in 1884.

NEW TRIAL DENIED IN CITY LIGHTING CONSPIRACY CASE

Judge Thomas J. Lynch of the Criminal court yesterday overruled a motion for a new trial in behalf of Harry A. Johnson, former president of the Electrical Contracting company, and four suspended city employés convicted of conspiracy to defraud the city of $250,000 on a street lighting contract.

"I have studied the evidence carefully," Judge Lynch said, "and in my opinion there is no prejudicial error in the record of the case. The defendants received a fair trial by a jury as they requested, and I see no legal grounds for granting this motion."

Johnson and John A. Muerling, suspended city electrical engineer, are under sentence to serve two years in Joliet and pay fines of $5,000. Eugene A. Quinn, former city contract inspector; Frank Wargoske, once custodian of the south side city material yard, and Joseph Duffy, a suspended clerk, the other defendants, were sentenced to serve one year in the county jail and fined $50 each.

The defendants were brought to trial after an investigation by the Citizens' association of the million dollar lighting contract let to Johnson's company. The state charged that the defendants skimped on materials and used city material without paying for it.

Robbers Fire Shotgun to Enforce Commands

Three women and one man, employés of the Vogler Schillo company, pickle manufactureres at 1690 Elston avenue, were slow in obeying orders to lie on the floor yesterday and the leader of five robbers fired a warning charge from a shotgun. The robbers then took $500 and fled. The victims were Mrs. Emma Reinle, Mrs. Mary Miller, Miss M. E. Heinrich and Theodore Evers.

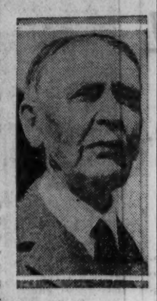
ADELBERT AMES, LAST CIVIL WAR GENERAL, DIES

Ormond Beach, Fla., April 13.—(AP)—Gen. Adelbert Ames, last surviving Union general of the civil war, died at his winter home here tonight. He was 97 years old.



GEN. ADELBERT AMES.

Gen. Ames was a crony of John D. Rockefeller. For years he has been one of John D.'s golf companions.

The general was the oldest living graduate of the United States Military academy and served his nation with distinction both during the war between the states and the Spanish-American war.

He was provisional governor of Mississippi during the carpetbagger era of reconstruction in that state. He was the last northern governor of a southern state.

He also served as United States senator from Mississippi..

Racial clashes and activities of the original Ku Klux klan marred his term and when white Democrats regained power of the state government Ames was threatened with impeachment. He offered to resign as governor if the impeachment proceedings were withdrawn, and when this was done he quit his office in 1876 and returned north.

He was wounded in one leg at the first battle of Manassas. But despite this he fought at Gettysburg against Gen. Robert E. Lee, whom he had known as a professor at West Point.

Gen. Ames was born at Rockford, Me., Oct. 31, 1835.

WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels, and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

All Christians Today Observe Death of Christ

Solemn Rites Will Mark Good Friday.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

While the churches of all Christian creeds will push their preparations today and tomorrow for celebrating the victory of Easter, today will have the shadow of the cross thrown upon it. It was, as many believe, just 1,900 years ago today that three crosses were raised outside the walls of Jerusalem. One of them bore the Savior to his death.

Although since then the Easter victory over death has made the cross a triumphant symbol, nevertheless Good Friday is increasingly observed by Catholics and Protestants alike in moods which fit the spirit of the anniversary of Christ's agony and death. The central services of the day extend from "the sixth to the ninth hour," from 12 until 3, and are known as the three hour service or tre ore.

Good Friday this year has a doubly solemn significance for Americans. It was just 68 years ago tonight that another of the world's emancipators, Abraham Lincoln, was felled in martyrdom. This is the third time since April 14, 1865, that Good Friday has coincided with the date of the assassination of the Great Emancipator. The others were in 1875 and in 1922.

In Catholic and Episcopal churches whose services on other days are marked by impressive ritual, the three hour service, in contrast to this, is extreme in its simplicity. The crosses, crucifixes, and roods are veiled in crêpe. Candles on the altars either remain unlighted or are removed, and the blessed sacrament is removed from the tabernacle. The practice of the historic churches forbids the offering of mass, celebration of holy communion, or offering the holy mysteries, although the mass of the presanctified is observed in Catholic and many Episcopal churches on Good Friday.

The tre ore is marked by silence, quiet prayers, solemn hymns, and meditations by pastors or visiting priests on the seven last words of Christ from the cross. The three hour service follows similar lines in the Protestant churches. While each Catholic church has its own observance of Good Friday, the growing practice among Protestant churches is to unite either for the three hour or other services in keeping with the day.

The largest of these joint services will be held from 12 to 3 at the Chicago temple, Washington and Clark streets, under the auspices of the Chicago Church federation, and the First Methodist Episcopal church. Discourses on the seven last words will be delivered by Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf, and the Rev. Drs. Albert Buckner Coe, Ernest Graham Guthrie, Harrison Ray Anderson, John Crippen Evans, Benjamin F. Smith, and Asa J. Ferry.

Five Wilmette churches will unite in a similar service in the Episcopal church of that north shore suburb. On the south side, 41 churches will join in the three hours in three central churches of that area. These services will be held at the Englewood Methodist Episcopal church, 64th street and Stewart avenue, the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue, and the Calvary Methodist Episcopal church, 78th and Morgan streets. In Rogers Park, churches representing several denominations will unite in the three hours at St. Paul's-by-the-Lake Episcopal church.

Dr. John Henry Hopkins, rector emeritus of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, 65th street and Blackstone avenue, will preach the three hour service. At St. Paul's Episcopal church, Dr. Daniel A. McGregor, newly appointed head of the world-wide educational work of the Episcopal church, will preach the three hour meditations.

At the Holy Name cathedral, the Very Rev. Msgr. Philip F. Mahoney will preach at the tre ore. The music will be by the Cardinal's Cathedral Men's choir and boy choristers. In all Catholic churches except St. James' and St. Patrick's the tre ore will be held only at the traditional hours. In those two churches, located near the loop, the service will be held from 6 to 9 at night.

At 8 o'clock this morning in St. Mary's church, 9th street and Wabash avenue, the Paulist priests will commemorate the crucifixion of Christ at approximately the exact hour tradition claims the event occurred. The Rev. John E. Burke, the pastor, will incorporate in his sermon the reminder that it was on Good Friday just 1,900 years ago at about 4:10 p. m. [Jerusalem time] that Christ died on Calvary.

Pilgrims See Vatican Rites of Holy Week

VATICAN CITY, April 13.—(AP)—Priests poured wine and water on the central altar stone of St. Peter's this evening to commemorate Christ's sufferings 1,900 years ago as he hung on the cross.

Holy year pilgrims packed the immense basilica to witness the symbolic rites. The liquid, carried to the altar in seven chalices of crystal and one of gilded metal, represented the blood and water that flowed from Christ's side.

Clergymen then imparted a blessing with sacred relics, among them portions of the cross, the holy veil of Veronica and the lance with which the centurion pierced Christ's body. Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen of Germany was one of those present at the ceremony.

Earlier in the day the pope revived a Holy Thursday custom abandoned 63 years ago. He became the first pontiff since Pius IX. to carry the blessed sacrament from its tabernacle to the Pauline chapel, where it is now exposed.

He will again follow the procedure of the old pontiffs tomorrow, Good Friday, by carrying it back to the tabernacle, in the Sistine chapel, where he will say a special mass.

Society Retains Its Interest in Bible Schools

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

In at least two Chicago households there is never a Sunday breakfast "en famille." One is the LeRoy Kramers'. The other is the Homer L. Dixons'. Shortly after 9 o'clock every Sabbath morning Mrs. Kramer is up and off to St. Chrysostom's church, where she instructs a class of 15 and 16 year olds and Mrs. Dixon leaves her residence in Lakeview avenue for the Fourth Presbyterian church to superintend the beginners.

It would be hard to find two better qualified Bible school teachers than Mrs. Kramer and Mrs. Dixon. They have trained themselves for their positions, they have had years of experience, and they are equally devoted to their work. This Holy week, when most of us are giving an extra hour or so to meditation, a few notes from their Sunday school manuals are appropriate.

There is as much interest in Bible training, as much feeling for the need of it as there was a generation ago, Mrs. Kramer, a Fundamentalist in her belief, explains. As proof she points to the attendance of 225 young people weekly at St. Chrysostom's and the gathering of 600 boys and girls with a few grownups every Sunday at the Fourth church. The difference between Sunday school today and in the Victorian nineties, she says, is a more scientific approach in teaching.

The year a young woman makes her debut is the Sunday school problem as Mrs. Kramer defines it [and she speaks feelingly, having a debutante daughter of her own. . . . Miss Julia Kramer]. "Children come to their Sunday school classes and love them," she said. "As a rule the boys start earlier than the girls. But when the girls reach the 'coming out' age they drop one by one. I suppose it is really too much to expect them to get up for a 9:45 Bible class when they have been out most of the night to a ball. It is interesting, however, to watch these same girls a few years later as they marry and have families of their own. It is then that their interest in Sunday school is renewed."

At the Fourth Presbyterian church last Sunday Miss Ethel Dixon, a debutante of the last season, broke all precedents by appearing for Sunday school with her mother. When the Rev. Clarence N. Wright, the executive minister, expressed his delight at her presence, she assured him it was to become a habit.

Miss Dixon has also taken a place on the church girls' work committee which directs the weekday activities of the young women enrolled in this congregation. Other members include her sister, Mrs. Woodbury S. Agar Jr., Mrs. Halford H. Kittleman, and Mrs. Charles G. Stevens.

Great improvement could be made in the average Sunday school, Mrs. Kramer believes, if it were possible to employ teachers on a salary basis. Having devoted 16 years to Bible study (now she is giving several hours a week to special courses), she appreciates the value of a thorough knowledge of the Bible. Sunday school teaching should demand as much time and training as any other profession, she points out.

"No one can ever say he is through studying the Bible, even if he has attended Sunday school all his life," Mrs. Kramer commented. "After a survey course it may be approached from some special standpoint, Christ as seen through the Old Testament, for instance. There is no more fascinating study. Art is responsible for so much illusion as far as the Old Testament is concerned. The text does not state, for example, that there were three wise men. This idea has grown in large part from the many paintings that represent only three."

Mrs. Kramer has never taught any one age group in Sunday school. For three years she moved along with a class that included Miss Elinor Whiting, Miss Henrietta Countiss, Miss Betty Offield, Miss Betty Kellogg, and Miss Eleanor Jerrems. She will never forget the excitement these girls created in church one Sunday by introducing two white mice to the service.

On the wall of the beginners' department at the Fourth church, where Mrs. Dixon is the superintendent with the assistance of Mrs. Charles S. Pearce, Mrs. Woodruff J. Parker, and Miss Ruth Griffenhagen, there hangs a modern Madonna that represents the long time Sunday school devotion of another well known Chicago family. A painting by the German artist, Sichel, it was the gift of the late Mrs. John B. Drake to the First Presbyterian church 25 years ago when her grandchildren were attending there. Later it was transferred to the Fourth church by Miss Helen V. Drake.

Margaret Dawes, 'Bev' Jefferson Keep Honeymoon Plans Secret

BY JUDITH CASS.

MISS MARGARET DAWES and Beverly Jefferson are keeping secret their honeymoon plans, but no one who knows them would be at all surprised to hear after the wedding on April 28 that the newlyweds had gone on a mountain climbing expedition, for that is Mr. Jefferson's forte and he rapidly is converting Miss Dawes to his way of thinking that mountain climbing is the best sport in the world.

This young Princeton graduate, who took his master's degree at Harvard, has had mountain climbing as a hobby ever since he was a very young lad and already he has several first ascents to his credit. In 1926, just after his graduation from Princeton, he and Robert Cleveland, now of New York but a former Evanstonian, and another young man climbed Black Horn in the Canadian Rockies, about one hundred miles from Jasper park, and were the first to reach the summit. The next summer they scaled Portal and Campus peaks in the same range.

Mr. Jefferson also has emulated a mountain goat in Switzerland, Wales, and the Lakes district of England, where the mountains are not very high but terribly rugged and a test of mountain climbing. Last summer he took his fiancée for her first taste of this dangerous sport out in the mountains around Lake Louise and Banff.

Friends Arrange Many Parties.

There are so many private parties planned for Miss Dawes before her marriage that at first one would think that she will be as tired out as most prominent brides are after the busy weeks before their weddings, but on second thought one realizes that Miss Dawes very sensibly has asked those who wanted to compliment her with parties to arrange them so that she would have plenty of time to rest in between the festivities.

Miss Dawes tells us that she hasn't been awfully well this winter and that the doctor advised twelve hours of sleep every night so that is what she is trying to get; consequently there aren't many evening parties. Tomorrow night her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Dawes, are entertaining at dinner at their apartment on East Elm street. Monday Mrs. Edwin Sherman, the aunt of Miss Dawes' fiancé, and the mother-in-law of the former Jean Dawes, Mrs. Robert Sherman, will entertain at luncheon at her Judson avenue residence in Evanston for Miss Dawes, later taking her guests to a charity card party at the Country club.

Next Thursday afternoon Mrs. Carl S. Jefferson is inviting some of her good friends to tea at her residence on Judson avenue in Evanston to meet her future daughter-in-law and a new daughter-in-law, Mrs. William Jefferson. The next afternoon Mrs. Harold F. Yegge of Evanston is entertaining for Miss Dawes and that night Mrs. Robert E. Wilsey of Sheridan road, Evanston, will give a bridge party for Miss Dawes, "Bev" Jefferson, and the William Jeffersons.

Several Functions in Evanston.

On Saturday, the 22d, about 25 of the future bridegroom's friends are giving him his bachelor dinner, and Mrs. Charles Henry Bosworth will give Miss Dawes her spinster dinner that night. The next day, Sunday, Miss Mary Dawes will be a hostess at a tea for her cousin at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Dawes, on Greenleaf avenue in Evanston.

Monday night, the 24th, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherman will give a dinner and game party at their Sheridan road residence in Winnetka for her sister, and the next day Miss Louise Hassel will entertain for Miss Dawes.

Wednesday, the 26th, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes will give the bridal dinner for their daughter at their Fullerton avenue apartment, and later the young people in the party will go somewhere to dance. The next day Mrs. De Witt Davis III. will give a buffet luncheon and bridge and this will end the parties, for the wedding is to be the following day, Friday, the 28th.

The bride's sister, Helen, who is coming from Vassar to be one of the two bridesmaids—Mrs. Sherman will be the other—and the out of town guests will be here just for the last few parties. Among the young people who are coming from away are Miss Betty Brown of Indianapolis, who is to be the maid of honor; Miss Ruth Googins of Fort Worth, Tex.; Harry Hinchman of Detroit, and George Seward of East Orange, N. J.

Horowitz Puts Great Concerto in Lively Arts

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Vladimir Horowitz performed another great service to music last night by playing the solo piano part of Beethoven's "Emperor" concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. It is perhaps one of the greatest things he has ever done in this city.

There are times when it is necessary for a great artist to rescue a great piece of music, to turn it back from a position dangerously near the deadly arts to where it belongs, among the lively arts. Mr. Horowitz did his musical life saving with all the aplomb in the world. It is possible to go astray on the merits of this pianist. He is a technician of such disdainful ease that one who watches his serenity among the marvels he is performing may be deceived into thinking of him as a pianist of externals.

But it is always necessary to absorb music through the ear and not through the eye. It is the ear that told of Mr. Horowitz' constant sense of beauty in the Beethoven work, of the unbroken, continuous line that he carried through the performance. One could naturally pick out details of the greatest charm, but each detail was joined to the next detail until there was complete unity in the entire composition.

Similarly one who puts too much dependence upon his eyesight in a concert might be deceived about Mr. Stock, in fact there are some who have been. It is caused by his incurable habit of dramatizing the music he is conducting and his persistent refusal to dramatize himself as a conductor. But again the ear had something to testify about his performance of a striking symphony Reinhold Gliére's "Ilia Mourometz," and, for that matter, Anatole Liadow's "Baba Yaga." It has been some fifteen years since he started conducting the Gliére work, but it is still impressive and at times amusing. It is overemphasized, highly colored, with few gentle gradations, and it is in that spirit that Mr. Stock conducts it and makes it a masterful performance.

Modern "Mona Lisa"

Maxine Walker of Glencoe, student at the Art institute, chosen as modern "Mona Lisa."

Miss Maxine Walker of Glencoe, 21 years old, a student at the Art institute, won the contest in which a modern Mona Lisa was picked yesterday "hands down," for although there were several girls with mysterious smiles and eyes there was no one with quite as enigmatic a look and as close a resemblance to Da Vinci's famous model as Miss Walker.

Perhaps part of her elusive charm was due to her surprise, for she literally had been yanked out of a lecture class at the institute by a friend who had just heard of the contest and told to rush over to the Goodman theater. Out of breath and not knowing why she was there she rushed into the theater and immediately became the leading contestant, and it was not long before the judges, Mrs. Charles H. Conrad, Mrs. Walter Paepcke, David Leavitt, John W. Root, and George L. Dickson, selected her.

Miss Walker will be painted by Mr. Leavitt as the modern Mona Lisa and her portrait will be hung in the foyer of the Goodman the night Dr. Maurice Gnesin's play, "Leonardo da Vinci" is produced as a Midwest Review of Literature gala occasion on April 22. Miss Narcissa Swift was Miss Walker's chief rival for the distinction of being the modern Mona Lisa.

Good Morning!

"Bye-lo, Baby. Sell low, Able!"

So sings Daniel Pardway, the rising department store owner, to his firstborn.

The Palace's new picture is a screenization of Lester Cohen's novel. The story is staged in Chicago. While largely fictional, the life of Daniel Pardway, who builds his store on State street atop the ashes of the Chicago fire, contains incidents that will bring to mind actual happenings in the building of the city.

Lionel Barrymore gives a magnificent portrayal of Pardway, and it is he throughout who dominates the action. Lesser characters are aptly drawn, but they sink into insignificance beside the towering figure of the man who lives to see his dreams of big business come true—and his hopes and ideals, so far as his children are concerned, disintegrate into sweepings before his eyes. True, there is a gleam amidst the gray as the story ends, for Fred, the youngest Pardway, with head up and eyes fixed on the blazing lights of "The Bazaar's" sign, says quietly:

"I'll try, father."

The story is grim, with only an occasional flash of humor. Gregory Ratoff as Pardway's general manager, Ninetta Sunderland [Mrs. Walter Huston] as Mrs. Pardway, and Eric Linden as Fred do the most effective work. Mrs. Huston, a most interesting looking young woman, has just a suggestion of the Edna May Oliver technique. You are sorry that the Grim Reaper finds it necessary to mow her down early in the proceedings.

Direction is able—if a trifle heavy handed—and costumes and settings of days 'way back when intrigue.

A Waistcoat Adds to Swank of Easter Togs

Contrasts for Suits Hold Shoppers' Interest.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The old guard, even in their heyday of fancy waistcoats, never aspired to such trick affairs as the gals of today tuck under their tailored suits. Easter finery and frippery fill the stores, but the collections that lure the best are the case after case filled with ruffled organdy gadgets, spanking white pique gew-gaws and all the airy trifles that contrast a spring suit.

For instance, the glove and waistcoat combine . . . you'll find them of striped pique, white and red, white and black, or blue or brown. These super-waistcoats are sleeveless just like the flowered waistcoats your grandaddy wore for dress parade, they are cut by a master designer, they fit as smoothly, as suavely and as impeccably as anything contrived in Saville row.

The lapels are things of superlative tailoring, they curve as blandly and as perfectly as your brother's gleaming white evening vest, and they button snugly at the front with four huge pearl buttons. The matching gauntlet gloves are of fabric, with striped pique cuffs that match the waistcoat . . . the stripes of the cuffs are assembled geometrically with a vertical stripe zoming up the front center of each flaring cuff. A knock-out ascot tie also of matching striped pique is available, completing a most unusual trio of sartorial splendor for street suits.

Crinkled cotton, heavy thick stuff, fashions some very masculine waistcoats, made with a plain satin-ish back section . . . look for them in a stunning butter yellow. They, too, fit with a rib hugging smoothness and fasten swankily at the waistline with two ball buttons on a tape. White models of this same number can be paired with the waistcoat if you are in a matching mood.

If you have been wailing about the severity of ascot ties, you'll be excited over some new arrivals that are ruffled to the edge . . . crisp, perky organdy, with the wide flared end sections made of gay dotted organdy and the frilled and fluted edges in plain white. They are exceedingly attractive neckline softeners for tailored flannel or wool suits.

Gloves are descending upon the town in clouds of glory . . . it's nothing at all to find new fabric ideas, such as beige and white numbers edged with pique, and the pique edged with organdy bands, or knitted gloves of mercerized cotton that are about the best looking things you can slip your ten digits into . . . or lively yellow pique with ruffled edges to the cuffs, or the same thing in navy blue, or clever white piques with a colored ruffle running around the outside of the cuff . . . the dizzier and more unusual the gloves, the smarter and more distinctive the appreciative shopper.

Do the Easter Rabbits Lay the Easter Eggs?

SOME children think so. And although we neither agree nor disagree with them, we do say that there's something very special and very magical about the Easter eggs that A & P has gathered.

This year we've collected a great supply of them. We know that everybody will want to celebrate Easter in the old tradition. For Good Luck's sake, everybody ought to start Easter Day with an egg.

This is a tradition that most people highly approve. For every woman knows that there's no dish so easy to prepare, easy to serve, and easy to pay for as one that's made from good, fresh A & P eggs.

The Easter rabbits didn't lay our Easter eggs. They're the product of America's best hens. And you'll find plenty of them—fresh and newly-laid—selling at extremely low prices in your neighborhood A & P stores.

EGGS WILL BE STEPPING OUT GAYLY SUNDAY

Each Color Once Had a Religious Meaning.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented tomorrow by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 9:45 for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Gala Easter eggs, whether we glorify their jackets with tints and water colors or their interiors with trickles of butter and seasonings, will be stepping out next Sunday all over town, recalling quaint customs and age-old traditions.

In religious rites for thousands of years eggs have symbolized an awakening, a new life—and therefore Easter. So when the small boys and girls at your house spend a happy Saturday before Easter painting and dyeing bright baskets of eggs to be carried around to small friends Easter eve or morning—when they exult over Easter bunnies and thrill over the Easter egg hunt behind the schoolhouse, they are following in the footsteps of children who kept Easter centuries ago.

Tokens of Love.

In some of the mid-European countries gayly colored eggs became love tokens which the young girl gave to her chosen swain. A strange form of complicated batik was often used on these glorious oval creations. Dyes, wax baths, more dyes, and finally separating lines of brushed-on paint produced truly beautiful mazes of color. At one time, in many lands, each color on an Easter egg had a definite religious significance.

In Germany the Easter hare was almost as important a figure in nursery lore as St. Nicholas was at Christmas time. Children were taught that if they were good a white hare would slip into the house Easter eve and leave beautiful colored eggs in odd corners. In the morning with great scramble and hilarity the Easter egg hunt went forward.

In the old tsarist régime in Russia boiled eggs came out of the kitchen as early as the Wednesday before the great day and were set to work upon by the children and their governess in the dining room. For a medium sized family perhaps a hundred eggs would be tinted, for the Easter table was set both in the kitchen and the dining room, and each servant would look forward to at least ten eggs.

Easter Night Salad.

But—Easter eggs there can be which have never felt the artistic touch or been near the dye pot. And it is some of these I'm planning for our Easter night salad. They are called "Eggs in the Grass" and are made simply by nesting halves of hard cooked eggs—two or three of them—in shredded lettuce or curly endive. When the French make this salad they use water cress, dress it with oil and lemon juice, and chop it fine. On this green "lawn" they arrange several thickish slices of hard cooked egg. To top it off there is a small radish cut to represent a rose. A small edition of this makes a delightfully fresh and flavorsome hors d'œuvre with which to open the important Easter meal.

Or if you are casting about for something different serve Easter layer-cake eggs for your dessert. This novel little dessert starts out with a simple sponge cake batter which is poured into custard cups. Fill the cups slightly less than half full and bake as usual. When they have risen they would still not more than half fill the cups. When the cakes have cooled take them by twos and put their flat sides together with icing between them. Presto! An Easter egg! From the following recipe you may make twelve "half" cakes or six Easter layer cake eggs:

EASTER LAYER-CAKE EGGS.

1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
3 eggs, beaten until lemon colored
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice
6 tablespoons hot milk

Measure the sifted flour and then sift again with the baking powder and salt. Add the sugar gradually to the eggs, beating with an egg beater. Add the lemon juice. Now fold in the flour mixture alternating it with the milk. Mix lightly until the mixture is smooth. Turn into an ungreased pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for three-quarters of an hour.

ICING FOR EASTER EGGS.

1 egg white, unbeaten
¼ teaspoon salt
Confectioner's sugar to thicken
2 teaspoons creamed butter

Add the salt to the egg whites and then, without beating, simply stirring with a spoon, add gradually enough sugar to give the icing sufficient consistency to spread. Add the softened butter and blend well. Use to spread between the two halves of the layer Easter eggs. This is a good icing, by the way, to keep in mind for future cake making. It can be used on a cake while it is still warm, and yet holds up excellently.

APPLES STUFFED WITH SAUSAGE! THERE IS AN APPETIZING DISH

An oven dish that adds a savory appeal to a menu is called stuffed apples with sausage. In reality, as the recipe indicates, the dish is "apples stuffed with sausage."

Select red baking apples. Remove the cores and part of the pulp. Mix the scooped out pulp with well seasoned sausage meat, stuff it into the hollow of the apple, and sprinkle the top of the apple with brown sugar. Bake the apple until it is tender. To complete an oven baked meal, with stuffed apples as the main dish, one might serve escalloped onions, whole wheat muffins and butter, and chocolate pudding.

NEW SANDWICH, CALLED RIBBON, EASY TO MAKE

Have you ever served ribbon sandwiches? Well, they're just as dainty as they sound, and you've a treat in store for that luncheon you're planning.

They're made of cream cheese, tinted with food coloring any shade you like and the finished product looks delightful enough to whet the laziest of appetites.

The sandwiches call for four packages of cream cheese, a loaf of sandwich bread, and a cup of chopped nut meats. Remove the crust, slice the bread horizontally any thickness you prefer, and spread all the slices, except the top one with the cream cheese, which has been thinned with cream and blended with the nuts. Each slice may have a different colored cheese, yellow, green, rose, etc.

Place the slices on top of each other as they are completed, so that when you are finished, you have the entire loaf back in shape. Then wrap in a damp cloth, and place in the icebox with weights on top. After an hour or so, the loaf may be sliced in the ordinary fashion, each slice making an attractive, rainbow colored sandwich.

For variation, peanut butter or jelly may be substituted for one of the cheese fillings.

Ribbon sandwiches make a nice accompaniment for practically any kind of a salad, or may be served with a beverage if you wish something very simple.

HOT CROSS BUNS TRACE HISTORY TO ANTIQUITY

Traditional Bread of Good Friday.

You probably won't hear this song under your window in the early morning hours, but if you want to celebrate Good Friday in the traditional manner, you'll have your supply of hot cross buns just the same, whether they're made in your favorite bakery or in your own kitchen.

If you had lived a few centuries ago you might have heard the peddler's Good Friday chant. Or even now, in some of the European countries, you might be able to call from your window for the buns.

Traced to Ancient Times.

Observance of hot cross bun day has become so firmly established in the Christian nations that it is hard to believe that the buns had their beginning in the pagan countries. Long ago, Egyptian cakes were decorated on Good Friday with horns to resemble the sacred heifer and were known as "bous," which may or may not have had anything to do with the derivation of our present term "bun." Similar cakes also existed in China and ancient Mexico.

Here's an interesting recipe:

HOT CROSS BUNS.

1 cup scalded milk
2 tbsp. butter
1-3 tsp. salt
¼ cup sugar
1 yeast cake, dissolved in
¼ cup lukewarm water
¾ tsp. cinnamon
3 cups flour
1 egg, well beaten
¾ cup raisins or ¼ cup currants

To the milk add butter, sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm and add dissolved yeast cake, cinnamon, flour and egg. When thoroughly mixed add raisins or currants. Then cover and let rise until light. Shape into large biscuits, place in a pan about an inch apart, let rise again and brush over with beaten egg. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate hot oven [375 degrees F.].

Simple Icing Recipe.

A simple icing for the "cross" may be made of confectioners' sugar and milk.

Once upon a time, it was believed that if you baked bread on Good Friday and kept it for the ensuing year, a few crumbs of this bread in water would cure virtually any ailment, but this guarantee is not made for the above recipe.

STRAWBERRIES! BISCUIT DOUGH! WHIPPED CREAM!

Are Some Things to Tell World About!

BY ROE FOWLER.

I wonder what man ever did that made him deserve anything as wonderful as a strawberry. What I really mean is strawberry shortcake, but I guess we have to give the strawberry most of the credit for how good the shortcake is. After all, there's no other kind of shortcake that deserves even to be called shortcake. And to think, the home grown strawberries are soon going to be here!

Chance for Inventor.

Some day there may be a contraption invented for shipping shortcake so that it won't crush or soak the crust too much. I wish there was some sort of contraption already, because I know that down in southern Illinois they're beginning to have shortcake at my ma's house, and if she could send me any, I'd be getting it. [Note—this isn't a hint, ma. But of course if you could find somebody that was coming to Chicago and wouldn't mind bringing it, that would be different.]

As much as I like strawberries, I can't help thinking that this here cake dough shortcake like they serve in some restaurants is pretty awful. Pie crust shortcake is better, but even that kind isn't really giving the berry a proper break. What it really takes to make a strawberry comfortable to eat is good old raised biscuit dough shortcake, buttered when hot, covered with berries [berries between the layers, too], and allowed to soak for about ten minutes. The berries, of course, ought to be crushed and allowed to mix and dissolve with sugar for about an hour or two.

He Knows Shortcake.

With some hesitancy I admit that I really do like my shortcake with a dash of fresh, rich whipped cream. Folks are likely to say that coming to the city has ruined me, when they read that, but it isn't so. My mother always served it with whipped cream—during the last few years I was home. Let those who scorn whipped cream just taste some of it on my mother's shortcake, and I'll bet they'd change their tune, too!

There's something slick about the way that great white glommy cloud of fluff mixes in with the bright red juice. It makes the prettiest pink there is, and what's more, it tastes as pretty as it looks. Did you ever notice, by the way, what a handsome dish strawberry shortcake is? It's the city slicker amongst the country dishes, doggoned if it ain't.

Doctor's Word for It.

Strawberry shortcake will never be as sweet as it was one spring. I was away from home, and almost worked to death. It sounds like bragging to say I was almost worked to death, but later on, the doctors assured me that I was. All I knew at the time was that I felt awful. I hadn't had sense enough to give up yet, and I was still dragging myself around.

One of my professors, who is descended from a long line of Scottish kings, took a look at me and decided that I needed a tonic. He suggested that several of us come up for dinner—and all that dinner consisted of was a dishpan size strawberry shortcake, made as only a mother or a Scotchman can make it. The berries were as red and tempting as scarlet sin, and the cake melted as soon as it touched the tongue. And on top of it all, there was cream that was so thick that it couldn't be poured—you got it by digging it out with a tablespoon.

Seemed what Doctor Ordered.

Well, I ought to have died from the amount of the shortcake I ate, but I guess there's some truth in the saying that you can't have too much of anything that's really good. I ate a fourth of a dishpan full of the stuff, and the rest of the week I felt like two other guys—two guys who could lick their weight in wildcats. If your doctor tells you that you need a spring tonic, don't go and take a lot of awful tasting sulphur and molasses. Strawberry shortcake's the best tonic of them all. Say, what did man ever do to deserve anything like the strawberry?

VISITING CO-EDS STUDY DIETS OF MEN STUDENTS

U. of Illinois Girls Here for Research.

A group of visiting co-eds from the University of Illinois who say they want to be dietitians before they settle down to housewifery, nevertheless lent an acute ear last Monday when during an inspection tour of the University of Chicago they heard their guide, Nelle Sawin, associate director of the new men's residence hall and commons, confide the secrets of masculine culinary tastes.

The visitors, all seniors, returned home yesterday after an inspection of the university dormitories, Billings and Michael Reese hospitals, equipment houses, hotels, public markets, wholesale groceries and the stockyards. They are members of a class on institutional management and were accompanied by Miss Evelyn Smith of the Illinois department of home economics.

Men Eat a Great Deal.

"Men eat a lot of bulk," Miss Sawin revealed. "They think they must have a lot of bulk in order to get enough to eat, but then we look after their nutritional requirements, too.

"Men aren't as experimental as women when it comes to selecting what they want to eat," she continued. "If their mothers served them corn, tomatoes and peas, they think they can't get along without just those vegetables here. We can hardly teach them to eat anything else. But after they've been here a year they begin to change their ways.

"The men generally are set in their diet. For instance, when they come from wealthy homes they expect the same delicacies here. Those who come from much less luxurious surroundings are hard to train to eat a delicacy now and then.

Appreciate Good Food.

"But they're all observing and appreciative," Miss Sawin concluded. "Just yesterday we used a glass plate for the strawberry shortcake. A number of them remarked how 'nice and pretty' the dessert looked. Men really want their food as attractive as women do."

Among the foods the men like especially are pastries for desserts, such as lemon pie and pies made with fruit. They don't care much for sweet desserts, Miss Sawin added. Practically all of them simply have to have their potatoes. Contrary to the popular idea that men would as soon as not dispense with a salad, those in the university seem to prefer salads.

"The younger men want meat, but we find that many of the older graduate students are fond of 'vegetable plates,' so we give a choice," Miss Sawin said. "Nearly all of them drink milk, and many both milk and coffee.

"Entirely separate menus are provided for the women students. They are not heavy eaters, and a good part of them watch their diet to avoid too much starch."

Like Heavy Furniture.

The watchful eyes of the visiting co-eds took in the specially constructed tables and chairs in the men's dormitories—just the heavy, substantial kind of furniture that men would like. They noted the cork composition floors and remarked that they ought to absorb grease and be "easy on the feet." They looked the dishes over critically. Miss Sawin explained that two sets were being used and in time it would be known which would stand up better under the wear, tear, and breakage.

CRANBERRY RELISH.

4 cups cranberries
2 cups sugar
1 cup boiling water
1½ cups celery, cut fine

Pick over the washed cranberries. Add sugar and water and boil 20 minutes. Drain. When mixture begins to thicken fold in the celery. Turn into molds and chill. Remove from molds and garnish with curled celery.

HERE'S LEGEND OF HOW EASTER EGGS CAME TO BE

Rabbit Tradition Traced to Germany.

BY DOROTHY MASTERS.

Like many of our present day customs of uncertain origin, the coloring of Easter Eggs has a lengendary basis. Don Jacinthe Verdaguer, famous Catalan poet, has given history this story: "In returning today from the services of the Holy Sepulchre, I noticed in all the tents where victuals were sold that they also had for sale eggs dyed red. I asked the reason for the color, and this is what they said:

"'Once upon a time the Jews gave their children a lot of eggs to throw at Christ as he passed by. Our Lord passed, and the children, as they were about to throw the eggs, noticed that they had turned blood red. Frightened by this miracle, the children ran back to their parents with the eggs. And since then it has been the custom in Italy and elsewhere to sell colored eggs at Easter.'"

About the Easter Rabbit.

Just how the Easter Rabbit came into the story is not definitely known, either, but the Germans for many years have told their children that if they were good and kind during the year a white hare would visit the house at night and leave bright colored eggs for Easter.

The connection probably springs from the age-old association of the hare and the moon. Easter is in a sense a lunar holiday, and the hare, born with open eyes, was fabled as a "watcher of the skies," as was the moon.

Easter eggs and bunnies are usually associated with children, but literature carries many stories of ball games played with bright colored eggs on the church grounds before the Easter services. There are also references to "hare hunts" on Easter.

On Coloring Easter Eggs.

Coloring Easter eggs is comparatively simple, but there are two things that should be kept in mind. To boil the eggs, place them in cold water, and apply slow heat, allowing them to simmer for thirty minutes. Then plunge the eggs into cold water to prevent the formation of a dark ring around the yolk. The ring, though unattractive, is entirely harmless. It is formed by the uniting of the iron in the yolk with the sulphur in the white to form an iron salt. Quick heat toughens the protein, making it hard to digest.

Also, in applying color to the eggs, try to get a "fast dye" that will not come off and stain clothes and hands. In former days mothers used to boil the eggs with pieces of bright colored materials to get their color, but nowadays there are many kinds of prepared dyes. In addition to these colorings, interesting effects may be obtained with the use of crepe paper, dipped in water and rubbed on the eggs, tinted wax and decalcomanias.

WISCONSIN DROPS TO SECOND PLACE IN GROWING OF BEETS

Wisconsin canneries produced last year 300,802 standard cases of beets. The state ranks second in production of that product.

Because of reduced acreage and some unfavorable weather conditions, this production was much smaller than normal, for Wisconsin ordinarily ranks first in beet production. The output last year was only three-tenths of the record crop of 1930 when over a million cases were packed in the state. Because of this low production, New York outranked Wisconsin in beet production last year, although the production was smaller throughout the entire country.

Wisconsin ordinarily packs about one-third of the United States' total beet production and in addition there is also a considerably acreage grown for the fresh market, according to the Wisconsin state crop reporting service. The largest beet acreages in the state are found in the eastern counties with Milwaukee leading, followed by Waukesha, Washington, Brown, Dodge, and Outagamie.

Four Volumes Bring Past to Live with Us

Biography of St. Augustine Is One of Them.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"St. Augustine," by Rebecca West. [Appleton.]

"Macaulay," by Arthur Bryant. [Appleton.]

"Pocahontas," by David Garnett. [Harcourt Brace.]

"Tapestry, the Mirror of Civilization," by Phyllis Ackerman. [Oxford University.]

Recently inaugurated, a series of short biographies of the great by the great, the Appleton biographies have had unprecedented critical success. This week's additions to the series include the work of what has sometimes been called the most brilliant pen in England. Rebecca West, with less published work than any writer of the period, has come to be looked upon by many as the most forceful, the most gifted woman writer of the moment in England. "The Return of the Soldier," "The Judge," and "Harriet Hume" are the only volumes of fiction which she has published.

REBECCA WEST.

But despite the fact that of her creative work all is certainly not of the first water, the first half of "The Judge" is so supreme a work that she shines in the minds of many of her contemporaries and her peers as a very good deed in the naughty world of commonplace writing.

Rebecca West's short life of "St. Augustine" is a brilliant record of a human being, the essence of a character and a personality distilled by a super-scientist of words. She says in a very brief preface: "I have said very little of Augustine's philosophy, of the implications and the influence of 'The City of God,' and of his doctrine of the church as a rule of faith" and explains that there already exist full discussions of his religious import, "while," she continues, "there is still room for a simple account of Augustine's personal life and background." Simple, but with the simplicity of high art, she makes the account of a saint's personal life and background.

The same day we are offered another brilliant short evaluation of a great man, Macaulay, who, whether we realize it or not in our telescope-of-time view of him, was in his own day considered the foremost writer in the English language, much more to the fore than were Dickens and Thackeray. Arthur Bryant pictures his hero as a thoroughly brilliant, successful man, the arch specimen of what we might call the "go-getter" type. Macaulay dominates the pages as a great historian, great orator, great politician, and great statesman, and [humanly] a strangely family-tied brother, emotion bound.

Biography of an entirely different type is that which David Garnett has written in "Pocahontas." Certainly both "Macaulay" and "St. Augustine" are creative biography in the sense that they re-create their heroes anew for their readers. "Pocahontas" is creative biography in quite another sense, for David Garnett gives his readers a feeling that he is actually, and for the first time, creating his heroine.

"Pocahontas" is as much fiction as it is biography or history, as much an artist's dream of a period, a mood as it is a record of the personalities which were created by and created history. Mr. Garnett does not pretend to factual biography in his story of the life and times of the first American princess to take her place in history. He has rather rewritten history in the mood of its making. He has told the whole epic story of the first English colony at Jamestown in what at times is actually epic prose. Mr. Garnett is a brilliant young writer [you haven't forgotten "Lady Into Fox" even after the years] who does a certain kind of fantastic imagining in words to perfection. "Pocahontas" has that special quality of his, of romantic imagination, allied with the record of a past strangely revivified.

And of all the methods of writing history in terms of people or deeds or moods, Phyllis Ackerman's method of re-creating the past through one of its most delicate arts is unique. "Tapestry, the Mirror of Civilization" is much more than a scholar's discussion of great art—although as the foremost American authority on tapestries Miss Ackerman is the scholar par excellence and without rival, as Chicago well knows through her lectures here. It is a discussion of the greatest of all arts, life, contemporaneously synthesized as only a scholar and a fine human mind can synthesize facts.

"Tapestry, the Mirror of Civilization" is invaluable to any student or lover of tapestries, but it gives a wide interpretation of the civilizations, from the ancient east and Egypt, through Europe and Peru and Mexico to the middle and far east, which are mirrored in tapestries.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The leg and feet exercises given as a valuable part of this West Point series are not confined in benefit to the muscles of the extremities alone. The good influence is extended to other muscles that help maintain the correct poise of the body.

Bad feet and legs, by which we may mean too heavy, too thin, or weak and disabled, affect more than their own muscles, just as weakness or lack of exercise of other parts has a bad effect on legs and ankles. One muscle group cannot be isolated for treatment. The body works as a whole, and the best exercise for any named part takes in other body muscles.

For instance, these leg exercises I've been giving the last few days are as good for hips and thighs and waist as for legs. And the waist, abdomen and spine exercises given before that are likewise valuable for the legs. Any reduction accomplished has an advantage to the leg muscles in that the extra burden must make for freer leg movement. Fallen arches are often due to excess weight.

Proper development of the abdomen, waist and adjacent muscles has a lightening effect on the walk. It becomes more graceful. A disproportionate amount of muscle or fatty tissue on the body is nearly always accompanied by an ungraceful walk.

A top-heavy individual upsets the balance of his or her body. So, in doing an exercise for the legs, like today's, realize that you are doing valuable service to other parts of the body at the same time.

How can exercise benefit the thin leg with large ankles? By increasing the development of the calf muscles a more symmetrical line will result. The ankle will look smaller.

Today's exercise is a movement familiar to skaters. You can see in this exercise just what is meant when I say leg exercises extend their benefit to other parts of the body. For waist and hips and spine and legs this is one grand exercise to practice.

Film Reporter Gives a Break to an Actress

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 13.—[Special.]—There's one young and famous actress in Hollywood who has been involved in a lot of unfavorable headline mention recently. She hasn't kicked about it, even when she felt that the bulk of recent criticism, so far as it concerned her, was unjust. Privately she's a trifle worried because she feels that, though her conscience is clear, her professional activities certainly are not being boosted.

Once celebrated as a dancer and a gay type, rather than a serious actress, she's made all regard her as a real performer in the last few years. She's studied diction, she's absorbed drawing room manner, she's studied screen technique, she's read books until she's put in a bricklayer's hours every day on self-improvement.

This is told here, because the girl, although having some hard moments, deserves a pat on the back because of the way she has accepted the situation.

I find today that the girl has been devoting part of her time and part of her weekly pay check for months to maintain four rooms in a Hollywood hospital. She pays all the expenses of nurses, food, medicine, hospital room rent, and incidentals. She has been doing it since last autumn. Her bill has been thousands of dollars. A doctor, who admired her unselfishness, bargained with her to be allowed to furnish his services as a physician and surgeon free. The actress placed no strings on her charity, stipulating only that cases treated should be those of real need and that precedence should be given to ailing children before adults.

I stumbled onto the actress' secret through a doctor; not the one who renders the unselfish service so anonymously and chooses to remain anonymous. When I asked the actress about her charity she couldn't have been more taken aback if accused of murder on the high seas. She said that under no circumstance did she want herself revealed as a benefactress. She did not intend or wish her charity ever to become known, and she certainly did not want to be accused of angling for public sympathy. She said she likes children and always expects to do what her means permit toward helping them. She begged to remain anonymous.

But it doesn't seem fair she should remain anonymous. She has gone through a lot of fire without squawking; her sincerity is without question in her secret beneficences. She's a game, hard working girl who puts at least a portion of her considerable salary into circulation for the benefit of others and she never asked any extra consideration from anybody in Hollywood when the going got tough for her.

Her name is Joan Crawford.

Merian Cooper, who was in the navy, the cavalry, the infantry of the United States, and the war flying service of this country and Poland prior to becoming a moving picture adventurer and executive, has refused an offer of $50,000 to write his experiences. It's not because a movie studio head—Cooper is now production chief at Radio—disdains $50,000. It's because he can't get himself in the mood to write the personal pronoun.

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

AN IMPORTANT TRIFLE.

"Hell! Inspector Kelley? This is John Davis. I'm at THE RED ROBIN, ten miles out on highway 12. I was just stuck up and robbed of everything I had on me, even a dollar watch! What's more important, though, is that they kidnaped Betty Henderson, who was with me, and drove off in my car. Get here as soon as you can!"

"My loss is inconsequential," Davis said later to the sergeant in charge of the squad car which had been hastily dispatched. "I'm frantic with worry over Betty!"

"Just checking up on a few points, Bob," explained Kelley as he and Fordney greeted the roadhouse proprietor. "Do you remember a fellow (giving detailed description of Davis) that was here last night?"

"Sure. He ran in all excited and demanded where's the phone. I pointed to the four public booths and he dashed into one and slammed the door. In a few minutes he came out sweating profusely and asked me for a drink. What's wrong?"

"We found the fellow's car wrecked and the girl that was with him dead. We're checking his movements last night," Fordney replied.

"Well, Kelley," he remarked as they drove back to town, "you thought Davis seemed genuinely shocked and upset over Miss Henderson's death. Maybe you're right—perhaps he didn't murder her. However, he's covering up something——"

"By gad, Joe! Why didn't I see that before?"

WHAT HAD KELLEY OVERLOOKED?

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so send it to him in care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Molyneux Introduces Black Organdie Into Paris Styles for Summer Evenings

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Fashion is a material minded wench this spring. About three-quarters of the chic of styles depends on the materials of the clothes. There is a big battle in Paris between those dictators of fashions who favor rough stuff in fabrics and those who are for the smooth and slick. This fight is fiercest in the section of styles devoted to evening clothes.

In the midst of the fray Capt. Molyneux brings out and introduces in high society a slim, transparent material that is going to further the cause of the smooth fabric with most women. It is black organdy, and Molyneux uses this crisp stuff to make some mighty intriguing evening dresses for next summer.

One of his black organdy evening frocks is shown in our sketch today. It is the 1933 version of the 1900 silhouette. The little black organdy jacket shown in the upper left corner has short, double frill sleeves like those worn in the epoch of 1900, and is closed surplice fashion across the front.

When this jacket is removed the frock shown in the foreground emerges. Its blouse is plain, with a petunia pink and black organdy sash and a short peplum. Slashes at the shoulders are patched with pink and two huge pink flowers are worn in front. The skirt has the true 1900 line, fitted to the knees and flared below. It is in two gores, with seams down the center front and back.

Give Growing Child Greater Freedom, Trust

Respect His Increasing Maturity.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

More thinking about the in-betweens—that is, about our children when they are between very little childhood and adolescence—brings us today to this:

Difficulty: argumentativeness and the questioning of authority. Cause: development of children's power to think for themselves instead of just accepting the opinions and word of grown ups as they did in babyhood; desire for independence and dislike of restraint. Advice: don't try to keep yourself on a pedestal, as you are more helpful to them and much nearer when you admit [tacitly] that you're not a superior being; avoid excess of authority and don't give commands as commands; use your power wisely; allow increasing freedom, and try to avoid the argumentative and "disputatious" atmosphere by being willing to "sit down and talk things over." That is, be side by side mentally with your children instead of in opposing camps.

Now, we are half through today's column and I find several problems rather especially belonging to the in-between years untouched. Really they could be grouped together, because fundamental wrong handling often causes them all to arise. So let's take this flock of:

Difficulties: impudence, defiance, disobedience, and a measure of untruthfulness and "taking" other people's belongings. Causes: outside influences at work; feeling their own power; rebellion at being still treated and managed like small children; realizing they are not trusted; wanting things that other boys and girls have; not being close and understanding friends with their parents.

Advice: become friends instead of superior beings with your boys and girls so that you retain their confidence and your influence with them; respect their increasing maturity; use a looser rein in general, but be firm when the occasion requires it; have faith in them and set them an example of truthfulness; don't be afraid to show your affection; give them an allowance, and, if possible, chances to earn money, and absolute trust in money matters.

Irregular Love Lures Girl, Yet She Hesitates

It's Old Bromide of the 'Misunderstood' Male.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She's close to 30. Always heretofore has strictly adhered to the conventions. Prided herself on her strength of character for, of course, she has met with temptation before.

Well, she met this one. Didn't know he was married until well along in their friendship. He tells her the disclosure should make no difference. She's not so young any more. He and his wife are living under strained relations, though under the same roof. So, why not, argues the gentleman, throw in their lots together and see if they can't make something out of an otherwise tiresome journey?

"He accused me of acting immaturely when I protested. Suggested there could be no harm in continuing to turn a dull existence into something beautiful. He promised to continue the relationship on a friendship basis purely."

And what do you get out of it, sister? Apparently your emotions are not so deeply involved that you're willing to throw your hat over the mill without a question.

Let's argue not from the moral standpoint but from the standpoint of "turning your tiresome journey into something beautiful."

Would an affair with said gentleman do it? Platonic or otherwise? For nigh onto thirty years you've been reared and practiced in the art of convention observance. You're still guided by the rules or you would not seek advice. Could you be the kind of woman to handle an affair of the sort lightly? We doubt it.

We doubt that any conventional-minded woman could get happiness out of a situation on the face of which she, herself, would write "irregular." It might be all very nice and gay for the gentleman with a wife to run back to any time he saw you getting serious about him. Sister they do that, you know.

The Changeling Bride

By Martha Ostenso

SYNOPSIS.

The Hendersons—Meryl and Margaret, sisters; Flint, their older brother, and Andrew, the father—have lived for twelve years in poverty in a fishing settlement on the shores of Lake Superior after losing their fortune in Chicago. Great-Aunt Letitia, formerly dean of a girls' school in Ohio, is the liaison between the Hendersons and a cultured past. Flint and his friend, Ned Bremner, hope to build up a great export business. A forest fire brings Blake Lawrence, injured and lost, to the Henderson cottage. There were two great names in nearby Agate Bay and its environs—Lawrence and Greer. When Blake returns to Agate Bay he takes Meryl with him to be his bride. Meryl learns after the wedding ceremony, through Lucia, a snobbish cousin of the Lawrences, that Blake married her as an escape from Christine, the wife of Julius Greer, with whom he had been in love. Meryl prepares to return home. Theresa, Blake's sister, persuades her to stay for six months for Blake's sake, whom she still loves, and not to hurt her people. Theresa promises to teach her social service work. Greer at one time saved the Lawrence fortune, and Blake feels honor bound not to interfere with the crooked schemes he knows Greer is engaged in. Meryl believes it is Christine that keeps Blake from fighting Greer.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

A BROKEN HEART'S HOBBY.

Presently Blake took himself off to the Board of Trade, where wheat was doing unseemly things in the market. Uncle Tom bustled away to his affairs in the office and Meryl and Theresa set forth on what the latter, consciously grandiose, called their "adventure in souls."

The Community house was an old fashioned structure of red brick that had been a mansion in a reputable neighborhood in its heydey, but now found itself marooned by time and change on its own decorous island in the shabbiest section of the city. Theresa had laid the foundation for her work some five years ago, her only assistant being an idealistic little Anglican minister of the parish. Later she had bludgeoned her wealthy friends into giving it the support which would secure its expansion. She had ignored Blake's indulgent jibe that she was trying to be a "big Jane Addams in a little puddle." And now, with its supervisor, its secretaries and visiting nurses, the Community house was a far cry from the modest affair which had once been the hobby of Theresa Lawrence's broken heart.

Theresa watched Meryl closely during those first days, as the girl threw herself into the work with a zeal that was sometimes frightening. Every night found Meryl exhausted from the day's activities—and every morning found her ready with new eagerness to begin again. They scurried about in the shabby Ford with which Theresa had endowed the institution a few years before. The avidity which Meryl devoted to the technique of family case work won Theresa's admiration, although she sensed with dismay that the girl was giving her heart and soul to the work because Blake was leaving her heart and soul strictly alone.

Uncle Tom Lawrence, indeed, was the only one who seemed visibly to improve under the strain. It was he who took Meryl to the art galleries, to the plays that came to town, to the concerts, to the movies, and even to the zoo. They were already planning skating and tobogganing parties. Uncle Tom, in short, had become a changed man and one on whom detective stories had suddenly palled.

On one of their evenings at home shortly before Christmas Theresa found Meryl in her room writing letters.

Theresa sank wearily into a chair and reached for a cigaret. Meryl sealed and addressed her two letters, one to Flint and one to Margaret.

"Meryl, dear," Theresa began, "you've been going it rather fast and furious for the last few weeks. It occurred to me tonight that you ought to knock off for a while. You'll be getting circles under your eyes."

The circles were there, as a matter of fact.

Meryl laughed. "Nonsense, Tess!" she exclaimed, "I never felt better in my life. I've just told Flinty and Margaret that very thing."

"You write home almost every day, don't you?" Theresa said inattentively. Her mind was on something else.

"Not quite. But Margaret is simply thrilled to hear about all the people I've been meeting and all the things I've seen. And Aunt Letty devours everything I tell her about our work. And then, of course, Flinty expects me to show a lot of interest in the business he's building up. He writes faithfully to Blake, you know—and he feels awfully important! So—it takes a lot of writing to keep them all satisfied."

"Have you told them yet that you don't intend to go home during the Christmas holidays?" Theresa asked.

"O, yes. It wasn't easy to explain that the work we are in would make it difficult around Christmas. I said I'd try to run up and see them all some time after New Year's."

Theresa yawned. "Lord—I'm just about all in!" she sighed. "I think you're making a mistake, dear," she said after a pause. "They'll want to see you—and you ought to take a couple of weeks off."

"I—can't!" Meryl said abruptly.

"The answer to that, of course, is that you can," Theresa said promptly. "The girls can carry on the work while you're away."

Meryl twisted her fingers in her lap for a moment. "I'd rather not talk about it," she said at last, "but you know as well as I do that I couldn't spend two weeks at home right now."

"That's what I want to get at, Meryl," Theresa replied. "What's on your mind?"

Meryl looked at her. "As long as I'm at work—I'm all right. Two weeks—doing nothing—would give me time to think. It would take Aunt Lettie about two days to find out that—that things aren't right."

"That's what I thought. You'll stay here and work yourself to the bone to keep your mind off a situation that's getting worse every day. Even if—if you were still in love with him." She hesitated as she saw Meryl look suddenly away. "You couldn't forgive him for his stand on the Greer enterprise. Am I right?"

Meryl's voice was not quite steady when she replied. "I said I'd stay with it for six months—and I intend to. And besides—I like the work with you."

"You don't! And I don't. I hate it! If I was living the normal life of a woman—I'd see the whole business in Hades before I'd lift another finger in the name of charity! I had an idea of doing something for you—when we started out together. What I'm doing for you is preparing you to live the life of a lonely old maid—as I'm doing. It isn't fair!"

Meryl laughed at Theresa's sudden outburst. "I'm not kicking," she said lightly.

Theresa got up and crushed her cigaret into a tray. "You are kicking—with every drop of blood in your body, and I know it! If there isn't a change soon I'm going to blow up properly—and let the devil take the consequences!"

Meryl clasped her hands about her knees and looked at Theresa with that widening of her great, clear eyes that had always been so disconcerting to the older woman.

"You once advised me to take a night's sleep, Tess, before acting on an impulse," she said quietly.

Theresa stooped and put an arm about Meryl's shoulders. "Don't pay any attention to me, dear," she sighed, "have these fits once in a while. I just want you to be happy."

"I'm having a wonderful time, really," Meryl assured her. "The work has been awfully interesting and I've gone places with Uncle Tom—and I've got past the worst of—the other. It will probably get easier as time goes on."

Theresa cleared her throat. It was difficult to understand the indomitability of this girl Blake had married. Women she had known weren't like that. She patted Meryl's shoulder.

"You're far from beaten, my dear. You have everything ahead of you. Blake is just a plain damned fool! But he'll come to himself, probably—when you've left him."

Meryl parted her lips to speak, but the words would not come. She controlled her feelings until Theresa had kissed her good-night and had gone from the room. Then she flung herself across her bed and buried her face in the pillows.

method of exercising, and always on Saturdays and Sundays and Thursdays there are enough from which to choose two teams.

The En-Tout-Cas courts are to be opened for the season tomorrow, too, and the locker rooms where the strange and oft-times amusing baseball outfits are kept as well as tennis clothes and rackets and balls. We are told there is to be a keg of beer on hand for the sportsmen tomorrow afternoon, but this is only an unsubstantiated rumor.

Some of the "regulars," who undoubtedly will be out for the first ball game of the season at the smart club, are Ballard Moore, who is the leading enthusiast, Paget Cady, "Buddy" Wegg, Edward L. Hersey, Alexander E. Kirk, Cyrus G. Hill, "Bert" Erskine, Prentiss Andrews, James W. Rogers, and "Tommy" Wheelock.

Half of the fun of the game is to have an admiring crowd of rooters, so probably the wives and sweethearts will be present, too, to cheer their "men folks" on to victory if the weather is good.

Last night at the club, Maurice Patrick Geraghty, who is to be married to Miss Helen Tieken tomorrow afternoon, entertained at a small dinner for his bride-to-be, and tonight her brothers, Robert and Theodore Tieken, are giving the bridal dinner at their residence on East Delaware place, where the wedding is to take place.

Earle Wedding On April 29.

April 29 has been set as the date for the marriage of Miss Juliet Gover Streett Earle's marriage to Arthur Dorman Welton Jr. of Chicago, the wedding to take place in Baltimore, where Miss Earle lives. The service will be read in the afternoon at St. David's Protestant Episcopal church, Roland Park. Thomas R. Underwood and James M. Hopkins Jr. will be the only Chicagoans in the wedding party.

Pierre de Lanux, head of the Paris office of the league of nations, who spent some weeks in Chicago earlier in the season, is to have only one day here this time and now his calendar is so full he can't possibly make another engagement if he wants to. He arrives this morning just in time for breakfast with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence N. Cole at their house in Bellevue place. On his former visit the Coles had him as their house guest.

Then at noon he is to address the Council on Foreign Relations meeting in the Palmer house, at 4 o'clock he will drink tea with the Graham Aldises, he will have dinner and address an informal forum in Ravinia this evening, and then board the midnight train for St. Louis. Two days in the Missouri city and he is off for Washington, D. C.

Mr. Aldis, just back from Florida, is to preside this noon at the council meeting.

Mrs. Hubert Burnham is to have a "patio" party next Wednesday afternoon for all of the north shore matrons who are working so earnestly for the success of the Southern Educational Alliance party to be held the evening of April 29 at the Old Heidelberg inn at A Century of Progress.

She has invited Mrs. George L. Wilkinson, the general chairman; Mrs. Harold M. Pulsifer, an associate chairman, and all of the committee heads to have tea in her Italian garden, gay with orchids and other tropical flowers and a fountain splashing lazily into a pond of gold fish below. The Burnham home is at 1224 Sheridan road, Evanston.

Many a home, whether it's on the Gold Coast or out on the west side, will be profiting one of these days by Mrs. Edward H. Bennett's clever ideas for dressing up a room, making it more attractive and at the same time more livable. With Mrs. Elihu Root Jr., Mrs. Tony Sarg, Mrs. Edna Woolman Chase, and other women of equal prominence, she has been elected to the advisory board of the recently formed Women's Screen guild in New York.

In this capacity Mrs. Bennett is to lend artistic supervision to the production of "talkies" featuring actual demonstrations of the latest developments in household management and home making. Mr. Bennett is equally gifted. He is one of the architects for A Century of Progress and a member of the Chicago plan commission.

When the Bremen docks this morning in New York Mr. and Mrs. Charles Y. Freeman, with their son, Donald, will be among the first to cross the gangplank. They are returning from a vacation in European capitals. Mrs. Freeman crossed two months ago to have a visit with Mr. Freeman's sister, Mrs. Jesse Benedict Carter, who is living at Bordighera in Italy. And three weeks ago Mr. Freeman, with Donald, went over to meet her in Monte Carlo. Since then the three of them have visited Rome, Paris, and London. They will be in Chicago on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn are expected to arrive at home on Monday from the east, where she has been for some weeks visiting in various parts of the hunting country and where Mr. Linn joined her recently.

Word has just come from the Wellesley campus that Miss May Bliss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Edson Bliss, has been elected to one of the two highest student offices. A junior this year, Miss Bliss is to occupy the chair of vice president of college government the next twelve months.

Senn and Lane Tech Win in Band Contest

The bands of Senn and Lane Technical High schools were winners in the city high school contest held at Roosevelt High school last night.

This contest was for the purpose of determining the best talent in Chicago to enter the national high school band tournament which will be held in Evanston on June 8, 9, and 10. The winner on that occasion will be declared national champion and will receive the trophy that officially registers that fact.

As the national contest is a biennial event, and as Chicago is allowed four entries, they will be joined in Evanston by last year's winners, Harrison Technical and Austin. It was expected that these bands would appear on last night's program, as assisting musical features and not as contestants, but owing to the length of the program it became impossible for them to take part.

Competition becomes more spirited each season. It is the custom for each organization to play two numbers, one a composition prescribed in advance and selected with the idea of testing the technical proficiency of the band, the second one of the band's own choice. Wagner's "Rienzi" Overture was the required number last night. Senn's choice was Tschaikowsky's "1812" Overture and Lane's was "Les Preludes," by Liszt.

The judges were George Dasch, conductor of the Little Symphony orchestra; A. F. Thaviu, who has been conductor of the concert band bearing his name for a number of seasons, and George S. Howard, conductor of the band in the school at Mooseheart, Ill.

History Association Hears Tale of First Church Rites Here

The first religious service in the history of Chicago, conducted by Father James Marquette, Jesuit missionary, when he celebrated mass on Dec. 13, 1673, was described yesterday by the Rev. G. J. Garraghan of Loyola university. He addressed the Mississippi Valley Historical association in the Drake hotel. Nearly 300 members of the association and of the Illinois and Chicago Historical societies attended.

Interesting Quilt Uses the Curved Lines, Figures

BY NANCY CABOT.

Perhaps you already have noticed that quilt patterns which originated among the Pennsylvania Dutch often made use of curved lines and figures. This design, the "Star and Crescent," created by the early Pennsylvania Dutch, is an example of this tendency. But it is unfortunate that the artistic effect gained by this means, as well as the beauty of the intricate detail and dainty needlework, was too often lost or overshadowed by the use of unharmonious and unlovely colors in the piecing of the blocks. This may have been more a matter of necessity, however, than any lack of artistic sense.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn street.

Expect 20,000 to Attend Easter Sunrise Service

More than 20,000 young people of Chicago's Protestant churches will unite in an open air sunrise service Easter morning at the plaza of the Hall of Science on A Century of Progress grounds. In order to facilitate transportation from all sections of the city the Chicago Surface Lines and the Rapid Transit Lines, together with the Illinois Central are arranging their schedules to assure the worshipers prompt arrival for the opening of the service at 6:30. More than 65 buses have been chartered by cooperating churches. The south park board has provided parking facilities for those coming in private cars.

Movies of Whale Hunting to Be Shown at Field Museum

Chester Scott Howland of New Bedford, Mass., will give an illustrated lecture on "Hunting Whales" at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternon in the James Simpson theater of Field museum. The motion pictures, which will illustrate the lecture, show the chase, the harpooning, and the wild ride of the hunters towed in their small craft by the infuriated whale.

The James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond Foundation will present a free program of motion pictures for children tomorrow morning in the James Simpson theater. The films, "Among the Elephant Seals," and the "Realm of the Honeybee," will be shown at 10 a. m. and again at 11.

"SO HAPPY THAT I TRIED ALL-BRAN"

Delicious Cereal Brought Relief from Constipation

If you have headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness or any other of the frequent effects of constipation, read Mrs. Schneider's letter:

"Since I have been eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, I don't have to take anything else for constipation. How good it is, and how much better it is for constipation than pills or any other medicine.

"I would never go back to what I used to take, because Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is wholesome and healthful." —Mrs. John Schneider, 950 Tenth Street, Oshkosh, Wisconsin.

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN has both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the wastes.

Try ALL-BRAN in place of pills and drugs—so often habit-forming. Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal, or in cooking. Recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Where Does She Get Her "Pep?"

At middle-age your vital organs begin to slow down. You may not be sick, simply sluggish. But why endure a condition of half-health when there's a stimulant that will stir a stagnant system to new life and energy in a week's time?

This remarkable stimulant is perfectly harmless. It is, in fact, a family doctor's prescription. So, if you're tired of trying every patent medicine that comes along, tell the druggist you want a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a bit of this delicious syrup every day or so, until you know by the way you feel that your lazy liver is again active, and your bowels are poison-free.

Men, women, and children who are run-down, who tire easily, get bilious spells or have frequent headaches, are soon straightened out when they get this prescriptional preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh laxative herbs. (Syrup pepsin is all the help the bowels need, and you do not form the very bad habit of always taking cathartics.)

Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin in the house, and take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. It is all that a great many people ever take to keep strong and vigorous, and absolutely free from constipation.

CARDINALS DEFEAT CUBS, 3-1; COLLINS HITS HOME RUN

BIG BATS SAVE LYONS, HEVING FROM DEFEAT

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 13.—The White Sox today continued to capitalize on the new power acquired during the winter when they made up for shaky pitching with twenty hits to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 11 to 7, in eleven innings. The victory, coming on the heels of yesterday's opening day triumph, leaves the Sox without a defeat in the American league race.

Until the Browns shook Ted Lyons loose from his job in the ninth inning and proceeded to create a tie on Joe Heving's wildness, the struggle had borne a distinctly White Sox flavor. Manager Fonseca had aided with a home run good for three of four runs scored in the fifth. A rally led by Al Simmons added two more runs in the eighth, and the same Simmons also helped collect another in the ninth. All this resulted in a 7 to 5 lead, but just as Heving was settling into a good rescue job Jim Dykes booted one in the home ninth. Then it became a matter of extra innings.

Sox to Go to Work.

The first of the finishing touches applied to the Browns as well as Lloyd Brown, who had shown up an inning previous, came when Hayes beat out a bunt to open the eleventh. Haas sacrificed and Campbell did the Sox a favor by juggling Fonseca's liner, Hayes going to third. He scored on Simmons' bouncing single over Scharein.

Rhyne, who had been sent to short in the ninth because Appling has an assortment of spiked fingers, singled to center to score Fonseca. After Kress had been set down, Brown unleashed a wild pitch on which Simmons scored. Then Dykes singled to score Rhyne with the final run. Chad Kimsey attended to keeping his former mates in place in the Browns' half.

West Equals Record.

Lyons, counted upon to bear the brunt of the pitching burden for the Chicagoans this summer, was neither good nor very bad. It was mainly brilliant support that carried him through the early innings, after which he tightened only to bog down again in the seventh and eighth. All this time he was having no end of trouble with Sam West, the ex-Senator, and when the latter came up with his fifth straight hit to start the ninth, Fonseca decided a change was advisable.

But the change didn't prevent West from making it six in a row on a bunt in the tenth, thus establishing himself alongside the two score others who have equaled the six for six record in the big show.

Paul Gregory will endeavor to make it three straight in the final tomorrow. Ray Blaeholder meanwhile will try to pitch the Browns into their first victory of the season.

Walk Starts Trouble.

Two runs off Lyons in the first inning were the by-product of a walk and two hits. The walk went to Scharein, the leadoff man. West and Campbell got singles, Campbell's scoring Scharein. Simmons fumbled momentarily on the wash board surface of the outfield, so West took third and Campbell went to second. Burns' sharp bounder to Fonseca let West score. Then Dykes saved additional trouble for Lyons by spearing Melillo's hot hopper for the third out.

Lyons was on the spot again in the second. Hayes booted Levey's grounder and Ferrell was tossed out by Appling. Knott scratched a slow roller to Dykes, whose throw to first was late, but Levey tried to score all the way from second and was nipped when Fonseca made a quick relay

BABE HERMAN RAPS 3 DOUBLES OFF HALLAHAN

Adams Takes Steam Out of Bruin Rally.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Jimmy Collins, St. Louis Cardinal first baseman, got so angry because Guy Bush struck him out in the second inning yesterday that he devoted the rest of his day to the proposition of making a wreck of the Cubs' second contest with the Cards. In the fourth inning Jimmy knocked a homer after Frisch had walked to give his team a 2 to 1 lead and enough to win; in the sixth he wasted a single, but in the ninth he drove in Frisch for an extra run to establish the final count at St. Louis 3, Chicago 1.

Collins' three hits formed half of the total smacks made off Bush. As soon as the Cardinals took the lead Bill Hallahan got better and didn't give the Cubs much of a chance the rest of the way.

Babe Herman Socks 'Em.

The only solace the Cubs derived from a wickedly cold afternoon of endeavor was the hitting of Babe Herman. The Babe hit the ball for doubles his first three times up and was robbed of a double or maybe a triple by George Watkins' running backhanded catch of a drive to deep right center with two out and Woody English on base in the seventh inning.

Like Collins, Herman supplied half of his team's total hits, but only one of them figured in production. In the third inning English walked after Slade had made a nice one handed catch of Bill Herman's liner, and stopped at third when Babe got the second on his doubles, this one, like the other two, a smack to left. Hallahan promptly walked Stephenson to fill the bases. Demaree sent a hot grounder which seemed on its way to left field until little Sparky Adams made a dive to his left, knocked down the ball, recovered it and scrambled to his feet in time to force Stephenson at second. English scored on the play, but an incipient riot had been squelched. Charley Grimm sended things for sure by looking at a third strike.

There was one down when Bush threw four wide ones to his enemy, Frankie Frisch. Then Collins drove the ball into the right field bleacher for a homer, which meant the ball game, as things turned out.

Collins was the only Cardinal to reach first from the fourth inning till the ninth. He made a single with two out in the sixth to no avail.

Frisch opened the ninth with a smash to left center. Demaree tried to make a shoestring catch, but the ball got through him to the wall. Frisch pulling up at third with credit for a triple. Then he scored on Collins' third hit.

Hallahan pitched a fine game, but by no means a typical Hallahan game. He walked only five and one of his passes was intentional. The big switch in Wild Bill's technique, however, was in the matter of strikeouts. He fanned but two, Grimm and Bill Herman, neither of whom offered at the third one.

Bush Home Run Victim.

Bush pitched his usual energetic and intelligent game, but probably will have to eliminate that home run ball from his répertoire. It will be recalled that Al Simmons' homer Saturday hung a 1 to 0 defeat on the talented Mississippian his last time out previous to yesterday.

The fact that the Cubs were called upon to make 23 assists was an indication that Bush had his favorite low ball working most of the game, though the total was padded somewhat by a four man rundown of Orsatti in the second inning. The record for assists by a team in a nine inning game is 27.

ROOT VS. DERRINGER

Charley Root will pitch for the Cubs in the series final against the Cardinals today. He will be opposed by Paul Derringer. Charley won fifteen and lost ten last year and Paul won eleven and lost fourteen.

The acute dive which the mercury took between 1 o'clock and 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon did not stimulate the turnstiles. About 1,500 turned out and beer was a drug on the market.

The Pirates open a three game series here tomorrow. The gamblers' favorites to win the pennant will have to stick around four days to play the three games, Monday being an off day.

Unless they get hooked up in some extra inning contests, the Cubs won't be overworked next week. Besides Monday, the Cubs will be off Wednesday. Thursday the Cubs and Cardinals will open the latter's home season.

Commissioner K. M. Landis attended the game, but did not rest his chin on the iron rail in front of his box as per custom, doubtless being afraid said chin would freeze fast to said rail.

36,000 See Champions Beat Red Sox in Opener

New York, April 13.—[Special.]—Off to a delayed start, major league baseball moved swiftly into its stride at the Stadium today as the Yankees launched the 1933 season of the American league in New York. In the presence of 36,221, which included Mayor John P. O'Brien, the world's champions unfurled their world's series banner and then upset the Red Sox, 4 to 3.

A home run by Lou Gehrig played a vital part. It came in the first inning with two on the bases.

After the Red Sox had scored in their half of the first inning on Manager Marty McManus' double and Dale Alexander's double, the Yankees came back to put Joey Sewell on with a walk. Babe Ruth singled to right and then Gehrig drove the ball into the right field bleachers.

The Red Sox picked up two runs in the eighth after the Yanks had counted in the fourth on singles by Crosetti and Lazerri and Dickey's double. Score:

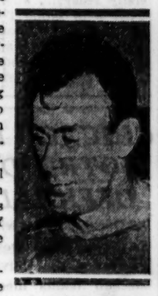
Rangers Win Stanley Cup; Beat Leafs, 1-0, in Overtime

TORONTO, Ont., April 13.—[Special.]—The world's professional hockey championship returned to the United States tonight, when the New York Rangers defeated the Toronto Maple Leafs, defending champions, 1 to 0, in the fourth game of the Stanley cup series. The winning goal was scored in seven minutes and 34 seconds of the overtime period.



BILL COOK.

Bill Cook, Ranger captain, drove home the deciding shot, beating Lorne Chabot, the tall Leaf goalie, with a blistering side shot after taking a rink wide pass from Butch Keeling. The score occurred when Toronto was two men short, Alex Levinsky and Bill Thoms being in the penalty box.

The game was a defensive struggle all the way, with Levinsky and King Clancy rising to spectacular heights for the Leafs, and Ching Johnson covering Toronto rushes in his characteristically crushing style. The rival forward lines had few opportunities to display their skillful passing before the crowd of 13,500.

Aitkenhead Stars.

The Leafs attempted to dominate the attack from the outset hoping to bring about a tie in games won. But there was very little the Canadian skaters were able to do in the face of the solid New York defense. What Johnson and Earl Seibert were unable to cover, little Andy Aitkenhead, competing in his first world championship play, took care of very handily in the Rangers' cage. He was credited with 48 stops, while Chabot had 34.

The Rangers, who last captured the Stanley cup in 1928, were very careful in their aggressive gestures, preferring to await the breaks. They had several opportunities on penalty advantages during the regulation 60 minutes, but were unable to produce.

Lester Patrick, the Rangers manager, put five forwards on the ice in the overtime and this quintet battered away relentlessly. Levinsky's exile was almost up and he was on the point of returning to the game, when Keeling finally garnered the puck in mid-ice.

Passes Out Perfectly.

He sped along the left boards far into Toronto's territory. Bill Cook hustled along the right boards. As Horner approached Keeling in an endeavor to steal the puck, Keeling transferred it quickly and precisely to the fast skating Cook, who took the pass easily. Not breaking his stride a bit, Cook swooped in on Chabot, and when the Leaf goalie sought to come out of the cage, the Ranger captain lifted the puck into the far corner of the net.

The crowd was silent immediately following this achievement, but after some seconds, applauded roundly.

The Rangers went wild. The entire team rushed to Cook's side and patted him enthusiastically, while he, in his excitement, skated back and forth rapidly, waving his arms wildly to the crowd.

It was the second Stanley cup victory in five years for the Rangers. In the 1927-'28 season they won the trophy by beating the Montreal Maroons. On the Ranger squad that won tonight were five of the men who participated in the '28 playoffs—Bill

Couch, Martin and Evans Rated at Scratch by C.D.G.A.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The 1933 handicap roster of the Chicago District Golf association finds three new members in the most select department of the ratings, that of the players who will shoot from scratch in the association's tournaments for the current season.

IRA COUCH

Chick Evans of Edgewater, Ira Couch of Chicago Golf, and Dick Martin of the University of Illinois compose the trio who will join Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge and John Lehman of Olympia Fields as the district leaders on a handicap basis. All three were rated at one stroke last year, but merited promotion by their play in 1932, Evans by his performance in the national amateur, Martin by his victory in the C. D. G. A. amateur championship, and Couch by his second appearance within three years in the final of the western amateur.

Two Hold Places.

Lehman and Westland also retained their places in the scratch division on the basis of their 1932 game, Jack by reason of his play with the American Walker cup team and in the national amateur, and Johnny by winning the western amateur medal and going to the semi-finals.

The graduation of Evans, Martin, and Couch from the one stroke class leaves that division with no players. In the two stroke class are J. Douglas Casey of Riverside, George Dawson of Glen Oak, Warren Dawson of Glen Oak, Robert A. Gardner of Shore Acres, and Art Sweet of Ridgemoor.

System Works Well.

The district handicaps are determined on the player's club handicap, his record of the preceding year and his past record. The nature of the player's home course plays an important part in reckoning his district handicap, since the golfer who regularly plays an AA or championship course will be given a lower handicap.

The complete district handicap list of all players from scratch to four strokes follows:

The system of district handicaps was inaugurated by the C. D. G. A. three years ago, with each player paying $1 for a handicap card. How well the method has worked out has been proven in tournaments wherein players from a number of clubs have competed against each other with very few rounds under par on the basis of district handicaps.

NEW YORK GETS 151 DAY PROGRAM OF HORSE RACING

Jockey Club Lists Dates for Five Tracks.

New York, April 13.—[Special.]—The drastic curtailment of racing in the state of New York, which was predicted following the state senate's defeat of a bill to legalize betting, failed to materialize today when the Jockey club met and adopted a schedule of 151 days of racing on the five major tracks in New York.

The season will be only 19 days shorter than last year.

The meeting at Saratoga Springs will open on Aug. 3 and will close on Sept. 2, it was decided today.

Start Season May 6.

The spring season will open with an 18 day meet at Jamaica, starting on May 6 and ending May 26. Then there will be consecutive 18 day sessions at Aqueduct and Belmont Park and a 22 day meet at Empire City. It had been announced by Joseph Widener, president of the Westchester Racing association, which operates Belmont Park, that there would be only 12 days of racing at that track.

A 12 day meet will start the fall season at Belmont Park on Sept. 4. A few days may be added after the close of the Empire City meet, which will end Oct. 28. Under the law in the state of New York there can be 200 days of racing between April 15 and Nov. 15.

Belmont Stakes June 10.

While there will be a reduction in the overnight purses, it is believed that the major stake races will retain their present value. The Belmont stakes, one of the country's three year old specials, will be run on June 10. The race probably will carrry a purse of $60,000.

The schedule:

Jamaica—May 6-26, Oct. 2-14.
Belmont Park—May 27-June 16, Sept. 4-16.
Aqueduct—June 17-July 7, Sept. 18-30.
Empire City—July 8-Aug. 2, Oct. 16-28.
Saratoga—Aug. 3-Sept. 2.

DERBY HORSES GO THROUGH SPEEDY DRILL AT DOWNS

Louisville, Ky., April 13.—(AP)—The railbirds who back locally owned Derby candidates just out of sentiment were heartened today when Fair Rochester, Lon Jones & Sons' candidate for the gala turf event to be run here May 6, gained the spotlight with a bang-up trial at Churchill Downs.

After galloping a mile and a half, the son of For Fair turned on the steam and stepped a quarter in :24 1-5, three-eighths in :36 3-5, half in :49 2-5, and five furlongs in 1:01 4-5. He was still going handily as the three-quarters was reached in 1:14 4-5. From a speed standpoint, the move was regarded as one of the most impressive of the training season. The track was fast, but far from its best.

Trainer Roscoe Goose waited until this afternoon to work out the Laffoon & Yeiser candidates, Shepherd Boy and Flying Cadet. The former turned in a sparkling trial, going one-eighth in :12, quarter in :24, three-eighths in :36, half in :48, five-eighths in 1:01 1-5, three-quarters in 1:14, and seven-eighths in 1:27 4-5. He was waved down at the seven-eighths pole and finished out the mile in 1:43 2-5.

Flying Cadet worked the quarter in :24, three-eighths in :37, half in :49, five eighths in 1:03, three-quarters in 1:16 3-5, seven-eighths in 1:31, and mile in 1:45 3-5.

M'CORKINDALE KNOCKS OUT GAINS IN TENTH

LONDON, April 13.—(AP)—Don McCorkindale, South African heavyweight boxing champion, knocked out Larry Gains of Toronto, British empire titleholder, tonight in the final round of a ten round bout.

Unbeaten in three years, the Toronto Negro was an overwhelming favorite before the bout began, but McCorkindale, uncovering more punching power than he ever has shown here, battered Gains from the seventh round on. Gains' title was not at stake.

A crowd of more than 20,000, including the prince of Wales, crowded Albert hall for the match.

Pena Loses Ten Round Bout to Jackie Wilson

CHICAGO PLAYS NOTRE DAME IN OFFICIAL OPENER

"Opening day" will be celebrated on the Midway tomorrow when the Notre Dame and the University of Chicago baseball teams meet on Greenwood field at 3 o'clock. The Maroon team has had several practice games, but tomorrow's contest will be the official opener.

Captain Red Wins Sprint at Lexington

Lexington, Ky., April 13.—[Special.]—J. C. Milam's Captain Red won his third consecutive victory and his second of the week when he romped home four lengths in front of C. W. Moore's Scream in the featured Leyland Hotel purse here today. R. L. Baker's Peggy Lehmann was third.

Racing in good going over the short six furlongs of the Futurity course, the Milam color bearer sprinted into an early lead and drew away from the rest of the field. He was never in danger after the first quarter, when his remarkable early speed enabled him to dispose of Scream.

Five Go to Post.

Only five went to the post. Uncle Donald, a Derby hope from the stable of K. N. Gilpin, finished fourth, and Edward Haughton's Brass Monkey was last. The latter raced excellently in Florida, but found the distance much too short, although he closed ground gamely toward the end.

Today's victory was Captain Red's fourth in six starts of his career. He is a colt by Capt. Alcock out of Wilton Flanna, bred by the John Madden estate and trained by his owner.

Little Bubbles Pays $62.

The winner and Scream were both well regarded in the betting. Captain Red was favored and paid $4.52 for $2 to win. Scream returned $2.80 to place. There was no show betting.

Long shots accounted for several of the races. In the second event, H. Hoffman's Little Bubbles led home a field of eleven juvenile fillies, scoring over Lady Hockberger by half a length to pay $62.02 for $2.

OPEN INDOOR LEAGUE.

The Duncan Y. M. C. A., 1515 Monroe street, will conduct an indoor baseball league for the community teams of the near West side. The league will open April 21.

But They Guessed as High as $10

Just before we offered these new $3 shoes in our stores we staged an unusual test of their price.

In a big New York office* we spread out ten of these new $3 Easter styles — concealing all stamped price marks — before a group of business executives who know styles and values.

We defied them to guess the retail price — and their guesses ranged all the way up from $5 to $6, $7, $8, $9, and even as high as $10. Not a man named a figure below $5.

But you don't have to guess. W. L. Douglas name and this new $3 price are stamped on the sole of every shoe — and the quality speaks for itself.

Take your choice of the very newest metropolitan styles — in full-grain calf or kid — with solid leather construction throughout — at our lowest price in fifty-seven years. *Name on request.

Although defeated for class A honors Wednesday by the United States Army team, the Riding club is eligible to enter the open class.

Cast Out Mullet, Then Sit Back and Wait for Tarpon

BY BOB BECKER.

Seven power boats scattered over the water within an area about three city blocks in diameter. A blazing hot sun overhead. Two or three gay colored parasols erected to furnish shade for the feminine Waltonians in this fishing party. Everybody sitting tight—still fishing in salt water!

This is one phase of spring that the fisherman sees in Florida waters at this time of the year because many of the anglers down there go out with the idea of hooking a tarpon. And tarpon fishing for the big ones early in the spring means still fishing with mullet.

It is interesting to note that these small gatherings of fishermen, such as we saw grouped around a big hole known to be inhabited by tarpon, are duplicated in a way here in the north. During April the fly fishermen flock to certain fishing spots in the northern Illinois lake region where crappies can be taken with fly rod equipment and it is not unusual to see twenty fishermen strung along a piece of water through which the fish are moving.

Just before leaving Florida waters we saw one of the tarpon "meetings" for which the Everglades waters are known. When a school of fish is sighted either rolling or feeding in a certain hole in the Ten Thousand island region, everybody moves in, drops anchor, and prepares for still fishing. A big chunk of mullet is used as bait. You cast this out and then sit back in the sunshine and compose your soul in patience—if you can.

We were fishing with Jim Offield, Chicago angler, and his son, Wrigley Offield, when all of us agreed to try this still fishing for a big tarpon. However, we didn't stay with it very long. As Offield observed a little later when we were trolling for other game fish, it is something of a reflection on the mighty tarpon, the highly touted silver king fighter, that he will pick up a chunk of soiled mullet just like a carp or a catfish bottom feeder.

Although the big tarpon are lured by chunks of mullet on the bottom of the ocean, it is possible to hook small ones by trolling spoons or cut mullet. And this sport is a circus with light tackle. While fishing with the Chicago party we saw two husky young "tarps" landed by Jim before one struck our lure. And our fish came out of the night. Trolling in a pass after sunset we hooked one of the high jumpers on a light steel rod. Flashlights were snapped on so that we could see this fellow operate and catch the gleam of his silvery scales. After plucking one small scale from this fish we turned him back to the water to grow up and do his stuff for some other fisherman.

Fonseca Clouts Home Run with Two On.

throw to Grube. The third inning was even more threatening. West's double and a walk to Reynolds started the inning. Three fellows then were dropped in order, the third being the victim of another sparkling stop by Dykes.

Fonseca Hits Homer.

Dykes was responsible for inaugurating the fuss that Fonseca so deftly enlarged into four runs in the fifth. Dykes' single was followed by another off Grube's bat. Dykes took third and scored when Lyons flied to deep center. Hayes fouled out. Then, in trying to force Grube at second on Haas' roller, Levey pegged wild, letting Grube go to third. Fonseca revealed his appreciation of Levey's generosity by thumping the ball into the left field seats for three runs.

Ferrell's single to center opened the assault that gave the Brownies two tying runs in the seventh. Garms batted for Knott and Lyons walked him. Scharein bunted and Fonseca, while kneeling on the ground, threw to Hayes at first in time to get a favorable decision. West immediately ripped off his fourth straight hit, Ferrell scoring and Garms halting at third. The latter hiked across the plate on Reynolds' fly to Kress.

Sox Go Ahead.

The Sox went ahead, 6 to 4, in the eighth when Simmons led off against Lefty Hebert with a snappy single through short. Appling bunted towards third. Ferrell, Hebert and Scharein gathered 'round and before they could vote on who should pick up the ball, Appling was on first. Kress then sacrificed and Dykes was purposely passed, filling the bases. This strategy worked delightfully for the Sox. Grube singled past third to score Simmons and Appling. A double play cut the rally short.

A little bad luck was the main cause of the Browns' coming up with a run in their half of the eighth. Burns led off with a high fly close to the left field line, but Simmons was playing well over toward center and had no chance for the catch. Burns made two bases on the bargain. He went to third on Melillo's infield out and home on Appling's wide throw to first on Levey's grounder. After Ferrell had flied out, Storti, batting for Hebert, singled to move Levey to third, but Lyons escaped further annoyance.

Simmons Fools 'Em.

Simmons' little trick of slapping a ball on which they were trying to walk him was reserved for the ninth. One run was the result of this. Stiles took up the pitching burden and Hayes greeted him with a scratch single. Haas sacrificed and Fonseca flied to Campbell. Stiles received orders to walk Simmons, but he threw only one wide of the plate. When he tossed another Simmons reached out and poked it on a line to right. Haas scored and Simmons went to third when Campbell let the ball roll to the fence, but Appling fouled out.

The nightmare that sent the Browns into a 7 to 7 tie in the home ninth started with West producing his fifth hit off Lyons. The latter retired immediately. Heving appeared and Reynolds tore loose a two bagger, West stopping at third. Campbell fouled out, but Heving let Burns walk, filling the bases. Melillo then bounced to third and a double play was possible, but Dykes fumbled. West scored and the bases remained filled. On Levey's grounder Reynolds was forced at the plate, but Heving passed Ferrell and the tying run scored.

Dodgers Release Phelps, Thompson to Jersey City

Philadelphia, Pa., April 13.—(AP)—Manager Max Carey of the Brooklyn Dodgers tonight announced the releases on option of Fresco Thompson, second baseman, and Raymond Phelps, a pitcher, to the Jersey City Skeeters of the International league. Thompson, a former second sacker with the Phillies, went to the Dodgers in the trade that sent Frank O'Doul to Brooklyn. Last year Thompson was sent out on option to Jersey City, but was recalled this spring when Mickey Finn was traded to the Phils.

Rentner, Holmer Join N.U. Alumni to Play Varsity

Many volunteers have answered the call to play on Northwestern's alumni football team, which will meet the varsity in a game at Dyche stadium Saturday, April 29. Players who finished their collegiate careers as long as five years ago have announced their intention of taking part in the game which will end spring practice for the Wildcats.

An all-star back field has been assured for the alumni. The lineup will be Pug Rentner and Lee Hanley, half backs; Yatz Levison, quarter back, and Walt Holmer, full back. Levison and Holmer were members of the 1927 team.

The line will include Luke Johnsos and Dick Fencl at ends, Tiny Engebretsen and Bob Gonya at tackles, Red Woodworth and Jimmy Evans at guard, and Bob Clark and Micky Erickson, centers.

The game will be played for the benefit of the university band fund. An admission fee of 40 cents will be charged.

Hornboestel Is Hard to Spell, Harder to Beat in Half-Mile

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Charley Hornboestel promises to be the sensation of the Western conference outdoor track season in the half mile, the intermediate race between the sprints and the distance runs. It doesn't seem likely at this time that any other will come forth to dethrone Hornboestel as champion, a title he has held both indoor and outdoor since he began competition for Indiana university one year ago.

When Indiana surprised the Big Ten and won the indoor track meet in 1932, Hornboestel won the half mile. Then comparatively unknown, his five points plus two victories by Henry Brocksmith in the mile and two miles, accounted for more than half of the Hoosiers' points. Hornboestel paced Ed Turner of Michigan to the tape that night in 1:57.1, and by defeating Turner provided Indiana's margin of victory over the Wolverines.

Aims at Outdoor Record.

At Northwestern last spring Hornboestel again whipped Turner, running the distance in 1:56.5 against a strong wind in the back stretch. The conference outdoor record is Hornboestel's immediate objective, since he hung up a new indoor record for the distance last winter at the University of Chicago fieldhouse.

Hornboestel again won from Turner in the indoor games. He traveled the 880 yards in 1:53.9, a record which displaced the mark of 1:55.7 made by Orval Martin of Purdue three years ago.

The outdoor record which the Indiana star hopes to better this spring is 1:53.2. It has stood since 1916 when Scott of Mississippi A. & M. was the winner. In those days the Western conference meet was not restricted to Big Ten universities.

Eastman Holds World Record.

The world record for the half mile was made last spring by Ben Eastman of Stanford. On April 9 in a triangular meet against the San Francisco Olympic club and the University of San Francisco Eastman finished in front by 40 yards in 1:51.3. Four watches agreed on this remarkable time. It was three-tenths of a second better than the accepted world record established by Dr. Otto Peizer of Germany in 1926. The previous American record belonged to Ted Meredith of Pennsylvania. It was established in 1916.

Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, whose best distance is one mile, at which distance he is regarded the best university competitor this year, set a Big Six record for the half mile last year in the conference games. His time was 1:53.5. Cunningham ran against Hornboestel in the national collegiate track meet at Stagg field last June. Cunningham finished third in his preliminary heat but Hornboestel won the championship with a mark of 1:53.5. So far as we know this is Hornboestel's best time in competition outdoors.

They'll Meet Again.

In justice to Cunningham it should be added that he previously had run the mile. His time for the mile that afternoon was 4:11.1, the best made outdoors by a college runner, and he won both the 1,500 meters (which was timed simultaneously) and the mile from Brocksmith. Hornboestel and Cunningham probably will meet again in the N. C. A. A. games this year.

Hornboestel lives down on the Ohio river at Evansville, Ind. In high school he did not make a name as a track star, but under the coaching of E. C. Hayes he has developed steadily. He has another year of competition. Hornboestel is 21 years of age and is 6 feet tall. He is a member of Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity and of Delta Sigma Phi, commerce fraternity, in which college he is enrolled.

Henri Cochet, who will be the No. 1 singles player, objects to taking a doubles assignment also, and Jean Borotra wishes to play only in the doubles. Gillou said that the doubles team probably would consist of Jacques Brugnon and Borotra, while the choice of the additional singles player will lie between Christian Boussus, Andre Merlin, and Marcel Bernard.

Last night's victory was the Chicagoan's fourth straight and put him one game in front of Percy Collins, the national amateur champion. In the afternoon Gordon Green of Beloit, Wis., won his first game of the tournament when he gathered 30 points in his 48th inning to defeat Noble Larson of Villa Park, 250 to 220. COACHES SEEK RESTRICTIONS ON PIVOT PLAYS

Another year will see severe restrictions on the pivot play in basketball, Coach Nelson Norgren of the University of Chicago predicted yesterday on his return from the coaches' meeting in New York. There is an increasing belief among the majority of coaches that the pivot play must be curtailed, but another season will be required to develop any definite plan.

Rule Changes Beneficial.

"The coaches are in agreement that the ten second rule has been beneficial to the game in speeding up play and bringing more basket shooting," Norgren said. "The one rule change made, which permits resubstitution of a player for the second time, is a good one, for it will encourage the use of more men in a game.

"There was quite a demand evident for a change in the pivot play, and the suggestion that the pivot man be required to take his position on or in front of the free throw line had lots of support until it was pointed out that such a rule would make it difficult to break up a zone defense.

Much Rough Work.

"At the end of next season it seems certain that some legislation will be taken on the pivot play. Something has to be done, a majority of the coaches believe, because there is too much fouling on this play and because it puts a premium on the coaches getting a big man on their team. The officials apparently have been recognizing a tacit agreement among the coaches that anything goes on the pivot play, and there has been a great deal of rough work tolerated, although on other sections of the floor the penalties are strictly called."

EXPORT PERMIT FOR GOLD HALTS RAID ON DOLLAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 13.—[Special.]—The dollar fell to the lowest level in years in the foreign exchange market today. Through a combination of well-timed foreign raiding, domestic fears of inflation and apparent misunderstanding among the big banks and the federal reserve and treasury authorities, sterling was rushed up 6½ cents to $3.47½, the franc rose 4¼ points to 3.99 cents, the highest price since 1926, and all other foreign currencies soared.

It was not until late in the day, when the federal reserve bank let it be known that a shipment of gold to Holland had been licensed by the treasury department, that the uprush of the foreign currencies was checked. Then sterling crumbled 3 cents and the other exchanges reacted quickly, but the market closed too soon thereafter for the full effects of the news to be felt.

Banks Seek Export Permits.

The foreign departments for the big banks immediately began to apply for licenses to export gold to France in sufficient quantity to drive the franc down below the export gold point again and it was expected that if these licenses should be granted the movement against the dollar would collapse.

Business men and bankers were disturbed by the day's developments. As the rise of the foreign exchanges gathered headway early in the afternoon, actual trading in foreign currencies almost ceased and quotations rushed up on few transactions. Commercial interests having to meet commitments abroad were uncertain as to what steps to take to protect themselves, and purchasers of commodities debated the advisability of covering their needs at once.

The first impulse was imparted to the spectacular movement against the dollar, according to foreign exchange dealers, by a dispatch from Ottawa which indicated that Premier Bennett of Canada and President Roosevelt would discuss monetary matters in their forthcoming meeting at Washington. The dispatch stated that Premier Bennett favored a revalution of gold and that indications from Washington had pointed to a sympathetic reaction on the part of the President.

Sensation Caused Abroad.

Transmitted abroad, this report created a sensation. Foreign speculators, counting on the fact that foreign exchange markets abroad will be closed for the next three days, except for a period of trading in London Saturday morning, found the time opportune for raiding the dollar.

A further factor was the circumstance that the French franc had advanced on Wednesday to approximately the gold export point and that the markets here and abroad were waiting to see whether gold exports would be sanctioned by the treasury.

Monetary gold stocks of the nation gained $18,700,900 today, the largest gain in several weeks, as a result of release from earmarking for foreign account. In accordance with custom, the New York Federal Reserve bank did not identify the nation or nations making the release.

USUAL DIVIDEND BY SHAWINIGAN WATER & POWER

Directors of the Shawinigan Water and Power company yesterday declared a regular quarterly dividend of 12 cents per share on the common stock for the quarter ended March 31, payable May 15 to shareholders of record April 15.

Power output of the company for the first three months showed an improvement of 9.2 per cent over the corresponding months of 1932. Net operating revenue, after general operating and maintenance expense, power purchased, water rentals, taxes and insurance, and United States exchange, totaled $1,621,047, against $1,836,649 for the same quarter last year. Surplus, after fixed charges but before depreciation and estimated income taxes, amounted to $592,945, compared with $848,002.

A higher premium on the purchase of United States funds to meet bond interest and payments for power under certain contracts continued to affect the company's earnings. Charges for this purpose totaled $213,449, against $180,000 for the first quarter last year.

Return of Gold from Hoarding Drops Sharply

(Statistics on Page 32, Col. 8.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 13.—The administration's anti-gold hoarding campaign slid into senility last week as the return of gold to the reserve banks fell to the lowest level in recent weeks and the government still remained uncertain about its action against hoarders.

Despite President Roosevelt's drastic executive order of a week ago calling in by May 1 all unlicensed gold holdings of more than $100, the amount of gold returned to the reserve banks during the last week was only 36 million dollars, the federal reserve board announced in its weekly statement tonight. This is the smallest amount received by the banks in any week since the banking holiday and is 7 million dollars less than the amount taken in during the preceding week.

Doubtful on Prosecution.

Meanwhile, Attorney General Cummings admitted today that only general plans are decided upon for the treatment of hoarders. He indicated that the administration is hoping that it will never be called on to act and that hoarding will evaporate. Only the regular channels, the various district attorneys' offices, will handle any cases which arise, Cummings, said.

Almost a billion dollars in gold still remains in the country but outside of the reserve banks. Gold stock of the country increased by 10 million dollars last week because of domestic production and importations, reaching a total of 4 billion 293 millions. Of this total 3 billion 315 millions was in the reserve banks. Another 174 million was in the treasury.

Reserve banks were using 2 billion 664 million dollars worth of their gold to back their outstanding notes, thus giving a 75 per cent gold backing to the principal type of money now in use. Approximately another 760 million dollars of the gold was tied up as collateral for deposits in the reserve banks.

Circulation Falls Off.

While the return of gold to the banks slowed up, money of all types continued to flood back into the banks, easing the strain on the country's reserves. Total circulation dropped by 114 millions last week and stood at 6 billion 147 millions on Wednesday.

Another $3,760,000 of the new emergency reserve bank notes were drawn into circulation last week but they continued to make up less than 20 millions out of the entire circulation.

Total reserve bank credit continued to retreat back toward normal levels. The reserve banks reduced their bills discounted to 428 millions and cut their purchased bills to 247 millions. They made no change in their holdings of government securities. The changes were reflected in a drop to 2 billion 528 millions of the total reserve bank credit outstanding, a decrease of more than a billion dollars since the high point of March 8.

Total member bank borrowings from the system declined $7,721,000 in the week, while the Federal Reserve banks' holdings of bills bought in the open market were down 39 millions. There was net retirement of $46,000,000 of Federal Reserve bank credit in the week.

CHICAGO DEPOSITS RISE

An indicated expansion of approximately 48 millions in the gross deposits of the Chicago banks last week was shown in the weekly report of the reserve board giving position of member banks here.

Demand deposits increased 16 millions while funds due from other banks were up 35 millions, making a total of 51 millions. Time deposits declined 3 millions.

The banks also increased their balances at the reserve bank by 29 millions. The changes put the banks in a stronger reserve position. No borrowings from the reserve bank were reported.

The new funds, however, were not used in expanding credit, but were deposited with other banks. Loans and investment declined 33 millions. Collateral loans were off 6 millions and others were down 11 millions. The banks holdings of government securities were unchanged but they disposed of 16 millions of other securities.

Bank "Pool" to Buy Bonds Calls for $10,000,000 More

New York, April 13.—(AP)—An additional investment of approximately $10,000,000 has been made by banks and bankers in the American Securities Investing corporation, popularly known as 'the bond pool," which was formed early last summer for the purpose of acquiring securities, chiefly bonds, which were regarded as attractively priced. The recent call for more money brings the available capital to about $30,000,000.

Western Union Subsidiary Votes $15 Extra Dividend

New York, April 13.—(AP)—American District Telegraph company of New Jersey, a subsidiary of Western Union, which owns about 75 per cent of the stock, has declared an extra dividend of $15 a share, payable April 20 to stock of record April 15. Western Union's share in this disbursement is estimated at $1,125,000.

Limburger Cheese Strong; Market Quickened by Beer

Plymouth, Wis., April 13.—[Special.] The limburger cheese market is strong. The return of beer has quickened appetites for limburger cheese to such a degree that factories are being offered half a cent a pound more for it than they were a month ago.

New York Central to Buy 9,000 Tons of Steel Rails

New York, April 13.—The New York Central railroad has authorized purchase of 9,000 tons of 127 pound steel rails. The Pennsylvania, which ordered no rails in 1932, is expected to make some purchases this year.

STOCKS SPURT ON NEW MOVES FOR INFLATION

Net Gains Up to $3 in Active Trade.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 13.—Wall street was full of currency inflation talk today and stock market prices spurted rather briskly, along with those of commodities and other securities. The improvement in stock values ranged from a fraction to about 3 points.

The pace of trading stepped up sharply, particularly in the afternoon and turnover ran to around 1,650,000 shares.

Significant developments in Washington, including the Bankhead resolution calling for an investigation and a report within thirty days of the desirability of inflating the dollar, coupled with a report that monetary problems involving a proposal to increase the price of gold are slated for early discussion in the forthcoming international conference, provided the chief bases for the outburst of inflationary speculation.

Buying Expands in Afternoon.

The buying began to assume formidable proportions shortly after noon, when word got round that a selling attack had been launched on the American dollar on the local foreign exchange market, with a large proportion of the activity there credited to foreign account.

Until the dollar "raid" got under way, the share market had been idling along, with trading lax and price movements confined to generally narrow grooves.

The impulse to advance, when it did come, was felt first by the so-called commodity stocks. J. I. Case shot up more than 3 points, but was unable to hold all its gain, International Harvester came to life with a rush, but likewise receded later from its high.

Oil shares had their best day—or rather half day—in months, being backed, of course, by anticipations of higher gasoline and oil prices.

Metal Group Rises.

The metal group went from 1 to 5 points higher, with silver stocks particularly prominent. Homestake touched 190 at one time, a rise of 5 points above yesterday's closing levels, but the close found it back to 189. International Silver common scored a net gain of 2 points and the preferred was up about 4 points.

Word that rubber futures were enjoying their sharpest rise in months—they were up some 30 points at one time on heavy dealings—made the tire stocks look better, and Goodyear, Goodrich, United States Rubber and others were given a whirl.

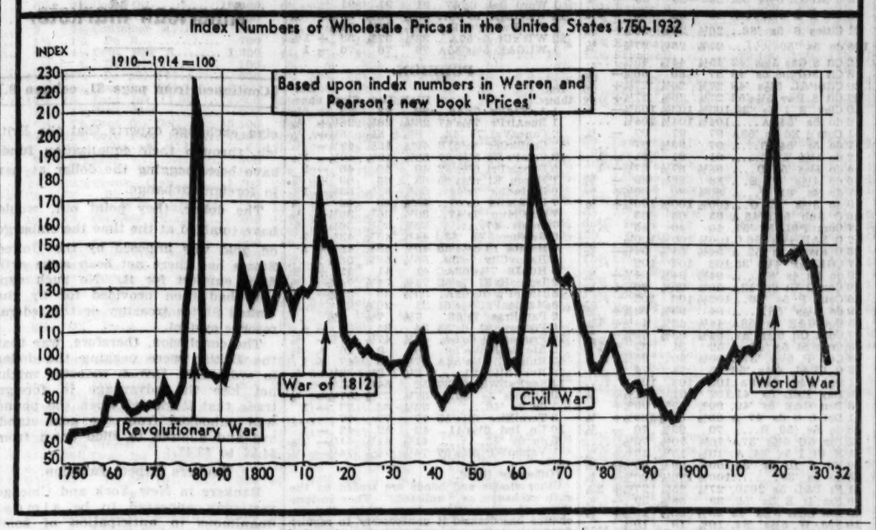
Even the rails and utilities showed some enthusiasm, in spite of the troubles that have been besetting them for so long. Norfolk and Western in the carrier group moved up more than 5 points on a nominal turnover. Chesapeake and Ohio was fairly strong, and Atchison made it nearly 2 points.

RISE IN PRICES SWELLS TRAFFIC ON UNION PACIFIC

New York, April 13.—(AP)—Carl Gray, president of the Union Pacific railroad, said today that reports from the west stated the road's traffic was running ahead of recent volume and that the percentage drop from a year ago was becoming smaller.

"The improvement in traffic seems to be general," Mr. Gray said. "The increase in prices of commodities has added to the freight movement. The poor winter wheat crop in parts of Nebraska and Kansas is not entirely unfavorable because prices are improving. Potatoes in our territory are advancing. There is plenty of carryover wheat to be moved from the northwestern part of our lines."

Four Inflation Periods in American History Came With Wars-Four Deflation Periods Followed Them



Loan Is Sought for Home Bank Insurance Aid

Officials of the federal home loan bank at Evanston are urging the legislature at Springfield to enact a law enabling life insurance companies to borrow from the home loan bank, A. R. Gardner, executive vice president of the Evanston bank, said yesterday.

The Palmer bill on insurance company investments now pending before the legislature, Mr. Gardner said, in its present form would prevent the participation by insurance companies in the benefits of the home loan bank because it would not permit them to subscribe for stock in the bank.

Can't Loan to Individuals.

Mr. Gardner verified earlier reports that no loans had been made direct to individuals by the home loan bank. "Under the law as passed," he said, "there is no machinery set up to take care of loans to individuals. No bank in the system has lent a cent direct to individuals. The proposed new home loan relief bill now before congress, however, is intended to meet the demands for direct loans of that type.

"We couldn't afford to broaden our rules sufficiently to extend relief to the thousands of applicants who have asked for direct loans. We recently examined 350 such applications and found only 5 that would have been eligible.

Too Much Promised.

"Criticism of the federal home loan banks has been due largely to the exaggerated statements made by politicians prior to the launching of the system, which occurred during the heat of a political campaign."

Mr. Gardner said that up to April 11 the bank had lent $3,780,000 out of a possible $15,000,000 and that loans were being made at the rate of $50,000 to $60,000 per month. Applications aggregating $1,000,000 are pending, he said.

World's Markets Close for Good Friday Today

Leading commodity and security markets through North American and Europe will be closed today, Good Friday. Banks will be open here but will be closed in New York. Most exchanges including the New York and Chicago stock markets and the Chicago grain market will reopen tomorrow. Several foreign markets and the New Orleans Cotton exchange will remain closed until Monday. The Chicago live stock market will not close today.

IT'S A GOLD MINE! PAYS REGULAR, EXTRA AND BONUS DIVIDENDS

New York, April 13.—(AP)—McIntyre Porcupine Mines, Ltd., a gold producer, today declared an extra dividend of 12½ cents a share and a "bonus" of like amount, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents. All are payable in American funds on June 1 to holdings of record May 1. Three months ago the company paid an extra of 12½ cents.

The company operates properties at Schumacher, province of Ontario, Canada, and is one of the leading gold producers in the world. Its output of gold bullion in 1932 was valued at nearly $6,000,000.

ILLINOIS HOUSE PASSES BILL TO REOPEN BANKS

Springfield, Ill., April 13.—(AP)—Authority for the reopening of downstate banks on waivers signed by 75 per cent of the depositors was given by the Illinois house of representatives today in passing, 105 to 11, a bill introduced two days ago.

Sponsored by the committee on banks and banking, it was rushed through the house as an emergency measure to help speed up the resumption of normal financial operations in all communities.

Approval for bank reopenings would be given by Circuit judges, with all unsecured claims to be bound by the waiver agreements. Local officials would be permitted to waive on deposits of public funds if reopening petitions had been signed by bank customers representing one-half of the total deposits.

Am. Smelting Cancels Wage Cut on Upturn

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 13.—Signs of a real upturn in business have influenced the management of the American Smelting and Refining company to abandon plans for making a further reduction in the pay of employés, it was learned today. The cut, which would have been the third since the depression started, was to have gone into effect about May 1.

The first cut in compensation of employés made by the company went into effect in the fall of 1931. It was at the rate of 10 per cent. A second 10 per cent reduction was made in the fall of 1932. The third would have been 5 per cent.

Find Business Improves.

Decision not to make the reduction follows definite improvement in prices of nonferrous metals, as well as the better feeling generated in general business since the bank holiday.

The management also was influenced by consideration of the fact that a total cut of 25 per cent would have brought the pay of its employés out of line with the actual decline in cost of living. Its studies have indicated that the cost of living is down only 21 per cent.

Rise in Silver Is Factor.

The American Smelting and Refining company is one of the largest units engaged in mining and refining nonferrous metals. It does the largest business in custom smelting of any company in the country. It is the largest producer of silver in the United States and also produces gold, copper, lead, zinc and other metals. Prices of all of those metals have been advancing in the last few weeks.

The rise in silver is of particular importance to the smelting company because of its large interest in silver properties.

The price of silver has advanced 6 cents an ounce from the low point of last year early this year and has held about half of the gain.

Closed Banks Tell of Plans for Reopening

Listed below is the available information on present status of most of the city and suburban banks which are still awaiting licenses to resume business. The information given was obtained from a canvass of the bank officials yesterday. Only two of the banks, the Howard Avenue Trust and Savings and the Edgewater Trust and Savings, promise early reopening.

The Mid City Trust and Savings, Madison and Halsted streets, has obtained its national charter and is expected to open soon as the Mid-City National bank. The new bank will assume all the deposit liabilities of the old bank.

AETNA STATE, 2375 Lincoln avenue—Officials state they have "passed half way mark in attempting to raise $200,000 of new money and are still plugging."

AUSTIN STATE, 5645 West Lake street—With deposits of $1,700,000 tied up, the bank officials report that they have nothing tangible to report in the way of reorganization. Situation is still "up in the air." Prospects uncertain.

BELMONT-SHEFFIELD TRUST AND SAVINGS, 1005 Belmont avenue—Officials report "satisfactory" progress on plans to get $125,000 of new money. Nothing definite to report, however.

EAST SIDE TRUST AND SAVINGS, 10101 Ewing avenue—Bank has obtained about 25 per cent of new money needed to reopen. Deposits are $274,000.

EDGEWATER TRUST AND SAVINGS, 5545 Broadway—Officials report "splendid" progress on plans for reopening. New capital of $45,000 is understood to have been secured. Some announcement imminent.

HALSTED STREET STATE, 6910 South Halsted street—Officials working on plan to obtain national charter. Definite developments not expected in near future.

HOWARD AVENUE TRUST AND SAVINGS, 1737 Howard avenue—Reopening Monday morning is likely. G. K. Hall, president, said yesterday reorganization plans completed and new money obtained. Few details remain to be cleared up.

I-C BANK AND TRUST, 53d street and Lake Park avenue—New capital of $200,000 needed. Deposits are $520,000 at present. Officials assert they are making "progress," but can report no definite developments.

OAK PARK TRUST AND SAVINGS, 1048 Lake avenue, Oak Park—Program for reopening calls for 50 per cent assessment of stockholders to get $500,000 of new money and the waiver by depositors of $1,000,000. Ellis H. Denney, president, said yesterday that the program has been "two-thirds" completed.

SOUTH CHICAGO SAVINGS, 2959 92d street—Reorganization still uncertain. Several proposals have been considered and discarded. Bank needs $750,000 new money. One plan which it is said is still under consideration calls for raising $100,000 among depositors; $200,000 assessment of stockholders with the balance to be furnished by the Illinois Steel company, subsidiary of U. S. Steel.

WEST 31ST STREET STATE, 555 West 31st street—Deposit waiver plan failed to win complete approval of state auditor. Officials now working on other plans. Prospects uncertain.

WEST SIDE TRUST AND SAVINGS, 1201 South Halsted street—Bank is seeking national charter. National examiners have completed audit of books. Officials expect definite word from national authorities within a week.

WORLD PRICES CHURN; EXPECT U. S. INFLATION

Commodities Soar in American Market.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Throughout the world yesterday markets were influenced by anticipation of inflation of United States currency.

Grains of all kinds added substantial gains to prices already much above pre-moratorium levels. Stock prices advanced, with leading issues moving up one to three points. Crude rubber shot up nearly half a cent a pound. Bar silver jumped ⅝ of a cent an ounce and silver futures were up more than half a cent. Cotton, hides, cocoa, lard, coffee, tin, and raw sugar shared in the day's bull movement.

This upward swing of prices might have been attributed entirely to the spring upturn in business were it not for the failure of bonds to share the improvement to any marked degree and the spectacular decline of the United States dollar in foreign exchange.

At one time during the day the pound sterling was six cents above Wednesday's close in relation to the dollar. Other foreign currencies shared the strength of sterling. All gold currencies were well above the points where gold would be exported from the United States if there were no embargo.

Two Causes for Dollar's Drop.

The foreign drive against the dollar, Chicago bankers explained, was occurring on two fronts. Foreign balances on deposit in the United States were being drawn down and withdrawn funds turned into earmarked gold in New York. This, however, was a minor cause, because foreign balances in the United States already were exceptionally low and have been low since the drive against the dollar last summer.

More important, said foreign exchange experts, was the sale of dollars abroad, especially in the London market. Accumulated dollar bills of exchange in the London market were being sold. These sales of dollars abroad would have the effect of reducing the amount of earmarked gold held for foreign account in New York.

Flight from the dollar by Americans or foreigners resident in the United States was physically impossible, due to the embargo on gold. Under the treasury restrictions it is impossible to buy foreign currency in this country except to cover an actual bill of goods in a foreign market or to supply Americans going abroad with money for living expenses. No foreign currencies can be sold for speculative purposes.

Restrictions Check Hedging.

Bankers here reported yesterday that were it not for these restrictions there would probably be a flight from the dollar by Americans seeking to hedge against inflation by purchasing foreign currencies or securities.

One theory advanced yesterday to account for the decline of the dollar in the London market was that the British treasury had withdrawn support of the dollar. For several weeks there has been a suspicion among for-

CHICAGO FIRMS DECRY U. S. PLAN TO LIMIT HOURS

Point Adverse Effects on Many Industries.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Chicago district manufacturers, through the Illinois Manufacturers' association, are expressing their disapproval of plans proposed in congress to limit by law the number of hours a week that employes producing wares in interstate commerce may work.

The comment generally is that such restrictions would disrupt organizations and, further, that it would make it difficult for companies doing an interstate business to compete with those whose activities were confined within the state.

"Illinois manufacturers object to any law which will interfere with the operation of their plants, which are dependent upon fluctuating receipts of raw products, such as live stock, or which will make it impossible for them to bill rush or seasonal orders.

Cites Lines Most Affected.

"The latter branches include wearing apparel, printing and food production, including confectionery and bakery supplies. The proposal is particularly objectionable in operations requiring skilled employés who cannot be replaced for brief periods."

J. C. Deagan, Inc., manufacturers of chimes, etc., recently urged Senator J. Hamilton Lewis to make a protest against the senate bill, saying:

"Our business comes by fits and starts. When an occasional order does come in time is almost invariably of the essence of the contract and the product must be built to order. Under such circumstances adherence to the time specified in the senate and house bills would very seriously cripple us."

Calls Proposals Uneconomic.

Noah Van Cleef of Van Cleef Brothers, rubber dealers, stated that he believes attempts by any legislature to regulate natural economic laws will prove disastrous. He asserted that the business of his company comes from outside sources and were the organization unable to fill orders because of limitation on employment competitors in other states would get the orders.

"The meat packing industry of Chicago has live stock for its raw material, the shipments of which fluctuate greatly. It would be difficult, if not impossible, for meat packers to go on a five day week schedule for every week in the year. Cattle, sheep, and hogs must be handled as they come. In the interest of the farming community live stock cannot be allowed to remain in the pens."

Interlake Iron Restricts Loss Through Economies

Owing to economies effected, the Interlake Iron corporation in the first quarter of this year cashed in for about $5,000 of covering its interest charges of about $200,000 before depreciation, says Dow, Jones & Co. This is the closest the company has come to covering its interest requirements since the second quarter of 1931. Net loss for the quarter will be around $210,000, after all charges, including depreciation, interest and inventory writedowns, compared with a loss of $391,495 in the corresponding quarter of 1932.

Chicago Bridge and Iron Gets Big Brewery Order

The Chicago Bridge and Iron works has received an order for 68 brewery tanks and vats. They are being fabricated at the company's central plant at Chicago and will be erected in Lafayette, Ind., for the Lafayette Brewery, Inc. Welded construction will be used throughout.

GRAINS SOAR AS CURRENCY PLANS INSPIRE BUYING

Wheat and Corn Are Near Season's Tops.

WHEAT IN U. S. FUNDS

Wheat prices in leading markets, reduced to United States funds at rates of exchange when they closed:

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Inflation talk suddenly displaced bad crop reports from the winter wheat belt as the dominating influence in the grain markets yesterday. Reports that several measures to inflate the currency had been introduced into congress, coupled with a sharp advance in foreign exchange rates, started a buying movement that carried wheat prices up 2 to 2¼ cents from Wednesday's finish, while corn was up 1½ cents to a new high for the season on the September delivery and to the best levels on the current movement on the nearby deliveries.

Trade in all grains was quiet during the early part of the session, but shortly before noon there was a rush of buying in wheat, regarded as having been based on the inflation talk, which swept all before it.

Profit Taking Checks Bulge.

While there were numerous small reactions from the extreme high prices, they were due in large measure to profit taking, selling against offers and to evening up for the world-wide holiday today. However, the markets showed little disposition to stay down toward the last. Wheat finished with net gains of 1⅞ to 1¾ cents.

Milling demand for cash wheat was fairly active, with sales of 77,000 bushels, and the basis in the spot market was firm to ¼ cent higher, with No. 1 hard selling at the highest premium of the season. Winnipeg gained ⅜ cent for the day, but was actually ⅝ cent higher in United States funds, owing to an advance in the exchange rate.

Over 1,000,000 bushels of cash wheat were reported as having arrived at Chicago from northern points since lake navigation opened.

Corn Advances Sharply.

Corn acted as if it was sold out, and prices advanced sharply after a small dip early. The close was about at the top, with net gains of 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents, May being 32⅝ cents, July 34½ to 34⅝ cents, and September, 36½ cents. Much new commission house buying was said to be in evidence during the day. Country offerings to arrive remain small.

Oats gained ⅝ cent, with a forecast for unfavorable weather over part of the main belt a factor. May was 20¾ cents and July 21 cents at the close. A leading eastern operator was said to have bought rye, while the northwest sold. Net gains were 1⅜ to 1½ cents, with May at 45⅝ cents, and July, 46¼ cents. Barley was up ½ to ⅞ cent, with May at 32¾ cents and July at 34½ cents.

DETROIT BANKS PUSH PLANS TO PAY ON DEPOSITS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., April 13.—Conservators in charge of the two old national banks of Detroit rushed work today upon the transfer of assets to the National Bank of Detroit. They expect to release 30 per cent of the deposits in the old banks by April 24 at the latest.

Conservator C. O. Thomas of the First National bank said this date may be changed to an earlier one, as he hoped to have the additional funds totaling $131,201,000 available by the latter part of next week.

This disbursement will bring the total to 40 per cent of the total deposits.

Cleveland Bank Lays Plans.

Cleveland, O., April 13.—[Special.]—A. V. Cannon, chairman of the board of the new First National bank, tonight announced that 35 cents on the dollar will be made available to Union Trust depositors and 20 cents on the dollar will be paid to Guardian Trust depositors when the new bank opens.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 13.—Fresh buying pushed bond prices generally higher today, as the investment community scanned signs of better business.

Speculative issues were most prominent in the advance, rising from 1 to 3 points in many instances. As in stocks, bonds of companies due to benefit from rising commodity prices were especially well accumulated. Outstanding instances of this trend were noted in United States Rubber 5s, Goodyear 5s, and Chile Copper 5s.

Rail Issues in Demand.

With the administration's railroad relief program making headway, buyers turned also to the speculative railroad group. A goodly cluster of recoveries was chalked up, including Chesapeake corporation 5s, Illinois Central refunding 4s, issues of Missouri Pacific, and others.

Prices of United States government securities and others in the high grade classification were moderately improved in numerous instances, but the list tended to lag behind the pace set by speculative obligations.

Inflation Talk an Influence.

While the inflation problem continued to hold back commitments in the high grade issues, sentiment was aided somewhat by belief that another cut of ½ per cent in the federal reserve rediscount rate is due. The street was still awaiting treasury action on the matter of refunding the Liberty Fourth 4¼ per cent bonds.

Strength in sterling exchange put British bonds in a position of leadership in the foreign list, with British 4s especially strong. Excepting Germans, other foreign liens climbed irregularly.

PRICES OF HOGS HOVER AROUND $3.70 AVERAGE

Cattle Trading Becomes More Active.

Prices rallied feebly in the hog market yesterday after starting out weak to a shade lower to close only a trifle under the best levels of the week and 10 to 15 cents higher than Monday.

Quotations during the last three weeks have changed very little. Top prices have hovered around the $4.00 line for 21 days.

Yesterday's top declined 5 cents, going to $3.90, against $3.80 at the opening of the week. The general average price for the whole day remained unchanged again at $3.70. This price has been the same for three days in a row.

Reports that the movement of hogs is dropping off and likely to remain light the rest of the week caused some life in the late trade yesterday. Five markets expect 39,500 hogs today, against 55,800 last Friday.

Cattle Trade Active.

In contrast to conditions existing in the hog market cattle experienced one of the liveliest weeks in many months. Supplies were not exceptionally light, but buyers seemed hungry for stock. Prices have moved up 25 to 50 cents since last week's close.

Recent price gains were largely in the medium and heavy grades of steers, which are selling at the highest prices of the year. Prime 1,354 pound averages sold at $6.75 yesterday. Long yearlings averaging 1,088 pounds to Armour at $7.00 topped the market and equaled the highest price paid this week.

A government report released yesterday indicated that about 10 per cent more cattle were on feed for market in the 11 corn belt states on April 1 this year than on the same date in 1932. The increase amounted to about 130,000 head. Compared with April 1, 1931, there is a decrease of 181,000 head.

Spring Lambs at $9.00.

Native spring lambs rushed into the market by trucks for the Easter trade comprised a good share of yesterday's offerings. Demand for these baby milk fed lambs continued brisk and prices went up 25 cents more in a lively trade. Greeks paid $9.00 freely for the best 30 to 50 averages. Packers bought at $8.25 and under.

There was a rally in the market for last year's crop of "fed" lambs which broke rather severely late Wednesday. Prices ruled strong to 15 cents higher, medium and heavy lambs advancing most. City butchers bought 90 pound wooled stock at $5.60, while packers paid $5.00 to $5.50 for 90 to 110 pounders. Light shorn lambs reached $5.25. The 99 pound av.rages at $4.85 were feed lot mates to the $4.75 lambs sold late Wednesday.
